Nixon Told Volunteers May Bring End To Draft By 1971

Recruit Pay Hikes, Vet Benefits Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special commission told President Richard M. Nixon today the draft can be eliminated next year and the armed forces switched gradually to an all-volunteer basis with higher pay and other reforms.

The commission told Nixon "the nation's interests will be better served by an all-volunteer force, supported by an effective standby draft, than by a mixed force of volunteers and conscript."

The 15-member group, set up last March, recommended that the Nixon administration ask congress for prompt enactment of pay increases, particularly for young first enlistment servicemen and lieutenants, and other improvements. It proposed that the draft law die June 30, 1971.

Achievement of an all-volunteer military force would carry out a major campaign pledge by Nixon.

FIRST YEAR COST

The panel estimated it would cost about $3.24 billion to put the new draft-free force into effect the first year. This would raise the defense budget for fiscal 1971 to a total of more than $75 billion .

The group took no stand on how big an all-volunteer force should be, but offered proposals for a two-million or three-million man force to cost between $1.5 billion and $4.6 billion for a three million-man force on a continuing basis.

It appeared to lean toward a middle ground force of about 2.5 million at an annual cost of about $2.1 billion.

Military manpower specialists have said in advance that the commission was trying to reach an all-volunteer force at an unrealistically low cost.

In the past, government studies have suggested a true all-volunteer force would require up to $17 billion more a year.

1971 GOAL

The 15-man panel headed by former Secretary of Defense Thomas Gates, said it believes that if reforms including increased skill pay and reserve pay and greater recruiting efforts, put into effect this year, enough volunteers will be attracted to the service to permit transition to a wholly voluntary armed force in 1971, with the draft machinery on a standby basis for emergencies.

The United States now has about 3.3 million men under arms and is gradually reducing that force as troops are withdrawn from the Vietnam war.

Pay increaes would be concentrated largely with the first-term serviceman, raising the average base pay for a private from $180 a month to $315 a month and increasing fringe

Nine City Council Contests

There will be contests for city council posts in nine of the 10 Marin cities holding elections April 14.

The exception is Ross, where Frederick S. Allen and Roy Farrington Jones are unopposed for reelection.

It is not unusual for Ross to have no contest for council. In fact, it is unusual when it does, although two years ago it had seven candidates for three council openings. One "nonestablishment" candidate, radio disc jockey Jack Carney, was elected that time, but resigned before he had served a year.

Aside from the Ross no-contest, the races April 14 will vary from three candidates for two positions in Larkspur to seven candidates for two positions in Novato.

San Rafael has no city election this year, electing in odd-numbered years.

Candidates, with the number of positions to be filled shown in parentheses for each city, are as follows:

BELVEDERE (2) — Beatric S. Mann, Vernon E. Perry, Willard G. Pittman, Alan Steinau. (Neither Sally Mathews nor John R. Moore, whose terms expire, is seeking re-election.)

CORTE MADERA (3) — Edward W. Colthurst (incumbent), David I. Freed, Patricia Friend, Herber C. Leney, Holmes S. Norville (incumbent), Harold B. Wagstaff (incumbent).

FAIRFAX (3) — Winston R. Curtis, Frank J. Egger (incumbent), Albert E. Gately, James K. Henington, Lee Nelder, Robert R. Souza (incumbent) , Adelaide P. Wilson (incumbent).

LARKSPUR (2) — Neil R. Brixon (incumbent), Raymond C. Kesner, Alfred J. Malvino (incumbent).

MILL VALLEY (2) — Jean Barnard, Edward J. Boessenecker (incumbent), Dolph F.

NORMAN LIVERMORE JR.
Federal post next?

Livermore Wooed By D.C. Offer

Norman B. Livermore Jr. of San Rafael, state secretary for resources, has been offered the post of undersecretary of th interior by the Nixon administration.

Livermore declined comment today on the report that he had been offered the position, but other high-ranking state Republicans said they were aware the offer had been made approximately a week ago. They did not know, however, whether Livermore would take the job.

If he accepted, Livermore would succeed Russell E. Train, recently named chairman of the White House Environmental Council. The job pays $40,000 a year compared with the the $35,000 Livermore is paid as resources secretary.

Livermore was named administrator of the State Resources Agency in Janurary 1967 and heads five departments—parks and recreation, fish and game, conservation, water resources, and harbors and watercraft.

He is considered one of the administration's strongest executives and presumably would be under pressure from the governor to remain in Sacramento.

Philippine Peso Is Devaluated

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine government announced today a "free market exchange rate for the peso, starting immediately. The central bank described is as an alternative to devaluation but it had the same effect.

When banks open Monday, the $1, now traded for 3.90 pesos, is expected to bring from 5.50 to 6 pesos.

VICTORY FOR REAGAN

Regents Up Cost For Cal Studies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Breaking a century-old tradition, the University of California Board of Regents has decided to charge students tuition for the first time.

The decision to impose tuition —which the Regents termed an "educational fee"—came in a 16-6 vote Friday. It was a personal and political victory for Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor had urged ending the tuition-free tradition at the 106,000-student, nine-campus university system ever since the Regents fired Clark Kerr as university president in 1967.

At present, California residents pay $300 a year in fees for medical and other non-educational services, but do not tuition—the actual cost of their education. The average cost for all expenses is $2,400 a year.

The Regents established a tuition schedule requiring undergraduates to pay an extra $150 this autumn and an extra $300 in September, 1971.

Tuition for graduate students will be $180 this fall and $360 next year. The new "educational fee" schedule will also apply to out-of-state students who, unlike residents, already pay tuition.

Income from tuition was estimated at $18 million the first year and double that the second, The tuition will be placed in a special fund to be spent at the discretion of the Regents.

The new tuition charge, however, will not apply to medical, dental or pharmacy students at the 102-year-old university. Their fees will be discussed at the Regents' meeting next month.

The Regents' decision to charge tuition was expected to

Israeli-Bound Jetliner Falls; Second Blasted

WUERENLINGEN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swissair passenger plane bound for Israel crashed in a forest several hundred yards from Switzerland's first atomic research reactor Saturday. All 47 persons aboard, including 11 Israelis, were killed.

Listed among them was one of Israel's top heart specialists, Dr. Hanoch Milvitzky of Hadassah hospital in Jerusalem.

The plane had taken off from Zurich on a flight to Tel Aviv. had radioed the control tower Airport officials said the pilot that there was a fire aboard and had been instructed to return to Zurich. He acknowledged the message and was heading back when the plane went down, the officials said.

Some witnesses said they heard an explosion as the plane approached Wuerenlingen at low altitude. Others said the aircraft was on fire as it fell into the forest and exploded on impact.

The shock wave broke window panes in nearby houses.

Airport officials said the plane, a Conrado manufactured by General Dynamics Corp., disintegrated in the crash.

Witnesses crowded around the crash scene as police and investigators combed the wreckage. Bodies were strewn around and some were wedged between the branches of trees.

In Tel Aviv, dozens of Israeli families converged on Lod In-

State Coaches Bloc Claims Hirsute Athletes Girlish

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO—Claiming that long hair on boys "connotes feminity," the California Coaches Association yesterday urged a federal judge to uphold Redwood High School's short-hair rule that ousted four runners from the track team.

The association filed a friend-of-the-court brief with Judge George B. Harris of U.S. District Court, who gave the four runners until March 3 to file a reply.

Their attorney, Paul Halvonik, called the coaches' brief "a slur on our founding fathers," who had long hair.

Harris has restored the four boys, Kevin and Brian Pusser, David Silverman and Bryan Tracy, to the track team until a decision in their suit, which charges the school violated their constitutional rights by kicking them off the team for long hair.

Harris yesterday extended his temporary restraining order against the school, allowing the students to work out with the team. Track competition starts next month.

The haircut regulation, Halvonik said, "is an attempt to promote a certain view and though. . .If a school can tell students how long their hair should be, it can tell students where to part it. It is an attempt to have them look and think alike."

North Viets Capture Laos Post, Ambush U.S. Troops In Vietnam

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Swept from the Plain of Jars by an overwhelming North Vietnamese blow, the Laotian government garrison retreated in confusion Saturday with a third of its force dead or missing.

"There is utter confusion and chaos," said a high Laotian army officer. "We do not know where the government units are, whether the wounded are still lying on the plain or whether they have got into the mountains."

The government garrison of 1,500 men based at Xieng Khouang was hit by 6,000 North Vietnamese supported by tanks. By midday the enemy controlled nearly all the plain. Officials said more than 500 defenders were killed or missing. North Vietnamese losses were unknown.

Sources in Saigon said U.S. fighter-bombers from bases in Thailand said Laos' tiny air force flew more than 200 sorties trying to stay the North Vietnamese advance.

Military sources in Vientiane reported the North Vietnamese had concentrated 20,000 troops in the area of the plain, 125 miles northeast of Vientiane.

The remainder of the 10,000-man force of Gen. Vang Pao, the Laotian commander, was preparing for a bitter stand to deend fhis headquarters at Long Cheng, 30 miles southwest of the plain.

The North Vietnamese opened their campaign Feb. 12 to capture the plain, which controls vital roads leading from North Vietnam. Three times they attacked the airfield at Xieng Khouang with smaller units and were repulsed.

Antipollution Students Bury New Car Despite Protest By Blacks

By JIM CHURCH

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A cross made of rusted automobile mufflers marks the grave of a brand new car, buried in ceremonies climaxing San Jose State College's weeklong antipollution festival, "Survival Faire."

The car, bought with $2,500 collected by students, was buried Friday eight feet deep in a lawn between the Music Building and the cafeteria.

Its stering column was locked and an alarm buzzer was attached to deter anyone from trying to exhume it.

Members of the Black Students Union, carrying signs saying "Ecology Is Not the Issue" and "Don't Bury the Car, Bury the System," demonstrated against the burial.

"We are opposed to the waste of $2,500 when our people are starving," said Mike Torrance, a BSU spokesman. He demanded the equivalent in money for "the oppressed blacks and browns of the community."

The ceremonies continued smoothly after $500 was collected in hats passed among a gravesite crowd of 10,000.

Sociology Prof. John G. Sperling, whose Humanities 160 class arranged the Survival Faire, said the donations would be given to the campus Economic Opportunity Program.

Local car dealers had criticized the burial of a new car, pointing out that older cars emit five times as many polluting hydrocarbons.

Gov. Ronald Reagan called it a silly idea, suggesting the car be raffled off to benefit an antismog group.

Why bury a new car?

"We wanted to shake up Detroit," said Mark Tigan, a prelaw student who codirected the festival. "An old car wouldn't make such an impact."

OAKLAND (UPI) — Police have arrested the operator of an ice cream parlor across the street from a junior high school on suspicion of possession of heroin.

George Schuyler, 52, Castro Valley, was picked up Friday after 70 balloons containing a substance believed to be heroin were found in a sack hidden in the ice cream mixing machine.

Russ Deny Blast

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet officials today denied speculative reports that a nuclear submarine plant in the Gorky area exploded two weeks ago and polluted the Volga River with radioactive waste.

"The thing is such absurb nonsense," a Soviet diplomatic said. "We cannot dignify it with a formal denial."

Baby Rescued

OZARK, Ala. (UPI)—Searchers found tiny kidnap victim Shaun Yvette McLeroy Friday night, wrapped in a yellow blanket and hidden in a clunp of sagebrush. She apparently suffered no ill effects from her 34-hour adventure.

A mystery note, stuffed in the mailbox of the four-month-old girl's parents, told them where to find her.

Concern had been intense at this Army Base city after the child was taken Thursday from the parked car of her 19-year-old mother who had run into a grocery store. Shaun Yvette suffers from a dangerous form of epilepsy and doctors had feared she would die if she did not receive medication.

Death In Korea

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea said today its sentries had shot and killed an armed spy sent across the North Korean border by "the U.S. imperialist aggressor army."

Nigeria Disaster

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Fifty-two persons who survived a train disaster this week were killed when the truck taking them to a hospital overturned, reports reaching Lagos today said.

They had lived through a train derailment that killed more than 100 persons on Tuesday in central Nigeria's Benue Plateau state.

Eric Hoffer Is Retiring

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—ERIC Hoffer says the United States has become "a nation of cowards." So, at age 70, the self-educated longshoreman who rose to national prominence is retiring from public life.

"We have become a nation of cowards," the noted philosopher-author-columnist-television personality said Friday. "We used to be a country with courage. I am worried about a country in which people will not speak out for what they believe.

"I don't want to die barking. I'm going to crawl back into my hole where I started," he added.

Schrade Asks Gift Probe

By DENNIS J. OPATRNY

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A member of the Legislative Ethics Committee suggests politicians be prohibited from receiving campaign contributions during years they are not running for office.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman recommended the restriction in the wake of the controversy arising from Senate leader Jack Schrade's acceptance of a $5,000 campaign gift from a special interest group.

"I would like to limit contributions to the year of election," said Lanterman, R-La Canada, who helped write the legislature's 1966 Code of Ethics.

Lanterman said Friday the contribution to Schrade "can be an embarrassment to the member that far in advance." He referred to the fact Schrade does not have to run for reelection until 1972.

The payment was made to the San Diego Republican in 1969 by the California Association of Thrift and Loan Companies when he was vice chairman of a key committee hearing a multi-million-dollar bill relating to the lending industry.

The association backed the measure that Schrade voted for in committee and on the floor, where it was defeated.

Schrade, who has asked the ethics panel to investigate the circumstances surrounding the contribution, claims his vote is not connected with the sum, which he said was deposited in his campaign fund.

"I feel my name has been defamed," he said when informing a newsman of his request for the probe.

Injured Fireman Has Surgery In Novato

Novato Fireman James Cavallero, injured in a fire on Nov. 24, was reported in good condition today at Novato General Hospital following corrective back surgery Thursday, the hospital reported.

Cavallero, son of the late fire chief George Cavallero, fell while fighting an attic fire at the Calvin Penrod home at 853 Rae Lane.

Behr Requests Lynch To Eye Schrade Fund

Peter H. Behr, Republican candidate for the State Senate from Marin, Napa and Solano counties, yesterday called on Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch to launch a grand jury investigation of Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego.

In a telegram to Lynch, Behr, of Mill Valley, requested the inquiry in connection with an alleged $5,000 campaign contribution by a savings and loan association to Schrade, president pro-tem of the Senate.

JUDGE'S EFFIGY BURNED—Demonstrators in Eugene, Ore., applaud the burning of an effigy of Federal Judge Julius Hoffman, during a rally protesting the sentencing of the "Chicago 7." One of the defendents, John Froines, is an assistant professor of chemistry at the University of Oregon in Eugene.

Maximum Terms, $5,000 Fines Meted In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The five men convicted in the riot trial were given nearly two hours to speak in the courtroom before Judge Julius J. Hoffman sentenced each to five years in prison and a fine of $5,000 plus court costs totalling about $60,000.

The 74-year-old judge passed sentence Friday in U.S. District Court on the five men convicted of crossing state lines with the intent of inciting rioting during the week of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The judge also ruled that the prison terms would run concurrent with the contempt sentences he imposed last weekend on the defendants and their two lawyers.

The prison terms were the maximum allowable under the federal antiriot law, but the judge could have fined each man $10,000.

In sentencing David T. Dellinger, 54; Jerry C. Rubin, 31; Abbott H. "Abbie" Hoffman, 31; Thomas E. Hayden, 30, and Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29, the judge did not mention jury fees.

Judge Hoffman ruled that the defendants cannot be released from prison until the court costs and fines are paid, but the five men could avoid the payments by declaring themselves paupers.

Two codefendants, John R. Froines, 31, and Lee Weiner, 31, were acquitted by the jury of 10 women and 2 men.

At the midwinter meeting of the American Bar Association in Atlanta, Ga., the Individual Rights and Responsibilities section decided to have a committee investigate various aspects of the five-month trial and report at its next meeting in May.

In the courtroom statements, Dellinger told the judge, "I think you are a man who has had too much power over too many people for too long . . . You are like George III of England (king during the American Revolution.) You are trying to hold back the tide of history."

Davis said, "I hope that I will be allowed out by 1976, and when I do come out I'm going to move right next door to Tom Foran (prosecuting attorney). I'm going to organize his kids into the revolution."

Hayden told the judge that his conviction would not halt the dissent of young people in America. "They're doing things now in the streets that we never did in Chicago during the convention week. One year later, the very thing they (the government) thought they could prevent by prosecuting us in happening, an interstate riot."

There were demonstrations Friday in seven cities.

Los Angeles police arrested 28 persons after a crowd of 500 refused to disperse near the campus of the University of California.

Jerry Rubin councluded his presentencing speech by saying, "This is the happiest day in my life." He told newsmen that he and the other four convicted men did not like jails. "Don't salve your consciences by saying we're revolutionaries and that we don't mind jails. We have tears in our eyes."

Rubin offered Judge Hoffman a copy of his book, "Do It," inscribed: "Julius, you have radicalized more young people than we ever did. You are the greatest yippie."

Abbie Hoffman compared the rebellious acts of the defendants to the Founding Fathers. "George Washington grew hemp. He was probably a pot head . . . Ben Franklin had 17 illegitimate kids."

ternational Airport to find out whether relatives or friends were aboard the airliner. They clustered around the airport's Swissair office, anxiously awaiting a passenger lists. Many were in tears.

Israel is still recovering from the shock of the grenade attack at the Munich airport on a group of El Al Israeli airline passengers 10 days ago. One man was killed and a top Israeli actress, lost a leg in that incident.

Almost immediatele after the crash an investigation commission was dispatched to the scene by helicopter.

Shortly before the crash near here an Austrian airliner carrying mail for Israel was forced into an emergency landing at Frankfurt, Germany, by an explosion in the baggage compartment containing the mail. None of the 38 persons aboard was injured.

The explosion ripped a hole about the size of a manhole cover in the rear section of the plane. The blast occurred 11 minutes after the Caravelle jet had taken off from Frankfurt en route to Vienna, Austria.

Police took into custody an Arab who had been aboard, a police spokesman said. There was no immediate elaboration. They also questioned other passengers.

district's attorney, argued the rule is a legitimate exercise of the athletic department's concern, imposed for health reasons to protect the athletes' performance and safety. It also teaches discipline and enhances morale, he said.

"We can't prove hair a half inch longer or shorter would be better," he said. "It is admittedly an arbitrary point, but it is reasonable."

Halvonik argued that the hair argument is not trivial when the school can bar athletes from sports because of it. "If that is trivial," he said, "I can't imagine what would be a substantial invasion of our rights."

Solano County Says Local Pollution Control Needed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Solano County officials say air pollution can best be controlled through local administration.

Wallace Brazelton, chairman of the Solano County Board of Supervisors, headed a delegation appearing before the Assembly Local Government Committee in opposition to two measures intended to force Solano, Napa and Sonoma counties into the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Brazelton, County Counsel Milton Goldinger and County Adminstrator David Balmer said Solano and Napa counties instead should form their own air pollution control district "separate and apart" from the six-county district based in San Francisco.

"From an economics consideration, Solano and Napa counties should not be placed in a position where they will be obligated to contribute tax funds to maintain air pollution control for the entire Bay Area which would be out of proportion to its contribution of pollutants in the atmosphere," Brazelton said.

Chief administrative officer D. J. Callaghan of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District urged the committee to bring the three north bay counties into the district.

He was supported be Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, chairman of the committee hearing the bills, and Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose.

Assemblyman John F. Dunlap D-Napa, supported the plea for a separate Solano-Napa district.

The committee continued the hearing until March 12 to hear testimony from Napa and Sonoma county officials.

The smog district invited the three counties to join last fall after hearing complaints that agricultural and open dump burning in the three northern counties was adding to Bay Area air pollution.

The Bay Area district severely restricts agricultural burning and has totally banned not only all open dump burning but even back yard incinerators and all other outdoor fires except barbeques.

REGENTS

result eventually in fee increases for the 180,000 students in the State College system. That would require a change by the State Legislature in current law limiting fees at the State Colleges.

The vote came after an all-day session at the San Francisco Extension campus during which the Regents worked out a compromise between two competing tuition plans.

One plan was backed by Reagan and the other by UC President Charles J. Hitch. The plans differed principally in semantics, with Reagan wanting to use the word "tuition" and Hitch a "fee increase." The Regents finally decided on "educational fee."

The tuition plan adopted provided that students in financial need may defer payment of charges until after graduation on conditions similar to those of student loans.

A resolution passed by the Regents included a statement reversing California's historic position that the state should provide free public higher education.

The resolution said the university now accepted "the general concept that the student is economically responsible for part of his educational costs."

Reagan was obviously pleased with the result, but showed irritation in four hours of discussion of some ten proposed amendments to the plan.

Regent Frederick G. Dutton, an anti-tuition leader, protested that not enough discussion was allowed and charged " gag, on top of a railroad, on top of a deal."

Hitch voted against the majority. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty was absent.

He expressed concern for the children of the poor and worries about a "negative dowry" of college women whose future husbands eventually would be responsible for their debt obligation to the university.

Tuition was nearly unanimously opposed by faculty and students, some of whom donated blood to be sold to finance advertisements opposing tuition.

Mrs. Jordan May Seek Her Ailing Husband's Job

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The wife of Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan is "seriously considering" running for the job held by her ailing husband.

Mrs. Jordan, 56, a Republican like her husband, confirmed she is giving the race consideration.

Jordan has been mute and paralyzed for months as a result of a stroke.

If Mrs. Jordan ran, her name would have to appear on the state ballot as "Alberta Jordan" rather than as Mrs. Frank Jordan because the law prohibits the use of a name other than one's own.

Jordan and his late father held the secretary of state job for most of this century. His father, Frank C. Jordan, was secretary of state for 30 years. Jordan, 81, first was elected to the office in 1942.

Syrian, Israeli Forces Battle

By HAL McCLURE

TEL AVIV (AP(— Fighting flared briefly today between Syrian and Israeli forces across the occupied Golan Heights of Syria.

The Israelis said Syrian army troops fired two cannon shells at an Israeli patrol and an Israeli army post.

The Israelis returned the fire in both incidents and reported no casualties or damage.

Arab guerrillas in Jordan opened up with machine guns on an Israeli patrol passing near the Sea of Galilee, the Israelis said. The fire was returned.

Israeli security forces have detained 21 Israeli Arabs in northern Israel who are suspected of having links with Arab sabotage organizations, the Israeli national police reported today.

New York Bombings

NEW YORK (AP) — A series of firebombings and small explosions early today hit near a Greenwich Village police station, the home of the judge in the Black Panther bomb-conspiracy trial and two military recruiting booths in Brooklyn. Police said none caused damage or injuries.

LAOS

Phouma pledged earlier this week that government forces would hold the plain, which is 50 miles long and 20 miles wide.

U.S. officials had counseled against trying to hold the plain against the strong North Vietnamese forces. They said the plain's strategic value was doubtful and not worth the casualties.

While the plain is of little value to the Laotian government, it is was vital to the North Vietnamese. They need it to guard the Ho Chi Minh Trail through eastern Laos over which they send men and supplies to South Vietnam.

More than 15,000 civilians living in the plain were evacuated in a massive airlift a few days before the enemy push and thus were spared being caught in the fighting.

Elsewhere, a North Vietnamese force hiding in hedgerows has ambushed a U.S. armored unit south of Da Nang, killing more Americans than in any single previous battle this year, military spokesmen said Saturday in South Vietnam.

In a five-hour battle, 14 Americans were killed and 29 wounded, the spokesmen reported. Four North Vietnamese bodies were found on the battlefield.

Elsewhere in the north, a 101st Airborne Division unit was hit by enemy fire in jungled mountains 16 miles southwest of Hue, losing two killed and eight wounded.

In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers launched heavy attacks Saturday against North Vietnam's main supply route through Laos in the campaign aimed at forestalling a new Communist command offensive in South Vietnam.

It marked the third time this week that the eight-jet Stratofortresses had been diverted from targets in South Vietnam to saturate North Vietnamese supply depots along the Ho Chi Minh trail in eastern Laos.

Informed sources said at least 25 B52 bombers unleashed 750 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese supply depots in eastern Laos.

Over South Vietnam, only one B52 mission totaling five bombers was reported during the 24-hour period ending at 2 p.m. Saturday. This mission struck at enemy troop concentrations and staging areas in Phuoc Tuy Province, 46 miles southeast of Saigon.

Rogers Talks With Ghana's Leaders

ACCRA Ghana (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers conferred in the 17th century Christiansborg Castle today with Ghana's ruling military triumvirate and Prime Minister Kofi Busia.

American officials said Rogers informed Busia the United States was willing to consider a new $15 million loan for Ghana's economic development. Rogers arrived for a 24-hour visit to Ghana Friday night and was due to leave later today for Monrovia Oiberia, the last stop on his 10-nation Africa tour.

Hawaii Abortion Bill Is Gaining

HONOLULU (UPI)—A landmark bill to give Hawaii the most liberal abortion law in the United States has passed its major hurdle and is only a step from becoming a law.

The house of representatives passed the bill Friday after a week of delays. The Senate was scheduled to vote Tuesday on the bill—and to approve it by a wide margin.

The measure would make an abortion an individual choice of mother and doctor — not matter of criminal law. An abortion could be performed:

—By a licensed physician in a state-licensed hospital.

—On a woman who has lived in Hawaii at least 90 days.

Wallace 'Proud' To Visit Calley

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says he was "proud" to visit with Lt. William L. Calley Jr., accused of murdering 102 Vietnamese civilians.

Wallace and Calley met Friday for about 75 minutes. After the meeting, Wallace, a third-party presidential candidate in 1968, said they "talked in general about the situation in Vietnam and discussed the problems in generalities."

Wallace said Calley's case was not discussed.

L. A. Police Break Huge Burglary Ring

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A total of 16 persons were under arrest today in a huge burglary ring police think committed more than 1,000 burglaries in Southern California.

Police said Friday that officials had recovered more than $40,000 in merchandise taken in burglaries in Los Angeles, Orange and San Bernardino counties during the past two years.

benefits, housing, food and other allowances from $301 to $437 a month.

Critics have contended the commission was missing a major point in pursuit of an all-volunteer force by minimizing additional benefits for veteran servicemen. These critics contend a viable all-volunteer force is not possible unless enough skilled veterans are kept in uniform.

Basic pay of lieutenants in their first year would be raised from an average level of $428 a month to $578 and their total compensation, including allowances, from $717 a month to $869 a month.

The commission said an all-volunteer force would "minimize government interference with the freedom of the idividual to determine his own life in accord with his own values," while removing what are called present inequities for first term servicemen and promoting efficiency and dignity of the armed forces.

"We are, of course, fully aware of the current and frequently emotional public debate on national priorities, foreign policy and the military, but are agreed that such issues stand apart from the question of when and how to end conscription," the commission said in its 211-page report.

The commission noted and rejected a number of objections raised to the all-volunteer concept.

"The frequently heard claim that a volunteer force will be all black or all this or all that, simply has no basis in fact," the report said in challenging the idea that higher pay will attract more Negroes than whites.

Challenging the idea that an all-volunteer force would stimulate foreign military adventures by the United States, the commission said:

"To the extent that there is pressure to seek military solutions to foreign policy problems, such pressure already exists and will not be affected by ending conscription. The volunteer force will have the same professional leadership in the present mixed force."

The commission further disputed the idea that an all-volunteer force will lack the flexibility to expand rapidly in times of a sudden crisis.

It noted it has recommended a standby draft "which can be put into effect promptly if circumstances require mobilization of large numbers of men."

Prowling Suspect Faces Charges

Paul Edward Phillips, 18, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary and of possessing marijuana and stolen property after he allegedly was caught prowling at the home of Valentine R. Field, 914 Valley View Lane, Mill Valley, sheriff's deputies said today.

Field, of no known address, was awakened be a prowler and held Phillips at bay with a shotgun while his wife called the sheriff's department, the report said.

When arrested, Phillips was found to possess a corncob pipe containing suspected marijuana and a payroll check and personal checks belonging to Jerry M. Rosa, Surfside 1, Gate 5, Sausalito, deputies said.

Phillips remains in Marin County Jail on $200 bail. He is scheduled for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

Soviets Release Pair Of Prisoners

MOSCOW (AP) — A Belgian and a Norwegian, who had been sentenced by Soviet courts to one year in a labor camp in separate but similar cases for scattering political leaflets, were released today and expelled from the Soviet Union, their embassies reported.

Victor Van Brantegeme of Belgium was put on a plane from Moscow to Copenhagen, his embassy said. At about the same time, Norwegian student Gunnar Gjengset was put on a train from Leningrad to Helsinki, the Norwegian embassy reported.

Washington's Birthday Delays Some Meetings

The celebration of Washington's Birthday on Monday has caused some Marin governmental agencies to postpone their meetings, while others will meet as usual.

Among the groups whose Monday meetings have been changed are: Lagunitas School District board, to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at San Geronimo School; Mill Valley Planning Commission, 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall; Mill Valley Park and Recreation Commission, 8 p.m. Tuesday at the library; Novato Planning Commission, 8 p.m. March 9 at the Community House, and the Tiburon City Council, 7:15 p.m. Thursday at city hall.

Among the organizations which will meet Monday are: Sausalito School District board, 7:30 p.m. at the district office; Fair-Marin, 8 p.m. in Room 400 of the Civic Center; Kentfield School District board, 8 p.m. at Wolfe Grade School; Almonte Sanitary District board, 8 p.m. at 152 Almonte Boulevard, Mill Valley, and the Homestead Valley Sanitary District board, 8:30 p.m. at Homestead School.

The Reed School District board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Bel Aire School to discuss the district's budget.

Young Trio Denies Varied Charges

Three young men arrested Thursday by the California Highway Patrol after being stopped for erratic driving pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to drug and other charges.

A preliminary hearing was set for March 3 for Frank Garcia, 21, of Daly City, and Paul Einar LaFabregue, 23, of San Francisco. Garcia is charged with driving while under the influence of amphetamine (speed), possessing amphtamine and narcotics paraphernalia and having a loaded pistol in his car.

LaFabregue is accused of being under the influence of speed and possessing the drug as well as having paraphernalia.

The case of a third man, Gary Neil Baldridge, 31, of San Francisco, who is accused of being under the influence of speed, was continued to March 20 for setting of a trial. Baldridge is to be returned to San Francisco for probation violation, his attorney said yesterday, and may be sent to state prison.

Mail Supports Reagan's Stand

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan's correspondence is running heavily in favor of his stand against involuntary school busing to achieve racial integration, a sampling of his mailbag showed today. The tally since Tuesday: 69 to three.

"Please keep up the good work as you are the champion of the silent majority," wrote a San Fernando man.

But a Redwood City man who called himself a "middle-class white" told Reagan in a telegram he was "very distressed that apparently the governor of my state is more interested in "vigorously opposing mandatory busing" than he is in encouraging meaningful and integrated education."

Freeway Crash Injures Four

Four San Francisco residents were injured slightly yesterday in an accident on Highway 101 on California Park hill.

Injures were George Bird, 23; Leslie Ladouceur, 33; Frieda Lunderman, 30, and Paul Ramos, 37. All four told the California Highway Patrol they would see their own doctors.

Details of the accident were not available from the highway patrol today.

If Cops Say Oink, Oink They Deserve To Be Called Pigs

DEAR HELEN:

Last year I was in sixth grade and was a patrol. Another boy and I were at a corner where there was a policeman. He was a cool guy that always joked with us. We thought he was great.

This year when I saw him again and said "Hi!" he scowled and said, "Oink, oink!"

If cops are going to act that way, they deserve to be called pigs. — KNOWS ONE

DEAR K.O.:

. . . .And maybe he's only living up to the name too many punks call him.—H.

DEAR HELEN,

I'm a Negro, and I guess a lot of my people will get mad at what I say but I have to say it.

When Martin Luther King died, we blacks rioted. When the Kennedys and President Eisenhower died, the whites mourned. They didn't go around burning and looting as we did.

We say we riot to gain our rights. Well, we aren't going to gain our rights that way.

The only way we'll do that is to sit down and talk things over. If we take a realistic view of it, the whites just might hear our words instead of our noise.

But if we keep on rioting the only thing we might accomplish is being kicked out of the U.S.

I'm only 13 so I can't change much. But I'm writing this hoping it will get in your column. I'm proud of some of my people but ashamed of others.—SPEAKING OUT

DEAR SPEAKING OUT:

"Hear our words instead of our noise"—that's a tremendous hope for the future. And young people like you—white, black, red, and yellow— can bring it off. Thanks for writing.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am the oldest of three children in my family and I get everything I want. Every time I open my mouth for something, it's mine, regardless of price.

Helen, they think they make me happy, but I don't deserve all this stuff. Other kids get punished, but I can come home as late as I want and never a word is said. I love my parents and I want them to love me, not give me everything, but never really know I'm there.

I'd like to strive for something, and earn it, then get praised for work well done. I guess this sounds crazy, but life is too easy for me. What can I do?—W.L.

DEAR W:

Why don't you go out and get a job? Then set your own goals, and stick to them. If your parents can't see the value of earned respect, you can find it elsewhere— starting with yourself. —H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

A Bridal Gown Made For Less

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I have to acquire two wedding gowns somehow this year for my two girls, and I am seriously thinking of making them. Any hints before I start would be greatly appreciated. Also, should I use a hint of color as shown in many gowns today?

MRS. H. A.

DEAR MRS. H. A.,

You would be amazed how many women make their daughters wedding gowns today, and more surprising yet is how many girls make their own wedding gowns. I know of one girl who came from a very well-to-do family, married a boy whose father was president of one of our largest companies, and she chose to make her own gown when money was really no object. Was she proud!

I would suggest that you study the bride magazines for your ideas. These gowns are pictured in such a way that you can really decide on the effect you wish. Then search the pattern books for patterns that may have to be combined for the completed gown. We often take the sleeves from one pattern, the bodice from another and the skirt from another, as long as they are compatible.

There is a vast selection waiting for you in fabrics, trimmings and handsome laces. Usually, you can make a beautiful gown for less than one third the cost of a ready-made gown. The most important advice I can give you is to be sure to allow plenty of time. There is so much last minute rush connected with weddings that you will be much too upset to do a good job or enjoy what you are doing unless you have allowed plenty of time. Believe me, your daughter will treasure her gown forever!

MRS. GLADYS Fowler, Columbus, Ohio, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"I wanted to share an easy way to make bias binding for neck edges, hems and seams. I use the same material that is used to line the garment, that way it matches perfectly.

"Cut a strip of bias the desired length and twice the desired width plus seam allowances. Take it to that great helper, your iron, and press it lengthwise with the wrong side together. It is now folded in half. Place it on the edge of the seam with raw edges together and stitch close to the edge. Turn and your edge is pressed and ready to be stitched or tacked by hand. I do hope this will help others as it has me. It is easy and always neat. The best part about it is that you don't have to run out for binding at the last minute; just make your own."

DEAR EUNICE,

With the loose fitting dresses we have all become so accustomed to in recent years, zippers in the back of our dresses were no problem. Now all of a sudden I am having great difficulty zipping up my dresses myself. Since I live alone, this can pose quite a problem. Should we go back to the side closings?

MRS. B. B.

DEAR MRS. B. B.,

I know exactly what you are talking about, having experienced the same thing myself. Recently, I went out of town for business, and when I got back to my hotel room late that evening, I absolutely couldn't get my zipper down. I decided to venture out into the hall and if nothing better, ask the elevator operator to help me out. Fortunately, I found another woman guest just coming in who came to my rescue, and we had a great laugh as we talked about the newest headache.

I don't think it's the close fit as much as the long sleeves combined with the more fitted bodice that does it. Guess we better get the old zipper-puller-uppers out but in the meantime, you can use a safety pin attached to a string and it works like a charm.

Eunice Farmer gives you key fitting points to be carefully checked in fitting in her informative booklet "Your Pattern and You." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Deborah Lee Kothgassner was wed to James Frederick Piccinini II Saturday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kothgassner Jr. of San Rafael.

Jeanette Asselin of San Rafael was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Cindy Buchan of Novato, Janet Crowhurst of San Rafael and the bridegroom's sister Jayne Piccinini of Sebastopol.

Tom Kothgassner of Sebastopol was best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by Mike Lowery, Harry Quinlan and Danny Nilsen, all of Santa Rosa.

A reception at Star Hall in San Anselmo followed the ceremony.

Deborah is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and Bay City Dental College. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kothgassner of Sebastopol and Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Harris of Novato.

James is the son of J. F. Piccinini of Santa Rosa and Mrs. Margot Piccinini of Sebastopol. He was graduated from Analy High School, attended Santa Rosa Junior College and is employed by the Roseland Fire Department in Santa Rosa. Jack and Joe Piccinini of Sebastopol and Lisa Piccinini of Santa Rosa are also his brothers and sister. He is the grandson of Mrs. Betty Piccinini and Mrs. Margot Evans, both of San Francisco.

Following a wedding trip to Los Angeles the couple will live in Santa Rosa.

ON THE AGENDA

Marin Charitable Foundation Gives $12,000 To Youth-Related Groups

Twelve thousand dollars, proceeds from the 1969 Debutant Ball, sponsored by the Marin Charitable Foundation, will be presented to five Marin County youth-related organizations Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Caroline S. Livermore Room of the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The Marin County Planned Parenthood teenage clinic will receive $5000, the Boys Club of Southern Marin arts and crafts program, $1,500, the Marin County Aid to Retarded Children, $1,500, Marin County YMCA Drop-Out Program, $3,500, and Marin County YWCA Girl-Time Program, $500.

The 1970 officers and board members of the Foundation are Mrs. Edgar Lindner, president; Mrs. John Manwaring, first vice president; Mrs. Phillip McCoy, second vice president; Mrs. Alfred P. Otto, Jr. recording secretary; Mrs. James Stapler Jr., corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Alan McLenegan, treasurer.

Members-at-large are Mrs. Harry Johnson III, Mrs. Daniel Cochran, Mrs. Gregory Solon, Mrs. William Schoenfeld and Mrs. C. Russell Johnson.

SPRING INTO Casuals is the theme of the 15th annual luncheon and fashion show of St. Patrick's Guild Tuesday at noon at the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda. Mrs. Richard Baumsteiger is decorations chairman.

Models will be Mmes. Mick Gennaro, Richard Kincaide. Victor De Martini, Charles Craycroft, Piero Sebastiani, John Lessin, Robert Jobe, William Cancilla, Gerritt Orton and Myron Rosser under the direction of Mrs. Philip Dunnigan.

Hostess chairman is Mrs. James R. Drimmel, Jr. and reservations chairmen are Mmes. Ernest T. Mock and Erney Ellison of Corte Madera.

GUEST SPEAKER at the Bethel Baptist Women's Mission Society meeting in Novato at 11 a.m. Tuesday will be the Rev. P. Lynn Miller, a missionary appointee of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies.

Reverend Miller became director of public relations and financial development, Bacone College, Muskogee, Okla. in August, 1968 following appointment by the American Baptist Convention.

A native of Iowa, Reverend Miller studied at the University of Iowa and at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon Ia., where he majored in music and voice. He holds a degree in Theology from Northwestern Baptist College and Seminary, Oakbrook, Ill.

Luncheon will follow the program.

"EXPLORING THE World at Our Finger Tips", will be the theme of Corte Madera Women's Club program, Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Recreation Center.

Braille transcriber Betty Klink, will present a demonstration of transcribing printed material into braille for the blind. Miss Klink, is a member of the Braille Transcribing Class, a public service project of the College of Marin, for volunteers.

Preceding the braille demonstration, there will be a brief review of the American Heritage Reading Series, completed by club members, Mmes. Alfred Lee, Ron Sperry and John Conkle.

"ESTATE PLANNING Through Trusts" will be discussed by William E. Lashbrook, vice president of Financial Programs, Inc., at a meeting of the Mill Valley Branch of the American University Women at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Mill Valley Community Church.

The program has been arranged by the newly formed investment study section of the organization. Introducing the program will be Christine Clausen, investment broker of Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis of San Francisco, who acts as broker for the investment club which grew out of the study section.

Lashbrook, who lives in Tiburon, represents a firm with $600 million in assets which manages a fully licensed trust company and has been managing mutual funds since 1932.

Husbands and other guests are invited.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM the Republican and Democratic Central Committees of Marin will speak at a luncheon Tuesday sponsored jointly by the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin.

Structures of the committees in the county and discussions of how a voter can be active in the party of his choice will be speakers' topics at the luncheon to be held at noon at the Pepperwood Restaurant in San Anselmo. The program continues the leagues' joint celebration of "The Year Of The Voter" as part of the League Of Women Voters' 50th anniversary nationally.

Guest speakers will be Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Gatov for the Democratic party and Mrs. Ruby Streiff for the Republican party.

Mrs. Gatov is past member of the National Central Committee for the Democratic party, a member of the Marin County Central Committee, and was treasurer of the United States under President Kennedy.

Mrs. Streiff is an associate member of the State Central Committee of the Republican party and serves as precinct director for the Marin County Republican Central Committee.

Arrangements for the luncheon have been handled by Mrs. Warren Hansen of the Southern Marin League and Mrs. H. James Compton of the central Marin League, both of whom serve as voters' service chairmen for their respective organizations.

Reservations chairmen for the luncheon are Mmes. Garret Crotty of Mill Valley and Vincent V. Mac Kenzie of Ross.

THE BETA Sigma Phi Mardi Gras dinner and dance to be held tonight at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base will begin with cocktails at 7 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m. Mrs. Donald H. Einitz is the queen candidate of the Upsilon Gamma Chapter. She is the chapter's recording secretary and has been on the social and the ways and means committees.

THE HIGH TWELVETTES of Marin will observe their 20th anniversary with a luncheon Wednesday at 1 p.m. at the Tiburon Lodge. Mrs. Oscar Deen, president, said past presidents will be honored.

ADOLESCENCE WILL be the topic at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere on Wednesday, February 25 at 9:30 a.m. when Dr. Joan Kelly, psychologist speaks to the St. Stephen's Guild. The public is welcome to attend the talk and the coffee afterward.

MRS. GEORGE H. DEXTER

Mrs. Dexter Is President

Members of the Mannequin League of Marin have elected Mrs. George H. Dexter of San Anselmo president. A three-year-member of the organization, she has served as secretary and was chairman of the Mannequin League Ball last year.

"The members, who are schooled in facets of fashion modeling, donate their time to present an average of 20 fashion shows a year and net from $300 to $1500 from each for Marin's non-profit organization," says Jeri Dexter.

"Additionally Marin's Mannequins hold their own fund raising ball in the spring and donate proceeds to the charity the league chooses. We also model for non-charitable groups, and fees charged for such services are also donated to charity."

A 13-year-resident of Marin, Mrs. Dexter has three children. Her husband is an automobile dealer.

Reading, painting, the piano, sewing, cooking and traveling are the new president's hobbies. Most of all, she says, she enjoys people and entertaining. Her other organizations are Boys Town of Italy and the Women's Auxiliary of St. Vincent's School for Boys.

MR. AND MRS. BOB LUBINOFF

Norma J. Gonzalez Is Bob Lubinoff's Bride

Norma Jean Gonzalez and Bob Lubinoff were united in marriage at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato last Saturday.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Gonzalez. She chose as her attendants. Shirley Pederson as maid of honor and Sherry Michaelis and Jackie Cecil as bridesmaids.

Vic Lubinoff served as best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mrs. Vera Lubinoff of Novato. Ushers were John Gonzales, the bride's cousin, of Milpitas and Michael Gonzales, brother of the bride.

The bride was graduated from San Marin High School, and the bridegroom was graduated from Novato High School. Bob attended College of Marin and is employed at Bergman Manufacturing in San Rafael.

Miss Phillips To Receive Award

Miss Magdalene Phillips of Mill Valley, blinded by an eye disease in her childhood, has been selected as the Army Handicapped Employee for 1969. She is a 12 year federal employee at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, where she operates a dictating machine transcriber in the hospital's physical medicine service.

She will travel to Washington, D. C., next month to receive the Meritorious Civilian Service Award.

In Marin Miss Phillips became the first operator of a completely braille switchboard for Guide Dogs for the Blind of San Rafael. She had previously worked as a medical secretary in Oregon.

Miss Phillips was honored in the past for her four year contribution to the National Safety Council, instructing children in traffic safety.

GUEST LECTURER — Dr. Paul F. Brandwein, president of the Center for the Study of Instruction in San Francisco, will speak March 10 at 4 p.m. at a Dominican College health education workshop for teachers and nurses. The workshop, to be held at Bertrand Hall, is co-sponsored by the college and the Marin Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Butterflies are not just restricted to warmer climates; more than 40 species are found in the Arctic Circle.

Youth Vote Drive Plea For Help

Chairman Mark W. Tracy of the Marin Youth Commission issued an appeal yesterday for adult help in circulating petitions to get the question of a lowered voting age on the statewide November ballot.

Tracy said Marin's quota is 10,000 signatures, and the commission hopes to obtain most of them Monday, dubbed 18-year-old Vote Day in California He appealed for registered voters to circulate petitions and to sign them because youths cannot legally do so.

Any adult volunteer who wants to help may contact the Switchboard of Marin or one of the following area coordinators:

MILL VALLEY AREA—George Kewin, 69 Fairway Drive; Ann O'Reilly, 2 Bigelow Avenue.

SAUSALITO—Mrs. Richard V. Brady, Waldo Point.

BELVEDERE — Paul Kraus 89 Bellevue Avenue.

ROSS—Ann Bennett, Makin Road.

SAN RAFAEL—Gary Sanford, 6 Maywood Way; Bill Lawler, 65 Oakridge Road.

MARIN CITY — Horace White, 59 Cole Drive.

NOVATO—Mark W. Tracy, 425 Alameda Del Prado.

MARSHALL—Madelyne Angress, 21300 Shoreline Highway.

The commission is helping a statewide group called Independent Volunteers for Vote Extension (INVOLVE) to gather signatures. A total of 520,000 signatures is needed to place the measure, aimed at lowering the voting age to 18, on the November ballot.

Deadline for filing the petitions is April 6 but the commission would like to collect all the signatures by March 6 in order to tabulate them.

Tracy said more than 2,000 signatures have been collected already in Marin by Lotte Schiller of Mill Valley ,Marin coordinator for INVOLVE.

Ferryboat Runs To Ignore Holiday

The Tuburon ferry will make its regular runs Monday, despite the Washington's Birthday holiday.

Ferries will leave Tiburon at 7, 8:20 and 10 a.m., and 12:30, 1:50, 3:10, 4:40, 6:10 and 7:40 p.m.

Ferries will leave San Francisco at 7:40, 9 and 11:50 a.m., and 1:10, 2:30, 4, 5:30 and 7 p.m.

Committee To Select Mental Health Official

A nine-man committee to select a program director for mental health services will be recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

The director would succeed Dr. Donald P. Wilson, current head of the mental health center at Marin General Hospital, and have authority over both inpatient and outpatient mental health programs.

Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, who was appointed last week as county director of community mental health services, would handle the administrative work, leaving all program matters to Wilson's successor.

With this clear split in duties, the supervisors hope to avoid feuds such as that which developed between Wilson and the former county director of mental health services, Dr. Clyde G. Miller.

Ray K. Bolinger, administrator of Marin General Hospital, and Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella will recommend to the board that the selection committee nominate three candidates for the job of program chief. The supervisors and hospital directors will make the final appointment. The new program chief is scheduled to start with the new fiscal year in July.

Bolinger and Campanella will recommend that the committee consist of: Bolinger; County Administrator Alan Bruce; Cooke; Dr. Bradford Simmons, chief of staff of Marin General Hospital; one representative of the Marin County Psychiatric Society; and four from the mental health advisory board—George Monardo, Miss Martha Valliant, Dr. Richard W. Brunstetter and Jack Williams.

Wildlife Film Set

"Tidewater Trails," a film of wildlife in Tidewater, Virginia, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Olney Hall at the College of Marin as the fourth program in an Audubon wildlife series cosponsored by the Marin Audubon Society and the college. Charles T. Hotchkiss, nature photographer who made the film on historic Jamestown Island, will narrate.

Beethoven's 'Lost' Notebooks Published

BERLIN (Toronto News Service)—A batch of Beethoven's "forgotten" personal notebooks, stolen by a spy working behind the Iron Curtain in 1950, are to be published in East Germany in March.

Their publication—almost 150 years after they were written—are likely to arouse considerable interest, for they show the music genious to have been a more human, understanding person than he was thought to be.

They reveal, too, that the maestro, contrary to legend, was not without humor. Arguing the merits of a conductor's wife with a friend, he scribbles in one notebook: "A magnificent bottom-side view."

When his nephew Karl brought home a scruffy student friend, Beethoven reacted by writing: "Poverty deserves sympathy—but there are exceptions."

The Ulbricht regime values the hitherto unpublished notebooks at more than 250,000 pounds and keeps the collection—there are 137 of them—in two strongrooms in the Staatsbibliothek (state library) in East Berlin.

Six years ago the State commissioned the library's music director, Dr. Karl-Heinz Kohler, 40, to begin the huge task of editing them.

Beethoven took to using notebooks when he went deaf between 40 and 45. He would get visitors to jot down their questions, and sometimes would write his replies rather than speak them.

Often after their departure, he would write down observations about them.

The James Bond-like adventures of the booklets in the 1950's occurred after a double-agent hired by both the West Germans and the Poles worked his way up to the job of music director at the library.

On fleeing to the Federal Republic, the spy took with him the notebooks and many other treasured manuscripts.

When the full extent of his espionage activities became known in Bonn, he was arrested and thrown in jail.

Years later, after "cold war" wrangling, the booklets were safely returned to Communist East Berlin.

Dr. Kohler said in East Berlin recently that attempts to publish the notebooks were made, but were interrupted by the two world wars. Only 40 have been printed to date.

"The other 97 are of tremendous importance, dealing with the final years of Beethoven's life. From the notebooks I have edited, it is clear that a new 'character image' of Beethoven emerges. It is undoubtedly a more human image."

The notebooks give a much better picture of Beethoven's final months than anything previously known.

"They reveal that he continued to work and never complained of his illness. He apparently read a great deal of Sir Walter Scott at the time, and in a written conversation on March 5, 1827, three weeks before his death he discusses the relative merits of the various German editions of Shakespeare.

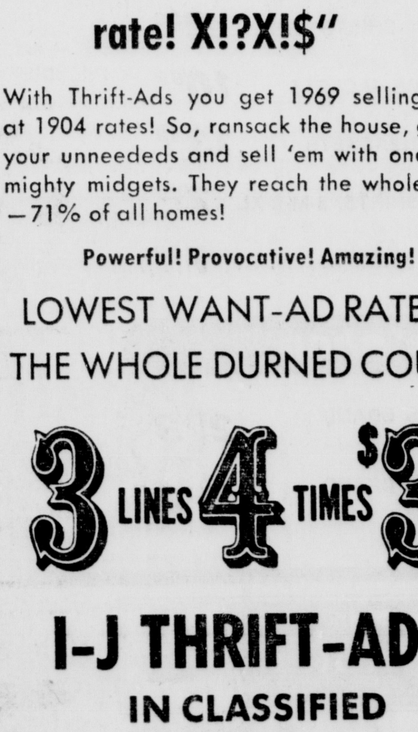
Dr. Kohler has been puzzled by long columns of addition entered by Beethoven in the booklets. Notation suggests he was given a book on the basics of multiplication.

"The conclusion seems to be," says Dr. Kohler, "That the man who dreamed up the 9th Symphony, taken so early as he was out of Bonn public schools to play piano at the Duke's court, had never learned his multiplication tables."

One time, Beethoven wrote that his nephew Karl said: "The lover of the maid was just here. He intends to marry her because she is pregnant. Now he demands that you let her go as soon as possible because she is very sick."

Beethoven replied: "There's no other way. We've got to get her out of here—otherwise we'll have a scandal on our hands."

A dramatic episode revealed involved a matter of where the 9th Symphony was to be premiered in 1824.



"You can have yer new-fangled ideas!

Communications Center Is Busy

The Marin County Communications Center is Marin's "party-line" for emergencies and informateon.

Recently settled into new quarters at the Hall of Justice, it also serves as "police headquarters" for several Marin cities, during the graveyard shift.

When a man lies severely injured on a highway, it is the communications center, that calls for an ambulance to speed to his aid and alerts the hospital emergency ward of his impending arrival.

When a suspect in an armed robbery in San Rafael speeds northward along Highway 101, a dispatcher at the center alerts Novato police to be on the lookout.

When trees topple in storms and roads are blocked on county roads, a dispatcher notifies the county works department.

It is literally at fingertip touch with police officers, firemen, ambulance drivers and other emergency personnel throughout the county.

Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, dispatchers are seated behind a long communications board, with lights blinking as radio calls are in progress, telephones at arm's reach and nearby a computerized teletype machine.

As a crew, they provide coordination among departments that can't communicate instantly with each other, police, deputies, firemen, coroner, ambulances or humane society.

A Mill Valley police officer radios that shots are being fired into the city apparently from outside the city, and the message is relayed to sheriff's deputies who have jurisdiction in the unincorporated area.

To a newcomer the radio messages that come forth are cryptic, "11x1——1008," which deciphered meant that a Belvedere police officer was back in service in his patrol unit.

This might not seem to be an earth-shaking message, but after 5 p.m. the center serves as "police headquarters" for Belvedere and dispatchers must know where officers are.

When a Belvedere resident calls his police department after 5 p.m., his call goes to the communication center, and the same holds true for residents of Tiburon after 5 p.m., Fairfax after 10 p.m. and Ross, night and day hours when there isn't anyone at the Ross station.

A call comes in from "1L39," a sheriff's deputy asking for a check on the license number of a car he is stopping, and within 30 seconds, thanks to the computerized teletype, he has his answer.

With a few taps of the keys, dispatchers can learn from the computer if there are any traffic warrants outstanding against the driver or if the car is stolen, and if necessary, get information from Washington, D.C., about out-of-state cars.

It was a quiet night Monday as three dispatchers, Victor Wright of Novato, Ronald Kiesel of Petaluma and Thomas Richardson of Terra Linda manned the swing shift, but there was a fair share of license checks.

Late in the shift, Henry Alvernaz of Novato, chief dispatcher, dropped in to see how things were going for the night crew, and they recalled how voices with "southern accents" pop out of the speaker from time to time as faraway stations drift in.

"The skips are still with us," said Alvarnaz, who singled out for recognization, "that Mexican oil drilling outfit."

As for the volume of calls, Alvernaz pointed out that last month, for example, "There were 10,000 calls on the police circuit, 9,000-plus on the local government circuit, and more than 1,000 on the fire circuit."

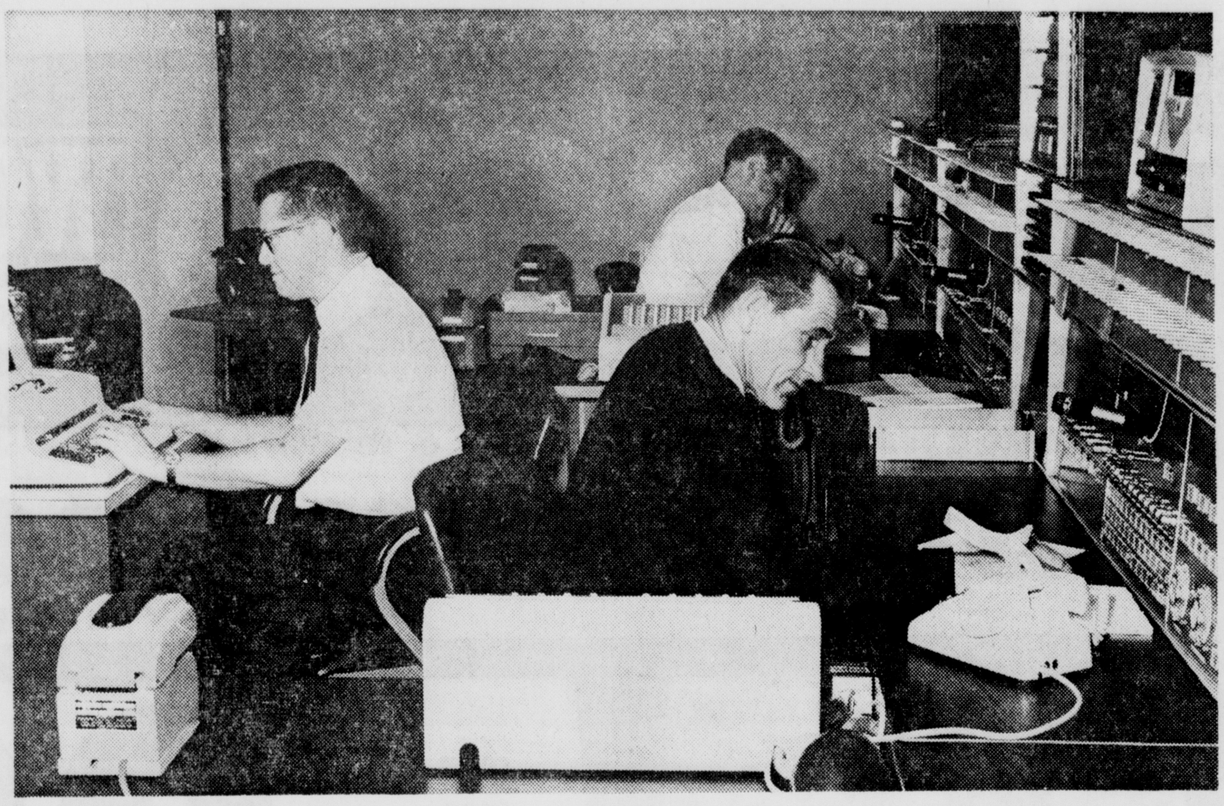
By calling the center, a police officer can get assistance from other officers, an ambulance, a check on a gun or stolen property or a tow truck or a Pacific Gas and Electric crew.

Working in an adjoining room was teletypeoperator Cheri Velasco of San Rafael, who was sending out messages for information about various individuals requested by the sheriff's office, district attorney's office, probation officers and Marin courts.

The center, also monitors of a bank of burglar alarm lights, set atop the communications board.

When the alarm bell rings, dispatchers radio the location to the law enforcement agency involved. Dispatchers also listen to California Highway Patrol radio calls, with a view toward providing local assistance to CHP officers if needed.

With all these connections, it appears that if anything is happening in Marin, the communications center will be the first to know, and they're in a position to tell everyone else about it.



SENDING AND RECEIVING — Messages and information are the life blood of the Marin County Communications Center at the Hall of Justice, the link that binds police, fire and other emergency personnel. Dispatcher Thoman Richardson of Terra Linda (left) makes a license check through a computerized teletype machine from a city police officer to a sheriff's deputy, while Ronald Kiesel of Petaluma, fills in his log after sending an ambulance to an automobile accident. Larkspur Bike Paths On List

The Larkspur section of the Marin County bicycle path system will be considered by the Larkspur Planning Commission when it meets at 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall.

The park and recreation commission has recommended the planners and the city council approve the plan, and approve a proposal to use levees along Corte Madera Creek as part of an internal bicycle path system.

The commission also will consider ordinance amendments to change minimum floor area requirements, and is to choose new officers for 1970.

High School Bids Prove A Puzzle In Mill Valley

Mill Valley School Destrict officials have opened construction bids for the proposed 48-classroom middle school and found them considerably higher than expected.

How much higher was in doubt, however, because of a complicated bidding procedure, Supt. James A. Collins said. The procedure also left unclear the identity of the low bedder.

Bids for total construction from three firms Thursday ranged from $3.4 million to $3.5 million, although 25 alternate bids, which could change the figures, where made. Collins said the most recent unofficial estimate of constructeon costs by district architects was $2.6 million.

Collins said he architects and school staffhad begun detailed review of the various proposals to determine the lowest bidder. The school was originally scheduled to open in September, but state offecials, who must approve the plans, held drawings longerthan usual for detailed review of provisions for earthquake resistance.

The school, to be located on Camino Alto, will accomodate 1,200 sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

The National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City preserves western history items from 17 western states.

A subtle message to astute attorneys:

How to obtain glorious county-wide recognition

— without shouting from the rooftops

As a practicing attorney, would it offend you if literally thousands of families became familiar with your firm name? People who just might need a lawyer—if not today, tomorrow?

Would you tear your California Code in half and curse the day? Or would you sit back and bask in the glow of knowing such recognition was coming to the right, and most deserving place?

IF YOU FEEL THAT RECOGNITION is something which is hardly deleterious to building a bigger practice, you might consider how simple, how easy if is to obtain it:

To wit: Place your legal advertising where your firm name will be seen county-wide . . . where 45,000 families (that's 71.0% by the way) are exposed to your legal escutcheon.

Place it where everyone looks—in the Independent-Journal, naturally! Where people have an insatiable curiosity for news . . . where legal notices gain amazing readership, from people who want to know who's doing what and doing it where and when. (One of our best human-interest features!)

Which means your firm name is printed 45,000 times with each legal advertisement you place. Which means you become known, recognized!

A legal notice for a client, as you can so astutely see, becomes a very legal notice of YOU.

BEATS WALKING OR DRIVING — R.E. Pauley, official for Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., displays model of the "Carveyor" system which will carry San Jose shoppers on a six-mile round trip from far - out parking lots to the San Antonio shopping area, at speeds up to 15 miles per hour.

Trial Removal Planned In I-J Violence

The attorney for most of the persons facing criminal charges stemming from last Saturday's riot outside the Independent-Journal building said yesterday in Marin Municipal Court that he plans to ask that they be tried outside of Marin County.

However, attorney Robert D. Carrow agreed to have the cases set yesterday for preliminary hearings and trials.

The first preliminary hearing in which he wishes to test his defesne will probably take two or three days, he said, as compared to the usual hour or two devoted to such matters.

He chose John Joseph DeMartini, 44, of Mill Valley, vice president of San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21, as the person to have the first hearing. It was set for March 17.

DeMartini is charged with felony assault on an officer, resisting arrest, participating in a riot, unlawful assembly, failure to disperse and remaining at a riot.

Seven other men are accused of felonies and four with various misdemeanors.

The arrests occured during a riotous demonstration called in support of the typographical union's strike against the I-J. During the rally there was extensive property damage to the I-J plant and 17 persons were injured.

Officer Buried

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A policeman killed by a bomb planted at a police station was honored Friday at a Requiem High Mass attended by 1,000 persons, including 700 fellow officers.

As a precaution, police searched St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church for bombs shortly before the funeral began for Sgt. Brian V. McDonnell, 45, victim of a terrorist's time bomb.

McDonnell was injured fatally and seven other officers were hurt Monday night when a steel pipe packed with black powder, bullets and steel fence staples exploded at the Park Station. One of the fence staples entered McDonnell's brain.

Meanwhile, contributions pushed the reward money for the capture and conviction of McDonnell's killers past $35,000.

Conveyor Belt To Haul San Jose Shopper Traffic

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—A no-wait mass transportation system which can handle as many as 22,000 persons an hour will be installed in San Jose, Calif., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. said Friday.

The proposed Carveyor Sestem will be six miles long, according to Olney G. Smith, executive director of the San Jose Redevelopment Agency.

The first phase of the project, to be started in mid-1972, will be a route from a perimiter parking lot to the San Antonio Plaza and park center project in the city's downtown area. San Jose has a population of 400,000.

Goodyear officials said the Carveyor could be the answer to some of the nation's traffic congestion problems.

The all-weather system is called the Carveyor to reflect a unique principle in which a network of conveyor belting propels small, wheelless cars that are always available for immediate boarding by passengers.

Riders board the cars from a platform moving at 1 1-2 miles an hour, the same speed as the cars pass through the station.

As the cars leave the station, they move over a bank of accelerator wheels which increase the car movement to a cruising speed of 15 miles an hour.

Decelerator wheels slow the cars at each station.

Robert E. Mercer, general manager of Goodyear's Industrial Products Division here, said the system "is the best thing man has yet been able to devise for moving people quickly and efficiently over short distances in highly congested areas."

Ticket Leads To Pot Arrest

Richard Dale Pitts, 20, of San Francisco, was arrested last night on suspicion of possessing marijuana after a Marin County sheriff's deputy stopped him for a traffic violation.

Pitts was arrested about 10:30 p.m. at an undisclosed location Shoreline Highway after sheriff's deputies found what appeared to be a small amount of marijuana in Pitts' coat.

Pitts was also arrested for several outstanding traffic warrants held by San Francisco. He was being held on $940 bail and is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Marriage Ended For Ex-Kentfield Psychiatric Chief

The marriage of former Kentfield psychiatrist Dr. Thomas P. Lowry and his wife, Frances, finally came to an end yesterday behind the closed doors of a Marin Superior Court.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered the marriage dissolved under the new California divorce law after hearing about a half an hour of testimony. At the request of Dr. Lowry's attorney, Frances Hancock of San Francisco, the courtroom was cleared of spectators.

Dr. Lowry, former chief of the psychiatric unit at Ross General Hospital, had filed for divorce in February 1968 on grounds of cruelty but later alleged that the marriage should be annuled since his divorce from his first wife was not final at the time of his marriage.

Then Mrs. Lowry filed a complaint for divorce, charging the doctor with adultery.

Dr. Lowry still faces a misdemeanor criminal charge of battery against his wife whom he is accused of attacking on June 11 at her Tiburon home.

Dr. Lowry moved last year to New Mexico, giving up his Marin practice.

Purse, Coat Gone

A purse and coat worth $308 were stolen Wednesday between 3:25 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. from the car of Virginia Meyers of Oakland while it was parked at Stinson Beach State Park, sheriff's deputies said today.

No Ad Today

What's the Use?
it's
Washington's Birthday

AND, as everybody knows, people don't read ads on Washington's Birthday or Easter, or Christmas. Or New Year's. Or in the summer.

UNFORTUNATELY, "everybody" is wrong.

ASK any readership research organization. You'll learn that people don't turn off their minds at Yuletide, Whitsuntide, high tide, or low tide.

NEWSPAPER readership doesn't go downhill during the skiing season, or the haying season.

ADVERTISING readership doesn't take a dip in the summer.

WE'VE celebrated many Washington's Birthdays at the Independent Journal. We've seen many summers. And we've learned that readership of both editorial and advertising pages stays at the same high level every day of every week and month of the year.

NO MATTER where you advertise, "season" is no reason to draw a blank with your customers and prospects.

EVEN during holidays, people read.

THANKS for helping us prove it.

And – Oh, Yes,
Have a Good Holiday!

VENDING
IS BIG BUSINESS
We have enjoyed 20 years of unparallelled integrity dealing with our customers. Our company is expanding again and requires distributors to service routes of vending machines.
ROUTES ESTABLISHED!
NO SELLING!
NO SOLICITING!
JUST PLAIN, OLD FASHIONED GOOD SERVICE!
Car is required! Six to ten hours per week can run a small route. Income commensurate with investment and effort. Earnings can grow to $1,000 per month with investment starting for as little as $1,500.
Yes, we will consider part time operators who are looking for an ideal supplemental income situation, but but he or she must be expansion minded. An intelligent company financing plan is afforded after initial investment.
Please do not waste your time or ours if you're looking to "play with a few vending machines." Sincere people who are prepared to follow this company's principles of "an honest day's pay for an honest day's work" may write.
Your first letter should contain sufficient references to verify.
All letters are personally reviewed by Mr. Cecil Ussery, President and Chairman of the Board.

WHO KNOWS WHAT EVIL
LURKS IN THE HEART OF USED CARS?

We invite you to compare our cars with others. Because we at Felton's know a used car can be a thing of beauty on the outside and a mass of corruption on the inside. Our 16-point inspection takes us to parts of the car rarely traveled by used car dealers When we find it pure at heart . . . then it's ready for you.

Good Can Still Triumph Over Evil!

Marin Prisoner Load To Drop?

A mid-year survey of California's probation subsidy program indicates that expected commitments of youths and adults to state institutions during 1969-70 will be reduced in Marin County as well as most other counties in the state.

The program aims to encourage counties to provide intensive probation supervision for youthful and adult offenders who can best be rehabilitated in the community rather than in state institutions.

The state pays subsidies to the counties in return for reductions in the numbers of comitment.

The Marin estimate showed a drop of 4 cases from the expected total of 44.

The county will receive almost $4,000 for each case below its expected total.

Board To Reply To Jury's Blast

Continuation of an ethnic studies class at Adaline E. Kent School and expansion of the foreign language program will be considered by Kentfield School District trustees at their meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Wolfe Grade School.

The board will also consider deleting Spanish classes at the third and fourth grade levels and adding Latin, French and Italian language classes for the seventh and eighth grades.

Petaluma Neighbors Pick New Officers

Four new directors have been elected by the Petaluma Gardens Homes Association.

Elected to one-year terms were Albert Bonovitch, John Hunter, Donald Leeper and James Mosunich. Board officers include Lee Diltz, president; Richard Myers, vice president and Mrs. Joseph Sheaff, secretary.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Blindness From Glaucoma Now Is Truly Needless Tragedy

Blindness from neglected glaucoma is a needless tragedy. We have many new and potent remedies and the means for early detection. The problem is getting the victim to recognize the disorder early and seek treatment.

There is a continous flow of fluid (aqueous humor) through the chambers of the eyes. It is under sufficient pressure to keep the eyeballs from collapsing. Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and excess fluid overdistends the visual compartments. The increased pressure damages the delicate nerve cells of the retina unless the fluid is allowed to escape.

GLAUCOMA IS SUSPECTED when ever vision becomes foggy, or pain is noted in and about the eyes. This includes colored halos around artificial lights or difficulty in focusing, especially in dim light.

Excessive tearing, headache, swollen lids, and dissatisfaction with glasses are other clews. These symptoms may appear rapidly or so gradually, they escape detection for some time.

Anything that reduces the amount of fluid in the eyeball and keeps the pupil as small as possible is helpful. Remedies for the former include Diamox, Cardrase, and Neptazane. Miotic drops such as eserine, phospholine iodide, pilocarpine, or Prostigmin also diminish the size of the pupil.

Surgery is recommended when glaucoma does not respond to medication.

ON THE OTHER HAND, anything that dilates the pupils should be avoided. Emotions increase ocular tension in much the same way as they cause the blood pressure to rise. Therefore the sufferer should avoid excitement, anger, worry, and fear.

Pressure on the eyeball also is increased by physical strain, overindulgence in coffee or tea, or by tight collars. The pupils enlarge in a dark room, hence watching the movies or television is taboo. The same applies to the use of eyedrops or other medicines that dilate the pupils.

MODE OF DELIVERY

Mrs. C.R.B. writes: My last child was a posterior birth. I'm wondering if my current pregnancy will be the same.

REPLY

Unless a pelvic defect exists, there is every reason to believe that your next baby will present itself in the usual way.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Feb. 21, the 52nd day of 1970 with 313 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1878 the New Haven, Conn., telephone company published the first directory of its kind—listing 50 subscribers.

In 1885 the Washington Monument was dedicated, 37 years after it first went under construction.

In 1950 Hungary sentenced American businessman Robert Vogeler to 15 years in prison on charges of espionage. Vogeler served 17 months and was released in April, 1951.

In 1965 "Black Muslim" leader Malcolm X, was fatally shot in New York City.

A thought for the day—Wendell Wilkie said, "Our sovereignty is not something to be hoarded but something to be used."

Women Face Hearing

A preliminary hearing has been set for March 17 in Marin Municipal Court for two women arrested Jan. 23 when drug agents raided their San Anselmo home. Rebecca Ann Matthews and Holly Jane Humphrey, both 21, are accused of possessing marijuana.

Car Hits Tree

Loverd Howard, 21, of 99 Cole Avenue, Marin City, was treated for a cut eyebrow at Marin General Hospital yesterday after a car in which he was riding ran off Panoramic Highway near Bootjack Camp at 4 p.m. and hit a tree, the California Highway Patrol said.

The Cricket Philosophy Is No Good At Bridge Table

THE CRICKET

There used to be two entrances to the most famous cricket ground in the world; one was marked Gentlemen and the other, Players. Perhaps we should draw the same distinction in bridge. Certainly, when today's hand was played South was a gentleman of considerable dignity, but nobody would make the mistake of calling him a bridge player.

DUMMY'S ACE

West led the queen of spades, and our gentleman declarer won the trick with dummy's ace. He knew exactly what to do next because he had learned the lesson at his mother's kneee, which was not the kind of joint in which you really learned how to play.

Declarer led a trump from dummy with assurance and aplomb, but with no success. The defenders took their two trumps and their two spades, and South took his beating. It was all very decorous, but it was enough to make a bridge player cry.

OBVIOUS PLAY

South has an obvious play for his contract if he is not obsessed with the notion that declarer is morally bound to lead trumps at his first opportunity.

Declarer should take the ace of diamonds at the second trick and then overtake the queen of diamonds with dummy's king. If nobody ruffs the first or second diamond, South is virtually home. He leads the jack of diamonds from dummy to discard one of the losing spades.

DEPENDS ON RUFF

If nobody ruffs, South can safely lead trumps. The defenders will get two trumps but only one spade.

Even if one of the opponents has only two diamonds, he may not gain by ruffing the third diamond. He may have to ruff with the ace or king of trumps, in which case his side will still get only two trumps and one spade. Even if a defender manages to ruff the third diamond with the missing low trump, the ace and king of trumps may then fall together on the same trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
S- K 9 8
H- K
D- 10 9 6 3
C- Q J 5 4 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1-no-trump.

The hand is not quite strong enough for a response of two clubs. If partner opened with one spade, you would bid two clubs since your support for partner's suit would make your hand strong enough for the response at the level of two clubs. If partner opened with one spade, you would bid two clubs since your support for partner's suit would make your hand strong enough for the response at the level of two.

Leisure Time Explosion —Yet No Time For God

Along with the population explosion, the pollution explosion and other explosions, we are having a l e i s u r e time explosion.

In the year 1900, the average work week was just over 60 hours. By 1920 it had dropped to just under 50 hours. Twenty years later (1940) it had fallen to a point between 40 and 45 hours. By 1960 the average had dipped below 40. By 1976 it will be down near 35 hours, and by the year 2000, the experts tell us, it will be less than 30 hours.

IN 1850, after you put in an average w o r k i n g day, got an average night's sleep and took an a v e r a g e amount of time eating, dressing, going to and from work, etc., you w o u l d have had an average of two hours and 11 minutes of free time.

By 1960, this a v e r a g e free time had grown to a little more than seven hours and 45 minutes per day.

If you throw in Sundays, Saturdays and holidays, you can count on 3,700 free hours a year, after work and average sleep. The average person has 22 years more free time during his life than did his grandfather.

"The future of America," said a Nevada clergyman recently, "will be determined by how well it learns to make use of its free time."

The accomplished wordsmith, Eric Sevareid, declared, "The greatest challenge facing America today is the rise of leisure time and the fact that those who have most of it know the least how to use.

AN INCREASING A M O U N T of leisure is devoted to vacationing.

An estimated 140 million Americans now take annual vacations. Tourism now has grown to a $40 billion annual business.

Tourism is one of the top three s o u r c e s of income in 34 of our 50 states.

One-half of all vacations are now taken at times other than summer.

If you include snow skiing as a water sport, it is correct to say that nearly all outdoor recreation is being increasingly tied with water sports or their availability in an area.

By the year 2000, U.S. population is expected to double and usage of outdoor recreation facilities will triple.

Despite all this "head for the water" m o v e m e n t, 75 per cent of the aforementioned free time is still spent at home.

NOT LONG AGO United Press International reported on a survey concerning the "average American."

He is materialistic, satisfied with small pleasures, and interested principally in such as football, hunting, fishing and car-tinkering. His age is now 27. He does not read so much as one book per year. Although he attends church a few more than half the Sundays of the year, he is not seriously interested in theology, the supernatural, nor in heaven or hell.

Now is probably the first time in all human history that a majority of men have not had some considerable concern for their souls and some sort of life to come.

WHAT DOES ALL this mean?

If you are engaged in any sort of b u s i n e s s, it means that you should k e e p an eye out for leisure-related selling opportunities.

If you are a dedicated churchman, today's "Average American" presents a stiff c h a l l e n g e. Today's affluent young American apparently d o e s n 't feel any need for religion.

By contrast, in unaffluent Africa and Asia the number of Christians increased 90 million in little more than half a century between 1907 and 1963.

A m e r i c a spends about $850 per family annually for military and related expenses.

American families spend less than $4 per year per family to support religious activities, including missionary work and missionary relief to needy.

If you consider yourself a churchman but all you do is attend services for an hour on Sunday and put your contribution into the collection plate, you cannot possibly be understanding the problem.

All men still have souls.

Government welfare programs of all sorts may be able to help meet material needs but they don't even pretend to meet spiritual needs.

If the pursuit of materialism is not to lead us to national doom, the "average Ameican" is going to have to do more than just go through the motions of going to church half the Sundays of the year.

Anyone who says he doesn't have the time is deluding himself.

—Jack Craemer

Unbalancing Nature

When man fiddles around with the delicate balance of Nature, he often p r o d u c e s unexpected results. The most recent example we have seen is in Tasmania.

The crayfish industry is a major source of income in this area. Now, the industry is threatened by a dramatic increase in the number of octopuses.

T h e s e eight-tentacled creatures raid the fishermen's crayfish pots.

W h y the octopus explosion? Because other fishermen had taken so many sharks, which like nothing better than a square meal of octopus.

The web of Nature is a delicate thing. Something we do not yet fully comprehend.

Bouquets And Brickbats

The smart set has been spending evenings over a new parlor game: matching names in incongruous combinations. Here are a few that you'll have to go a long way to top: Andrew and Mahalia Jackson; Lyndon and Howard Johnson; Sally Rand and Talley Rand; Chiang Kai Chek and Canceled Check; Oscar Wilde and Deuces Wild; Samuel Pepys and Little Bo Pepys, and—oh, no! — Carson McCullers and French McCrullers.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Minister Concerned Over Violence

I am writing to you to express my profound concern over the acts of violence in the labor dispute, of the past few weeks. Although, I am not embroiled in the issues of the dispute, I am distressed when that dispute spills acts of violence into the streets of a community for which I have a deep concern.

T h e effectiveness of any strike, regardless of your position, labor or management, depends upon persuading the general public to be sympathetic toward your cause. It is my sincere opinion that acts of violence, harrasment, threat or intimidation only succeed in alienating a public which is "sick to death" already of such un-needed and un-wanted actions.

It is my hope that all parties envolved in this dispute will allow the steady hand of peaceful reason to guide them in their conduct.

RISE Appreciates Anonymous Help

The Redwood International Student E x c h a n g e (RISE) membership wishes to thank the I-J for printing the story about its activities in the Feb. 7 Marin Magazine. The picture layout and headline presentation were superb! As a direct result of the story, RISE received a $100 donation from an anonymous "well-wisher." We are therefore especially grateful to the I-J and appreciate this chance to thank "well-wisher" publicly. . .

Thanks are e x t e n d e d especially by those hardworking members of the RISE rummage sale c o m m i t t e e which has had its financial goals thus lightened. (But the rummage sale can still use rummage — call chairman Mrs. Jan Smekens in Greenbrae — and buyers, at Redwood High School Friday evening March 13 and Saturday all-day March 14.)

Garbage Result Of Litterers

Your pictures and caption on page 3 of the I-J of Feb. 14 clearly and graphically illustrate one of the problems confronting the water district in its efforts to combat pollution and to keep the watershed clean and beautiful.

The "g a r b a g e" which is shown is that collected on the wonderful 29,000 acre recreation area of the watershed. It is gathered weekly from litter cans and other "scatter" by district employees. This has up until now, been deposited in a deep ravine, away from public view and not drainable into the domestic water supply. Under favorable weather conditions, to avoid air pollution, the flammable material has been burned and the remainder covered with earth fill.

Burning has been banned. This discard must, therefore, be carted away and disposed of at considerable expense. In the wooded area many trees fall during stormy weather. Now these must be left to deteriorate and rot, imposing a very dangerous fire hazard. Mount Tamalpais has experienced altogether too many disastrous conflagrations in the past.

The Marin Municipal Water District has created a Department of Recreation and Land Management in the endeavor and the hope of making the forests, meadows and mountains more beautiful and enjoyable to all citizens who care to participate.

Unfortunately much of these efforts by the district have not been appreciated by some of the public which it seeks to serve. Much vandalism has occurred. Rest rooms have been damaged and some of the toilets thrown into the lakes. Litter has been strewn about, to mar the beauty, although adequate facilities for waste disposal have been provided. Bathing in the lake (our drinking water) is forbidden by ordinance. A number of citations have been issued to some of the "nudies" who do not read or understand what the posted signs imply.

Tanks, water valves, pipe lines, and expensive telemetering equipment h a v e been tampered with and destroyed.

However, in spite of all this disregard for public use and convenience, it is the intention of the district to continue to improve the recreational facilities, to police the district to the best of its capabilities, to keep the water shed clean and to provide Marin County the best water in the world.

LINES ON LIVING

Fulfill Duties Aright; Extend Hand To Others

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Whether our duties are great or small, in public life or in private enterprise, in making a living or in keeping a home, in office or plant, classroom or boiler room - each and every one of us can feel a sense of satisfaction in fulfilling his duties aright, whatever they may be. In such fulfillment we come to glimpse that beauty and truth which emerge in selfless involvement, s o c i a l participation and human extension.

No one summed it up better than Emerson when he linked God to man in a binding commitment: "So nigh is grandeur to our dust, so near is God to man, when duty whispers low, 'Thou must,' the youth replies, 'I can.' "

In the responsive prayer of "I can," a power is given to man to rise above himself. And there are prayers without words: prayers of silent devotion; prayers of mood rather than mouth.

HUMAN LIFE is a struggle and an achievement, but it is also a gift. And this gift is as good as is the spirit in which we receive it. It is therefore, for us the living to learn from the bitter lessons of mortal vanity and frailty, how precious the short span of life is: how life can be mutiliated by putting it off, by compromising it, by embittering it.

Life is too short for hatred, malice, hurt and revenge. Too many are the enemies assaulting the individual human life to permit man to turn foe against himself, against his neighbor. We have a common brotherhood in misery; can't we have a common brotherhood in ecstacy as well?

We are besieged by fears within us, imbedded in our human nature, and fears outside us lurking in physical nature. We fear others and we fear ourselves; we fear living and we fear dying. We fear the ills of the body and of the mind, of the heart and of the soul.

We have a common humanity; might we not gain a union of sympathy and solidarity a m o n g us? M i g h t we not feel in our own agony the pain of others; in our own tribulations, the struggles of others; in our unfulfillment, the need for compassion in others?

LET US THEN, turn our t h o u g h t s from malice and greed to loving-kindness and humanity, that we may truly know that God's work is indeed our work and His love unites us all. There is enough for each of us of glore and adventure, of struggle and sublimity, to lift us in orbit as a chorus of angels in praise of our humanity - in clasping the hand of man in reaching out for the hand of God.

While we live, we can make the minutes of our life longer by sharing them with others in noble endeavor; the hours of our life more lasting by occupying ourselves with things of beauty and a truth higher than ourselves; the weeks of our life fuller by filling their c o n t e n t s with the fulfilling stuff that lifts the soul; the months, the years more enduring by crowding them with the eternal and indestructible heritage of the human spirit - thereby granting ourselves immortality by virtue of having contributed our share to the common good which can never die.

Nixon Foreign Policy Flawed By Insistence On ABM Go-Ahead

WASHINGTON—President Nixon's foreign policy for the '70s contains a great deal of quiet common sense. The effort to come to grips with the massive reality of Communist China is in itself a noteworthy d e p a r t u r e from the head-in-the-sand policy of the past 20 years.

The steps taken thus far are miniscule. Yet this first small effort to break down the barriers is in itself a notable advance. And the resumption of the talks at Warsaw is another move toward breaking down the glacial barrier that has walled away 700 million of the earth's inhabitants.

This is a look down a long road with the hope that at the end there may be some break in the wall shutting away China's millions. It pales to insignificance alongside the discussion of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks. Here the going is rough, the view obscured as though with deliberate ambiguity.

AT HIS PRESS conference in January the President announced the decision to proceed with Phase II of the Safeguard antiballistic m i s s i l e. This came as a shock to those most familiar with the long and tortuous attempt to put the nuclear genii back in the bottle.

Those close to the struggle to check the spiralling arms race had hoped for a pause of at least six months or a year. After a long and bruising senate battle, the President had by a one-vote margin got approval last year for two ABM installations.

Some work was going forward on the two ABMs, one in North Dakota and one in Montana, and, since in part they are experimental, a d e l a y might even be a net gain. A memorandum by one of America's top nuclear physicists found the ABM Safeguard obsolete even before construction began. The weight of scientific opinion, outside the circle of professional weaponeers, a p p e a r s to have been overwhelmingly against proceeding with phase II.

How much the decision owed to the power of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is a matter for speculation, with the Pentagon curtain concealing the decision-making p r o c e s s. One news story coming obviously from a Pentagon leak carried full details of phase II of the Safeguard program, with the new missile sites spotted on the map.

AT THE SAME time Sec. of Defense Melvin R. Laird has made no secret of his conviction that MIRV, the multiple warhead intercontinental missile, has progressed so far that deployment is just around the corner. The Russians are likewise said to be so advanced with their multiple missle that the next step is deployment. If hese reports are true, the weaponeer has triumphed again with a weapon that defies inspectin.

Nothing in the message, not even the assurances a b o u t Vietnamization of the war and the continuing withdrawal of American forces, compares in importance with the SALT discussion. Aside from troop cost, the bulk of military spending is in strategic weapons. One estimate of the bill for Phase II of ABM is $11 billion and, like all Pentagon price tags, this is probalby only a down payment.

THE STRUGGLE in the Senate last year over phase I of the Safeguard missile was a memorable contest. Many of the same opponents will enter the fray against phase II. But they will be fighting a rear-guard action. The precedent is established.

So much in the President's message on the "State of the World has a spare and convincing sound. The contrast with the section on the nuclear talks is striking. There Mr. Nixon seems to be using deliberate ambiguity to conceal his purpose. It will take a very great surprise—an act of courage—at the next SALT round in Vienna to dispel this impression.

WASHINGTON — It was only after Jackie Kennedy Onassis's letters to former Deputy Secy. of Defense Roswell Gilpatric were lifted from his safe that anyone realized the market value of Jackie's stolen letters.

A few days after the publicity of Mrs. Onassis' letters a man walked into my office and said he had four letters he would like to sell me, written by Ros Gilpatric.

"To Jackie Kennedy Onassis?" I asked.

"No," he said. "To Mrs. Robert McNamara. They were stolen from her bureau drawer and concern a surprise party Gilpatric was p l a n n i n g for Robert McNamara."

"That doesn't seem to have much value," I said.

"ARE YOU CRAZY?" he said. "They were written by the man to whom Jackie Kennedy wrote 'Dear Ros.'"

"How much are they?" I asked.

"Five hundred dollars for the four of them," he said, "and you ask no questions how I got them."

"That's too much money," I said.

"All right," he said. "How about four letters Mrs. McNamara wrote to Averell Harriman on his 75th birthday?"

"What are you asking for those?"

"Four hundred dollars."

"YOU'VE GOT to be kidding."

"You mean to say you would not be willing to pay $400 to own the letters of the woman to whom Roswell Gilpatric wrote before Jackie Kennedy wrote to him?"

"Well, I didn't exactly say that."

"I could have gone elsewhere with these," he said, sticking them back in his pocket and pulling out another set of letters. "Now these are letters Averell H a r r i m a n wrote to the New York State Democratic Party asking them to unite behind somebody — anybody. They were slipped to me by Mrs. Harriman in a moment of jealous anger. I'm asking $300 for them."

"Y O U 'R E A THIEF," I cried.

"A thief, am I? Do you realize these letters were written by the man who received letters from the woman who owned letters from the man whom Jackie Kennedy Onassis thanked for sending her a slim volume of poems?"

"Don't go," I begged. "It's just that $300 is a lot of money."

"All right, then," he said, opening his valise. "For $200 I will sell you 10 letters from the New York State Democratic Party, asking for contributions to draft Arthur Goldberg for governor of New York. Before you protest, I would like to remind you that you would own the letters of a party to whom the man to whom the woman to whom the man to whom Mrs. Kennedy Onassis once wrote 'With my love, Jackie."

"DO YOU HAVE anything cheaper?"

"Here are some letters from Arthur G o l d b e r g for $100. These letters, all authenticated, were sent out by Mr. Goldberg, denying he had any ambitions to run for governor. If you can't afford the Gilpatric letters I'd advise you buy these."

"But they're so far removed from the Jackie Kennedy Onassis letters."

"How can you say that?" he said. "They were written by the man who was supported by the party which was appealed to by the man who received a birthday greeting from the woman who received four letters from the man who was the owner of the original letters written by Jackie Kennedy Onassis from the Yacht Christina the day after her marriage to Onassis. What the h e c k do you want for a hundred dollars?"

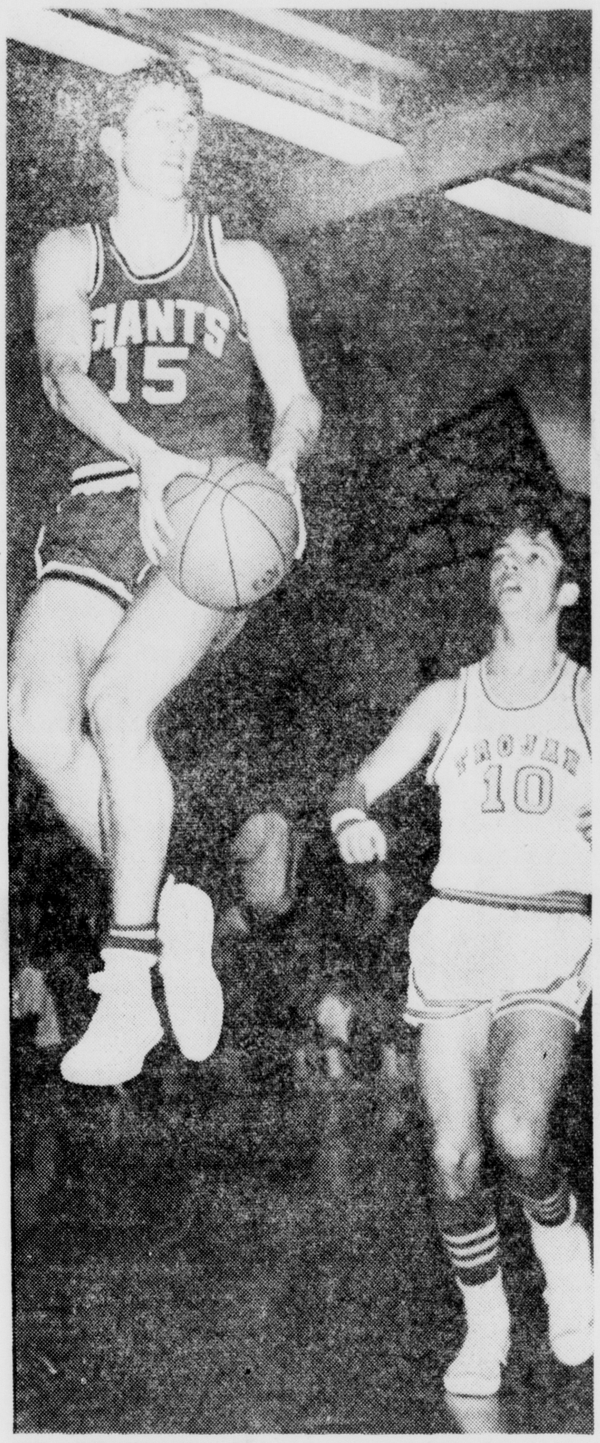
Redwood Wraps Up Championship



PIRO PIROUETTE — Redwood flash Jerry Piro leaps high for another clutch rebound high above frustrated Gordon Walker of Terra Linda.

Piro Leads Clincher

By GARY TISCHLER

The Redwood High School basketball team put the clincher on the Marin County Athletic League championship last night, a week and two games before the race is officially over, when the Giants slowly, but surely cut down Terra Linda, 64-49, in a jam-packed gymnasium at Terra Linda.

Terra Linda, surprisingly, was the only team left with any hopes of overhauling the Giants, a piece of knowledge which was obviously too heavy for the Trojans to carry around all week.

Now, they won't have to worry about it anymore. They'll have to think about taking second place, no mean achievement, all things considered. They're currently tied with Tamalpais for the runnerup spot. The Indians downed shortened San Rafael last night 60-53, despite a big scare, while in second division action, Drake was upended by resurgent San Marin, 56-44 and Novato finally put it together to down Marin Catholic, 70-52.

TROJANS TIGHT

Terra Linda was obviously tight last night, and obviously too short. The Trojans were outscored, 17-5, in the opening quarter, even though Redwood wasn't playing its greatest game of the year. From there on in, the Trojans, with somber-faced coach Bob Corley somehow staying calm through it all, had to play a grim game of catch-up, which never worked closer than nine points in the final two minutes in one brief, hopeful moment that was snuffed out by missed opportunities and a Redwood semi-stall.

The Giants, playing loosely throughout the game, got a fine individual effort from Jerry Piro, who grabbed big rebounds and came through with key field goals that snuffed out one Terra Linda rally after another. Piro finished with 20 points, but Scott Trobbe, the rubbery junior center, got nine points and one moment that isn't easily forgotten.

McLain Back This Season?

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — "I believe and hope to God I'll be back in baseball this year," suspended Detroit pitcher Denny McLain said, adding he would like to see his Tiger teammates who started spring baseball training across town Friday. McLain spoke in front of his Lakeland home one day after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kukn suspended the 25-year-old All-Star hurler indefinitely for what Kuhn called "involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities."

"If the ballplayers want to talk to me, I sure would like to talk to them, but Jim Campbell Detroit general manager hasn't said anything about their wanting to see me," he said. Meanwhile, the Tigers opened up spring training at Marchant Stadium with the signing of all but one player, shortstop Cesar Gutierrez, who is en route from Venezuela.

Detroit's second foremost pitcher, Mickey Lolich, and first baseman Norm Cash signed their contracts Friday morning. In a taped television interview with WTT, Tampa, Fla., McLain also said he could not go into much detail about the suspension "because I'm under supervision by Commissioner Kuhn's office."

"One of these days, I hope people will find out what this is all about," McLain added, noting he has received "a tremendous amount of telegrams giving me their support."

"I've got to look for a job, I've got a home to pay for and a family to feed," McLain said. He added he would either have to "get back into baseball" or he'll have to go on the nightclub circuit again. McLain has appeared in several clubs, performing on the organ and singing.

THIRD SECTION 25

Further troubles beset the McLain family Friday, when a suburban Detroit judge ordered the McLains to be evicted from their home near Detroit unless they pay $2,400 in back rent within 20 days.

McLain, who had a $90,000 baseball contract this season, has had other financial problems lately.

Earlier, the two-time Cy Young award winner said in a copyrighted interview with the Detroit News that he feels he will be reinstated within a month.

McLain also said, "I'm very sorry, I caused a lot of people a lot of embarrassment — not only to my wife, Sharyn, but my father-in-law, Baseball Hall of Famer Lou Boudreau, and my mother."

McLain said he's "embarrassed baseball to a certain extent. I'm asking the benefit of the doubt. I apologize to the commissioner and I'm sorry anything like this has had to happen."

He said about Kuhn's treatment that "I can't see any other alternative for him to take."

The righthander, who won 55 games in the last two American League season, said in referring to his financial problems that "contrary to belief, 99 per cent of my problems stem from business. I made a lot of lousy investments."

Also Friday, it was revealed in Flint, Mich., that five persons, one of whom McLain has been accused of associating with in 1967, have been subpoenaed to testify next Wednesday before a federal grand jury investigating organized crime in Detroit.

JACK HANLEY

Fewer Whiffs, More Hits For McCovey

There was a time when pitchers could tease Willie McCovey into swinging at pitches outside the strike zone. Until Bobby Bonds came along and struck out 187 times last season, McCovey held the team record for the Giants with 119 strikeouts in 1963.

Two years ago, after averaging 100 or more strikeouts a season, McCovey stopped swinging at bad pitches. In 1968 he trimmed his strikeout total to 71 and last season he cut it to 66. His home run and RBI production immediately ssoared. He led the National League with 36 homers and 105 RBIs in 1968 and repeated again last year, 45 homers and 126 RBIs.

McCovey was elated at being voted the league's Most Valuable Player in 1969. "It's baseball's highest individual honor," he said. A pennant only could have made him happier. "That always comes first but it is a team effort," he said.

Even Willie Can't Explain It

In trying to analyze his greatest year in baseball, McCovey frankly acknowledged that he could not explain it. "I don't know how it happened," he said. "I signed late, reported late and I thought everybody would jump on me."

McCovey missed the first three weeks of spring training last year while negotiating a new two-year contract that boosted him from $60,000 to$85,000 per season. He also reserved the right to reopoen contract talks if he had another big year in 1969. Of course, the MVP made him a cinch for another raise and he got it in a new two-year deal of $100,000 a year.

Even though his late start last spring proved beneficial, McCovey will be ready this spring on opening day of training.

Maybe He Should Be Late Again

"Maybe that's what I should do all the time—start late," said McCovey. "Nobody was more surprised than I was last spring when I got off to such a great start even though I missed the opening weeks. It carried over into the season. I never had that good an April since I've been playing."

McCovey hit .319 in April. He finished the season with a .320 average.

McCovey's late start last spring wasn't the reason why he had his greatest year. That was merely coincidental. But there was a reason for his big success in 1969. And it was the same reason for his success in 1968.

When McCovey stopped swinging at bad pitches, there were two courses of action open to pitchers. They could walk him or take their chances with offerings in the strike zone.

Of the 121 walks given McCovey last year, 45 were intentional, a major league record. Of his 157 hits in 491 ABs, 73 were for extra bases (45 homers, two triples and 26 doubles) and a .656 slugging percentage, highest in the National League since 1955 when Willie Mays had .659.

Marin Prep Has Great Bowl Score

Wayne Ziegler, 17-year-old Redwood High School senior, is the hottest young bowler around.

And his doubles partner, Dave Mendelson is not too far behind.

In the Marin County Junior Championships at Greenbrae Lanes this week, Ziegler, 184 average, rolled a 750 three-game series, highest ever by a Marin County junior, to run off with the singles championship.

Ziegler started off with a 245 and then almost threw a perfect 300, hitting 10 consecutive strikes and then getting a 10-pin tap on his 11th ball, picking it up for a 289. His final game was 216.

That's quite a score for the best of veteran bowlers, and when you consider Wayne has been bowling for only three years, it makes the feat terrific.

Mendelson was Ziegler's partner in Class A doubles and would you know it, Dave ran up a 702 three-game series while Wayne rolled a 587. Dave, 15, is a sophomore at Redwood High. He had games of 267, 201 and 234 for his 702.

Tournament winners, with handicap scores:

Doubles—Class A, Ziegler-Dave Mendelson, 1367; Class B, Jeff Bernardi-Mike Lanborn, 1345; Class C, Mark Williams-Mike Seismore, 810 (2 games); Class D, Shaun Weddell-Ellen Williams, 511 (2 games).

RON LEADS SAN ANTONIO GOLF

Aggressive Cerrudo Ties Mark

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ron Cerrudo, a bland personality with an aggressive game, said a couple of long putts, one to save par, were the keys to his second round lead in the San Antonio Open golf tournament.

But some beautiful iron play, and his complete unconcern with the miserable playing conditions had to figure into it, too, as he cut out a course record-matching 65 for 136.

"The weather was about the same as the day before," he said Friday. "Maybe it was a little better. Not quite so windy. One thing's sure. Our group got the best of it."

Cerrudo was in a group that played Thursday afternoon, then switched around to a morning tee time Friday. Playing conditions were a little better for them both days.

But neither was a bargain. Friday's play was halted once for 20 minutes when sleet made it impossible to putt. Showers fell from time to time all day. The high temperature didn't make 50. Play was completed with officials using towels to brush sleet off the greens.

Cerrudo held a one-stroke lead over Rod Funseth, the first round leader who slipped to a par 70 for 137. John Schlee, 70, and Kermit Zarley, 69, were three more strokes back at 140. Jim Jamieson and Lou Graham, each 70, were tied at 141.

Dave Hill, Al Geiberger and Al Balding were in a large group at 142 along with Earl Jacobsen, course superintendent at the 7,138 yard Pecan Valley Golf Club, who had a sparkling 66.

The cut for the final two rounds was 148, eight strokes over par. Among the casualties were New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles.

U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, Lee Trevino and Bruce Crampton were far back at 147. Defending champion Deane Beman just made it into the final two rounds at 148. Frank Beard, last year's leading money winner, was at 144.

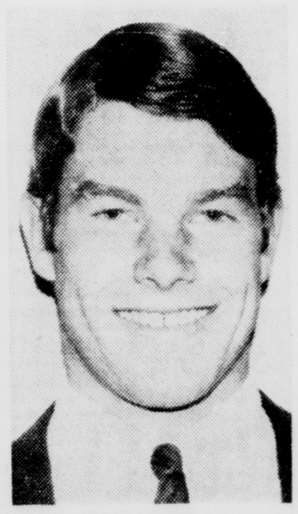
Cerrudo, a 25-year old from Napa, Calif., had five birdies and not a single bogey in his steady round. But he pointed to an 18 foot putt on the fourth as the big shot.

"I hit a bad iron off the tee, and a bad second shot," he said. "It hit a tree and was far to the left. I pitched on, about 18 feet, and made the putt for a par. It kind of kept the momentum going."

Cerrudo ran in a 25-footer on the next hole for a birdie.

He put a four iron four feet from the flag on the first hole, wedged to within eight feet on the 10th, chipped to one foot on the 13th and put a nine iron five feet away on the final hole, making all the putts for birds.

"The putting was the key," said Cerrudo, whose only tour victory came in the Cajun Classic in 1968, his rookie year. "I really didn't hit the ball that well, but I kept knocking those long putts up there for



MARIN'S SCHOLAR-ATHLETES

Lowell Widmer (left) and Dan Jordan, both All-Marin County Athletic League football stars and honor students from San Rafael High School, were among 22 Bay Area high school students honored last night at the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athletes awards dinner in San Francisco. Two seniors from each of 11 leagues were cited for outstanding academic and athletic achievements.

MARICHAL PRAISES MAYS

Juan, Willie Best Buddies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Marichal, stoppeng off here en route to spring training, said Friday that he and Willie Mays are the best of friends and that he expects to sign his 1970 contract with the San Francisco Giants shortly.

Marichal, the ace of the Giants' mound staff and 21-game winner last season, said remarks attributed to him about Mays during the winter were exaggerated.

"This fellow asked me about the Giants of 1970 and then something about Willie Mays. I did say that Willie wasn't the ball player he once was, but I want Willie behind me all the time.

'HELPED US'

"He and I are good friends," Marichal continued. "He was playing great just before he got hurt in Chicago last year and even when he was hurt he helped us at the end of the season."

Marichal is the only player on the Giants' roster who hasn't signed a 1970 contract, but said he didn't expect any trouble in reaching agreement with Giants President Horace Stoneham.

He said he was satesfied with theamount of money Stoneham offered, but wanted to discuss the terms of payment. He reportedly received $115,000 last season and another $10,000 for scouting for the Giants in the Caribbean area.

Egyptian Stuns The Great Laver

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Ismail El Shafei, in his second tournament as a professional, seemed not quite ready to believe what he had just done.

"I've just beaten the world champion," the 22-year-old Egyptian said several times after scoring a convincing 6-3, 10-8 victory over Rod Laver of Australia Friday night.

As Laver went to the sidelines following the battle of left-handers in the U.S. National Indoor Open Tennis championships, American Cliff Richey remained as the lone seeded player in todae's semi-finals.

Richey, the No. 2 domestic seed required only 40 minutes to roll over American Jim Osborne, 6-2, 6-2, in the quarterfinals. But as Richey was doing what was expected of him, El Shafei wasn't.

The Egyptian had packed his bags for a fast getaway following an expected loss and told Bill Riordan, the tournament chairman, to hold onto his prize money in the event they missed each other after the match.

By winning, El Shafei doubled his assured earnings to $2,000 and now has a shot at the $7,200 which goes to the winner.

El Shafei lost to Stan Smith, the top-ranked American, in the finals of the National Indoor amateur in Salisbury last year and he is a local favorite.

"I've never been backed by a crowd anywhere like I am here,' he said. "Maybe not even in Cairo."

Laver, who represents a firm which manufacturers carpet-like artificial surface, criticized the canvas playing surface at the Civic Center, saying it was too loose for proper footing. He said it must be 15 years old.

Riordan said it was three years old, and contended it was "stretched tautly over wood."

Asked if he would play differently if he ever played El Shafei again, the 31-year-old Laver said: "I won't play him again. . .not on a surface like this."

Richey, who lost to El Shafei here last year, will play him in the semi-finals at 7:30 p.m. In an afternoon match, Roger Taylor of England takes on Ilie Nastase of Romania.

El Shafei, asked if his victory over Laver was the biggest he ever scored, said: "Biggest? It could be the biggest for the next 10 years."

What will happen when he plays Laver again?

"I think he'll beat hell out of me."

CERRUDO ON TARGET

Ron Cerrudo of Napa, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cerrudo of San Rafael, shows his accurate putter en route to lead in the San Antonio, Texas Open Golf Tournament. Cerrudo equalled the course record of 65 yesterday to hold a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the 72-hole tournament.

Some Fish Stories From Sports World

The world of fisherman, to say nothing of the Burlington Liars' Club, the ghost of Izaak Walton, and the operators of charter boat landings everywhere, was shocked, so to speak, to the gills last week when a poacher in illegal waters turned in a record-sized fish and ultimately, himself, out of compassion for the fish.

"This fish," he confessed in a note left along with the dead fish on the warden's door step, "deserves more recognition." In other words, he didn't want his catch to become the Judge Crater of the fish world.

The man showed a laudable respect for sporting traditions, and we taken you now to other fields and other times where this spirit might become infectious, as exemplified by the following hypothetical, not to say, far-fetched news stories:

"DODGER STADIUM — Willie Mays made a sensational diving catch of a long line drive off the bat of Maury Wills with the bases loaded and two out today to give the San Francisco Giants the 1970 National League pennant, but, as the fans were dancing in the streets of San Francisco, and the champagne was popping in the dressing room, Willie quietly advised the Dodgers to tag up and advance. 'I trapped the ball,' he told ump Tom Gorman. 'The hit deserved more recognition than that. It was at least a double.' The Dodgers ultimately won the pennant, and Giant manager Clyde King, when he was revived, lauded Willie for his 'honesty in the best traditions of baseball.' Giant owner Horace Stoneham could not be reached for comment."

"SUPER BOWL, NEW ORLEANDS — Mike Garrett, of the Kansas City Chiefs, won the third straight Super Bowl for the AFL today when, with 10 seconds to play and the Chiefs trailing by three points, he ran 88 yards with a Lenny Dawson swing pass for a touchdown. But, as his teammates lifted him on their shoulders, Mike commanded, 'Put me down.' He then went to the field judge. 'I stepped out of bounds on the 50 when their safetyman took out two of my blockers. A move like that deserves more recognition and my left foot was out as the gun went off.' Coach Hank Stram later said a study of the films showed Garrett to be telling the truth. 'I drill these boys in fundamentals,' he said, 'and truth is the first of them.'"

"MADISON SQUARE GARDEN — Joe Frazier won a unanimous decision over Cassius Clay in their heavyweight title fight here tonight but refused to accept it after pointing out he had fouled his opponent in three of the rounds he had officially won. The referee and two judges had an identical 7-6 scoring with two rounds even, but Frazier leaned through the ropes to advise the judges, 'You will recall I butted in the 13th, I hit on the break four times in the 11th, and I stuck my thumb in his eye and hit him law in the 15th. He deserves to be champion even though he can't see out of one eye and I hereby forfeit.' The news brought Gene Tunney out of retiremnt to announce he was returning his championship belt and his retired-undefeated status to Jack Dempsey as subsequent research has shown he was given a count of 14 when floored by Dempsey in 1927. 'There is no doubt about it, under Marquis of Queensberry rules, I was knocked out,' admitted Tunney, apologizing for the delay."

"MADISON AVENUE — TV Account Executive Irving Shrill, shot by his wife, ascribed it all to a case of mistaken identity today. 'I came home with lipstick on my button-down and my wife blamed it on my secretary. I said, 'No, it was the blonde receptionist. A girl like that deserves recognition.' Shrill will recover, but has been taken off the agency's cigarette account. When last heard in his delirium, he was saying 'Our cigarette has killed more mice two-to-one than any other brand. A cigarette like that deserves more recognition.'"

That was in the second half when he blocked three straight shots by Terra Linda's talented center Joe Casteel.

Casteel, wiring and worming his way around the bucket, got 16 points for the Trojans, but it simply wasn't enough.

Piro got lots of help again from smooth Roger Smith, who didn't play all that much, but got 16 points, and from John Boro, who got 10 points and a few steals, in addition to landing in the lap of the crowd several times.

The Indians of Tamalpais must have felt spooky last night. Favored to top San Rafael, which was playing without 6-foot-8 center Don Duryee, they fell behind 25-9 in the early going as Allan Rossi scored 13 points for the Bulldogs.

But a second-half rally, helped by having San Rafael star Bruce Nave in foul trouble, pulled it out for the Indians, who got 19 points from Bill Secor and 17 from Ken Gommeringer. The latter incidentally, set a school free throw record of 19 in a row, making his first two after hitting 12 for 12 against Novato Tuesday.

Rossi finished with 15 points for the Bulldogs. Drake did an almost perfect job of defensing San Marin's 6-8 junior center Dana LaFerriere, the league's leading scorer with a 26.1 average, holding him to just four points. Mustang Gary Howard got an expected 16 points, but it was junior Jim Thompson, finally coming around, who killed the Pirates with a 23-point bombing.

A zone defense by San Marin didn't help Drake much either.

Junior guard Joe DeMaestri ripped in 34 points for Novato, 24 in the first half, to pace the Hornets past Marin Catholic, creating a deadlock for last place.

Tim Stone with 17 points and Bill Donellan with 16 topped the Wildcats. Donellan had 12 points in the first quarter, hitting six of his first seven shots.

Lowly Kings Trade Away Six

LOS ANGELES—Mired in the cellar of the National Hockey League's West Division, the Los Angeles Kings have traded six players in multiple deals with the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

"We had to do something," Kings owner Jack Kent Cook said yesterday.

He described the 6-1 Pittsburgh victory over the Kings yesterday as "the most humiliating experience of my life."

Los Angeles received goalie Denis DeJordy, defenseman Gilles Marotte and center Jim Stanfield from the Black Hawks in exchange for all-star defenseman Bill White, goalie Gerry Desjardins and defenseman Brean Campbell.

The trades also included Kings defenseman Dale Role and Larry Johnson and left winger Gary Croteau to Detroit for defensemen Matt Ravlich and Brian Gibbons and left wing Garry Monahan.

All of the new Kings except Gibbons are to report for tonight's game here against the St. Louis Blues. Gibbons will join the Kings' Springfield Mass., club.

Baseball

OAKLAND — Pitchers Al Downing and Chuck Dobson have signed their 1970 contracts with the Oakland Athletics, the club announced yesterday.

The signings leave the Athletics, whose pitchers and catchers open workouts today in Mesa, Ariz., with 12 players unsigned, including American League All-Stars Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando.

Football

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League who finished with a 9-4-1 mark last season, rehired coach Charley Winner.

BALTIMORE—The Miami Dolphins tampered in hiring away Don Shula as coach-genernal manager without contacting the Baltimore Colts, Colt general manager Don Klosterman charged, but he said he has not lodged a formal complaint and expects no action from NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Boxing

TRIESTE, Italy—World middleweight boxing champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy announced he will face challenger Doyle Baird from Akron, Ohio, in a title fight at Umbago, Yugoslavia, on May 30.

Bowling

MILWAUKEE—Bobby Cooper of Houston, seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association title, defeated John Guenther of Seattle 200-170 for his 12th victory of the day in 16 games and led the way into Saturday's televised finals of the $70,000 Miller Open.

Track and Field

NEW YORK—Tom Von Ruden, an Olympian from the Pacific Coast Club, cracked the 1,000 meters world record, sweeping past defender Frank Murphy to win in 2 minutes, 21 seconds, while Martin McGrady in the 500-meter run and Erv Hall in the 55-meter high hurdles both equalled world marks at the U.S. Olympic initation track meet.

LONG BEACH—Harold Connolly, former Olympic hammer throw champion, bettered the world outdoor record in the 35-pound throw for distance with a toss of 72 feet, 2¾ inches in an all-comers meet at Long Beach State College.

SAN DIEGO—Lee Evans, the Olympic 400-meter king, streaked to a world-record 54.5 seconds in the 500-yard run, knocking nine-tenths of a second off the pending standard in the San Diego indoor games.

Auto Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Jimme Hylton of Inman, S.C., who finished second 14 times on the Grand National circuit, came back after wrecking one car during practice and pushed his 1969 Camara at better than 100 miles per hour for an easy triumph in the Citrus 500 Grand American race at International Speedway.

Bobsledding

LAKE PLACID, N.Y.—Oscar D'Andrea steered an Italian sled through four heats on the mile-long Mt. Van Hoevenberg chute in four minutes, 35.82 seconds to win the two-man bobsled championship of the Kennedy Games, with Paul Lamey of Manchester, N.H., second.

Skiing

STRBSKE PLESO, Czechoslovakia—The Soviet Union grabbed its sixth gold medal, more than all the others combined, with a victory in the women's 15-kilometer relay in the world Nordic ski championships.

CAL WINS

UCLA Vs. Oregon In Crucial Tilt

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If there is any team with a chance of catching torrid UCLA in the Pacific-8 Conference basketball race, it's Oregon.

The Ducks better do their catching tonight in Eugene. They face the No. 1 team in the country in a showdown if there ever was a showdown.

UCLA romped 71-56 to its ninth straight conference victory Friday night in Corvallis against Oregon State while Oregon, moving into the league's runnerup position, buried Southern Cal's hopes 92-83 in Eugene.

California won in overtime against Washington, 91-86 at Berkeley, and Washington State drubbed Stanford 85-62 at Stanford.

Oregon's conference record is 6-3. Although the Bruins and the Ducks each have four games to play after tonight's clash, the chances are none that UCLA won't repeat as Pac-8 champion if Oregon loses.

The Bruins used a zone defense against the Beavers for their 21st consecutive victory of the season.

"I'm not a zone coach," UCLA's John Wooden said for the second straight week. He used a zone last weekend against Washington.

"I don't like it and I haven't used it," Wooden said. "But I thought if we could hold Vic Bartolome down with a zone we could beat Oregon State. It was just that simple."

Bartolome, the 7-foot center who scored 25 points when the Bruins beat the Beavers 72-71 in Los Angeles on Jan. 10, wound up with 10 points, all field goals.

St. Louis Cools Off Red Hot Seals, 3-1

OAKLAND (AP) — It took St. Louis center Red Berenson just two minutes to cool off the redhot Oakland Seals Friday night.

The Seals were tied 1-1 with the Blues and were trying to extend their undefeated streak to four games when Berenson burst the bubble with two tallies in the third period, giving St. Louis a 3-1 victory in the night's only National Hockey League game.

Oakland winds up a five-game home stand tonight against Pittsburgh, tied for second in the NHL West with Philadelphia.

The loss was Oakland's fourth to the Blues in five games against the West Division leaders this season.

Berenson got his game-winner at 10:14 of the final period when the Seals were short-handed, cracking a 25-foot screened shot past goalie Gary Smith on a power play.

At 12:16, Berenson grabbed his 26th goal of the season on a breakaway.

The Seals had tallied first on left wingman Gary Jarrett's ninth goal of the season in the first period.

The Blues began their rally with right wingman Gary Sabourin's 30-foot slapshot at 8:25 of the second period, tying the score.

Petaluma Defeats Rancho Cotate, 71-62

Petaluma High School, playing without injured center Ross Goree, got 21 points from junior Joe Rodola to squeeze by Rancho Coate of Rohnert Park, 71-62, in a non-league season finale last night.

In a North Bay League II game, Sonoma nailed down second place, behind first-place Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa, by whipping Healdsburg, 85-72, last neght.

Tars Vs. Santa Rosa In Last Home Game

College of Marin's basketball team plays its next-to-last game of the season and its final home game tonight when it meets arch-rival Santa Rosa Junior College in a Camino Norte Conference game at Kentfield at eight o'clock.

The Tars are coming off a heart-breaking loss to league-leading Contra Costa of San Pablo and would like to average an overtime loss to Santa Rosa earlier in the season.

Equalization Board Tells Ideas For Taxes Reforms

SACRAMENTO UPI — The state Board of Equalization has offered 11 suggestions on revising California's tax structure to meet government's needs and help John Q. Taxpayer.

The board sent the suggestions to Gov. Ronald Reagan and the Legislature.

The board said the changes were "essential for a goal of property tax relief, an elastic tax base for the future and a fair sharing of its burdens."

One recommendation is to increase the homeowner's property tax exemption from $750 to $1,500. The exemption should be extended to cooperative and owner-occupied multiple-family housing units as well as to persons on public assistance. Renters should also be given consideration.

The recommendations also included:

Increasing senior citizens property tax assistance by raising the maximum income limitation to $5,000 a year and revising the percentages of tax payments reimbursed to a minimum of 20 per cent of the property taxes on the first $5,000 of assessed value.

Permit counties to collect taxes in four or more installments.

Raise educational opportunities to an acceptable minimum level and equalize school tax burdens by the imposition of a state school tax on all taxable property with safeguards to assure an equivalent reduction in locally imposed school taxes.

Tax publicly owned property leased to a private party.

Convert the one-cent sales and use taxes to state-imposed taxes so that a more equitable formula for local allocation of these revenues can be devised and compliance costs reduced.

Eliminate the transportation tax.

Increase the diesel fuel tax to reflect the higher efficiency of diesel fuel as compared to gasoline.

Subject the insurance taxes to legislative control by converting them to statuatory impositions and eliminate the discriminatory principal office deduction.

And redefine properties which qualify for the welfare exemption.

Family Offers Reward On Missing Daughter

Air Force T/Sgt. and Mrs. Sam Counts have offered a $300 reward for information concerning their 16-year-old daughter, Joanne, who has been missing from the family home at 667 Owen Drive, Novato, for five weeks.

Joanne has brown eyes and brown hair, weighs 100 pounds and is five feet tall.

HISTORIC OCCASION

Herber C. Leney, church moderator (left) and Carl M. Bennett, building chairman, scoop up dirt to signal the start of an addition to the Church of All Faiths in Corte Madera. Groundbreaking ceremonies held last Sunday for the new unit which will double the size of the church. Actual construction, according to Rev. Joseph L. Hughes, church pastor, began the following day.

SEVERAL MAJOR REASONS

Why So Much Catholic News?

UPI Religion Writer
By LOUIS CASSELS

Newspapers and wire services are often asked, "Why do you carry so much Catholic news?"

The question usually comes from an irate Protestant, a circumstance which tempts editors to shrug it off as a manifestation of sectarian bias.

But that's too easy an out. It is a serious question and deserves a serious answer.

Except in areas where there is very little Catholic population, most American newspapers probably do devote more space to stories and pictures about Catholic church affairs than they do to any Protestant denomination.

This practice could be defended on purely numerical grounds, the Roman Catholic Church is by far the largest religious body in the United States today.

It has four times as many members as the largest Protestant denomination, as many members as the Southern Baptists, American Baptists, United Methodists, Episcopalians, United Presbyterian Southern Presbyterians, American Lutherans, Missouri Lutherans, Disciples, Mormons, United Church of Christ, Quakers, Unitarians, Christian Scientists, Mennonites and Seventh Day Adventists, combined.

In the world at large, Catholics outnumber Protestants of all varieties by a margin of more than two to one.

So if you make comparisons on the basis of so many inches of news space per 100,000 members, you'll have to measure the total Catholic coverage against virtually the total Protestant coverage —not the space given to one particular Protestant denomination.

This, however, is a somewhat misleading approach. For newspapers and wire services, if they're doing their job properly, do not parcel out space according to slide rule calculations of how many people are members of the denomination concerned.

The important test is the news value of the story or picture.

Editors have a terrible time trying to explain to laymen how they determine relative news value. Basically, it's a subjective decision made by an editor on the basis of his intuitive judgment of the number of readers likely to be interested in a story or picture, and the probable intensity of their interest.

Actions of Catholic authorities, especially the Pope or those close to him in the Vatican, rate high in news value not only because there are a lot of Catholics, but also because the impact of official decisions on the lives of individual members is much greater in a hierarchical church than in a Protestant denomination which emphasizes freedom of individual conscience.

For example:

When Pope Paul VI condemned all forms of artificial birth control, his edict caused immediate and highly personal anguish in millions of Catholic homes.

If the president of the Southern Baptist Convention came out against birth control, there might be some debate among Southern Baptists as to whether he had taken a wise stand, or whether he had any business pronouncing on such a subject. But the impact of the statement and hence its news value would be minimized by the fact that all Southern Baptists would feel free to ignore it if they wished.

This also explains why it is more newsworthy when the Vatican Council adopts new rules for the Mass (which will actually change the worship habits of all practicing Catholics) than it is when the National Council of Churches adopts a resolution which isn't binding on anybody, even the delegates who adopt it.

Still another consideration to be borne in mind is that the Vatican, in addition to being headquarters of the Catholic Church, also is a secular state —a tiny one, to be sure, but with far-reaching diplomatic connections. By virtue of his dual role as a spiritual and secular ruler, the Pope sometimes is involved in international affairs in a way that other Christian leaders are not.

On the local level, Catholic news may get an edge from the fact that much of it comes from a central source —the bishop's chancery. Look closely and you may observe that the non-Catholic bodies which get the most news space usually are those which have a similar central source of news —such as an Episcopal diocese, a Methodist district, a Lutheran synod or a Presbyterian presbytery.

This leads to a practical suggestion: Protestant groups which emphasize the autonomy of the local congregation might find it helpful to cooperate in establishing a central community source for news of their denomination.

Churches which prefer or find it necessary to go it alone in publicizing their activities should appoint a public relations officer (or committee) to channel news to local newspapers and broadcasting stations.

The religion editor of your home town paper will always be glad to sit down with any church-appointed public relations representative and explain the ground rules about copy submission, deadlines, etc.

There may be editors who intentionally show favoritism to some religious bodies and discriminate against others. But they must be pretty scarce, because I've been in this business a long time and I've never met one.

Greek Church Is Formally Recognized

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin, which was organized a year ago, has been granted formal recognition by the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America.

Announcement was made earlier this month when the church elected new officers for the year. Tapped as president was William Poulopoulos of Kentfield.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other board of director officers are Charles Parnell, executive vice president; Gus Kosturos, vice president; Chris Christo, secretary, and Peter Tsigelatos, treasurer.

Dr. Ted Prevolos, past president, will serve as ex-officio member and Mrs. Peter Kavantjas will continue as bookkeeper and executive secretary.

Seven new directors were named including Kosturos, Van Athanasakos, Ted Madias, Peter Patrakis, Aris Fafoutis, Isadore Natsios and Milton Sideris.

Reelected were Victor Gavallos, Peter Kavantjas, Spiro Halikas, Thano Johnson, Parascos Kalogiannis, George Morf, John Papadopoulos, George Roland, Stanley and Anthony Sarganis and Gus Stathis.

Also at the annual session goals for the year were outlined, including finding a permanent priest and the start of a building fund.

PRESENT LOCATION

The church, which holds 10 a.m. Sunday services in Montgomery Chapel on the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, is served by Rev. George Bogdanos of Oakland.

First fund event of the year will be a Apokriatico Madri Gras benefit dinner-dance beginning at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Corte Madera Recreation Center. Serving as honorary queen and king will be Dottie Christo and John Cadoux.

Start of Lent for the Eastern Orthodox faith begins approximately a month after Western churches and concludes with the celebration of Easter on April 26.

Hub Church Will Join Observance

The First Baptist Church in San Anselmo, a member of the American Baptist Convention, will observe "American Christ Offering Sunday" tomorrow.

The special day is being observed to inform church members of 1970 goals and also to give a chance of additional pledges.

Guest To Discuss Church Education

Rev. Eva Zabolai-Csekme of Austria, theological exchange student at the Pacific Lutheran Seminary in Berkeley, will be guest preacher at both the 9 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at Faith Lutheran Church of San Rafael.

Miss Zabolai-Csekme will also act as resource leader at the 9:45 a.m. adult exploration seminar.

She was ordained into the ministry last February in Vienna. Born and reared in Hungary, she left the country in 1958, two years after the Hungarian Revolution.

She will be the first woman minister to speak in the pulpit, since there are no ordained women ministers in the denomination in the United States.

To Speak Tomorrow

Minister From Austria To Talk At Lutheran Church

Dick Rabine, director of Christian education at the Peninsula Covenant Church in Redwood City, will speak on "Christain Education in the 1970s," at the 9:30 a.m. worship service tomorrow at the Marin Covenant Church.

Rabine will follow the message with a 10:45 a.m. discussion period at the regularly scheduled adult class. At the same hour there are also classes for youth from pre-school to college.

Rabine had experience in the field of Christian education and juvenile delinquency in Detroit, Michigan and Cicero, Ill. prior to coming to California in 1964.

At the Covenant Church in Redwood City he has developed an extensive child nursery school and has developed work with the handicapped and the blind.

In 1969 he was elected public relations director of the National Association of directors of Christian Education.

The Marin Covenant Church meets in the Marinwood Community Center, corner of Lucas Valley and Miller Creek roads.

Three Events To End Baptist Mission Meet

The Bethel Baptist Church in Novato will conclude a three-day missionary conference tomorrow with three special events.

Children will see slides and will hear a lecture by Mrs. Irwin Firchow of the Wycliffe Bible Translators, at 9:45 a.m.

At the 11 a.m. worship service Paul Preddy, recently returned from the Congo, will speak on his work as an American Baptist missionary.

A symposium for youth and adult group will be held at 6 p.m., followed by showing of slides by Preddy at 7 p.m.

Hirai Renamed Council Leader

James Hirai has been reelected council president of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church of Tiburon for this year.

Also reelected: Edison Quick, vice president; Mrs. Leonard Peck, secretary; Charles Beardsly, treasurer; and Lt. Cmdr. Dolph Jaeger, Elmer Hein, Mrs. Richard Kenney and Gerald Madson, board members.

Named new board members: John Radovitch and James Luther.

Conservation Talk Founder's Day

David Brower, director of the John Muir Institute, will talk on man's relationship to the earth tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere. It is the first in a series of conservation talks, the church said.

EXCITING GOALS

Church Enters Field Of Arts

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Presbyterian Church has started the World Arts Foundation, a nonsectarian, but religion-oriented, patron of the arts.

Purpose is "to foster the creation of works of art which enable man to better understand his relationship to himself and to his God."

Money will be used primarily to commission works from individual artists and to disseminate the works as widely as possible. For example, the first project will be to commission 20 to 25 established artists from various countries to do lithographs. Graham Grove, president of the World Arts Foundation, says, "We hope to road show those around to churches and then take them abroad. We hope to have them out by Christmas."

Richard Gilbert, chairman of the United Presbyterian Church's Division of Mass Media, says, "Our over-all theme is man's ultimate concern—his relationship to God and his fellow man. That is the umbrella. The artist is free to choose under that. The beauty of our foundation is that its scope is as wide as any man's search for truth. Its focus can be as humanistic or as explicitly Biblical as anyone wants to make it.

"We are not going to ask artists to follow any line. If there are shocks, that is fine.

"Artists know you don't sell ideas, you have experiences, and from those come a whole spectrum of ideas. We're asking artists for insights, not to be theologians."

Gilbert is the man who became enthusiastic about Grove's idea for a foundation and got the United Presbyterian Church behind it.

The foundation would like to commission a rock opera, perhaps produce its premiere at a big festival—it invisions annual festivals—and then tour it to rock palaces and "square" halls and distribute recordings of it.

Grove says, "We're going to set up a distribution outfit for circulating records through churches so that the over-30 generation would be exposed, too.

"Kids are so much into the search for meaning in their lives too. We're against further polarization or generations."

The World Arts Foundation also wants to commission films, paintings, drama, dance, books, architecture, television shows, sculpture, hymns, etc.

What the foundation won't get into, that many foundations do, is giving money to performing arts groups, like theater repertory or dance companies.

First, of course, money is needed. Gilbert says, "We're going down millionaire's row and hoping to combine their interest in art and their interest in their church. They are parallel in most of their minds. For many, the man of God and the man who searches for reality are one.

Grove says, "We're aiming at an endowment of $5 million, with a minimum of $1.5 million to spend every year. We're interested in setting up projects which will be self-supporting, like the record and film distribution."

Gilbert says that artists have "no hesitation about working in the precincts of the church. Most major artists have accepted commissions on specific themes, like Dali and Chagall. I would hope we could commission Leonard Bernstein to go beyond his 'Chichester Psalms.'

"And the rock writers are religious more so than your average priest and minister, if you define religion as the search for God and the celebration of life."

Actors To Give Play Tomorrow

"Look Back to the Hill" by Donald Mueller will be presented at 7 p.m. tomorrow by the Methodist Actors Serving the Church at the United Methodist Church in Novato.

The play looks back to Golgotha. The characters are minor people in the life of Jesus.

Nancy Hamilton, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Leo W. Hamilton of the Novato church is in the cast. The play is directed by Jo Taylor of Sacramento.

Russian Baptists

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — More than 5,000 Russians were baptized as members of Baptist Churches in the Soviet Union in the last year, the Rev. Michael Shidkov, pastor of the Moscow Baptist Church, told a conference here. He says preaching services are held six times weekly in Russian Baptist churches, whose total membership now is about 500,000.

'Age' Segregation

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Criticizing the church practice of establishing special homes for the aged. Dr. Herbert C. Lazenby, head of a residential development for older citizens, calls them "ghettos of aging." He told a Christian Church (Disciples) meeting here that "age segregation is as serious as segregation by economics, race or creed."

Pornography Fight

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Joseph Devlin, an insurance agent, and John de Polo, a Customs official, both with teen-age children, have started a Christian Anti-Pornography Group in Liverpool. They called a public rally to urge Christians to act against pornography in movies, theater, television, advertising and literature. Several teen-age girls volunteered to help. Roman Catholic Archibishop Joseph Beck of Liverpool is patron of the group.

San Anselmo Seeks Funds For Wide-Ranging Planning Study

What San Anselmo needs is a planning study to develop programs to correct its shortcomings and past mistakes stemming from haphazard growth.

That is the rationale behind an application for federal planning funds approved this week by the city planning commission. The application is backed up by details gathered in a report by citizens committees last year which pinpoint the city's needs in streets, services, planning and other areas.

The application needs the city council's stamp of approval before it is sent to the state Council of Intergovernmental Relations.

The citizens' committee reports were boiled down and included in the application, which was prepared by planning consultants Williams and Mocine.

$114,000 COST

The ambitious aims of the study, tentatively budgeted at $114,000, are to correct community problems, guide development, preserve community values and prevent urban blight.

The report proposed these physical goals for the study:

Protect the natural environment; solve arterial traffic problems; improve the local street system; develop sidewalks, paths and bicycle trails where possible; support mass transit plans and all modes of travel to lessen dependence on cars; revitalize downtown; enhance multiple-family areas to the quality of the rest of the city; encourage residential rehabilitation.

Pass school bonds, provide adequate recreation facilities using school facilities for recreation, provide enough office space for all city departments, and bring all utility mains up to standard.

Social goals included keeping San Anselmo a city with a wide range of ages and economic status among its residents, encouraging "a proper proportion" of low-income and moderate-income housing, and improved park and recreation program, and improving the school plant.

The economic goals were to raise the tax base by revitalizing downtown, develop a capital improvement program based on financing abilities and lod logical priorities, and seeking all available funds from other sources.

The report devoted 10 pages to detailing the city's problems, including climate, streets, sewers, water mains, traffic, transit, schools, growth plans, and social and economic problems. Its findings and recommendations:

STORMS — Storm runoff, increasing as the hillsides are developed, overloads inadequate drain systems and causes flooding of low areas. An adequate storm drain system must be built from scratch, while preserving esthetic and ecological values of San Anselmo Creek and tributaries.

SEWERS — Usually adequate, they are overloaded when storm water infiltrates the system, and sewage empties onto streets during storms. Ross Valley Sanitary District has no plans to upgrade San Anselmo lines, and local improvement plans appear to be necessary.

WATER — The distribution system of Marin Municipal Water District water is inadequate for good fire protection. New fire hydrants and 135,000 feet of new lines and mains are needed.

CIRCULATION — The main problems are the Hub intersection bottleneck and too much traffic for avilable lanes on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Center Avenue. The committee rejected the idea of widening Center and Drake and recommended instead that local dependence on the automobile be lessened and traffic "unrelated to San Anselmo" be discouraged.

PUBLIC TRANSIT — Public transportation is inadequate, and Greyhound Lines wants to get out of the intracounty business. The committee recommended the city encourage mass transit progress through the Marin Transit District, Golden Gate Bridge District, state and federal authorities.

DEVELOPMENT — Slow and haphazard growth has produced many substandard lots, multiple use in one-family districts and potential deterioration, overdensity and difficult access. Inadequate parking and circulation have hurt downtown. New planning techniques were recommended to protect hillsides from overcrowding, and remedial action to improve older multiple family areas.

SCHOOLS — Two bond issues have failed in the Tamalpais High School District, and Sir Francis Drake High School now has 14 portable classrooms, while San Anselmo schools are in inadequate space and overcrowded.

PUBLIC FACILITIES — The city has little developed park and recreation land, and has not developed a full program commensurate with the city's status and needs. All city buildings except the remodeled library and the new fire station No. 2 were called inadequate.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS — With a small minority population and as a middle class community, the city has no dramatic social problems, but its isolation and the low level of public services can make it a difficult place to live for the elderly, the young and those on fixed incomes, and make it an unlikely place for low-income or minority persons to seek a home.

Despite the problems, the committee considered the city "a fine place to live and to grow up in by any reasonable measure."

ECONOMIC — Private economic problems are most noted downtown, where there are commerical vacancies, and a physical decline downtown would mean loss of city tax revenue. The committee said even with careful planning and programs, additional revenue sources will be needed for necessary improvements.

San Anselmo had a general plan prepared in 1961, but that plan is no longer effective, according to the application for federal funds.

A downtown plan prepared in 1963 failed to gain community acceptance and was not carried out.

According to the application, the city would put up $38,600 in cash and services toward the project's $114,000 cost.

SPLASH AT CITY HALL

A young couple pauses at the new war memorial fountain in front of San Rafael City Hall. The fountain, which began operating this week, was donated by Wilkins Post 37 of the American Legion. City Mgr. James H. McCown said there will probably be a formal dedication after the plaque is installed. (Independent-Journal photo)

Toll Hike Backed By Hub Group

The San Anselmo Homes Association has unanimously approved the commuter toll indent of the association, reported.

He said he move came Thursday night after a report by member Anne West to the association that the development of alternate means of transportation is imperative and that the toll increase will in par make such development possible.

The association also scheduled for 8 p.m.April 1 a San Anselmo City Council candidates' night in the Drake High School little theater. The meeting will be cosponsored by the League of Women Voters and other civic groups, Brand said.

He said new officers will be elected at the association's next meeting in May, but no date has been set yet.

Re-Roofing? Don't run up the cost by adding medical bills.

Re-roofing is a job for an expert. For one thing, it is dangerous work, and a fall can mean expensive medical bills. Don't take a chance. Call a state-licensed, insured roofing contractor who employs trained union craftsmen. He'll guarantee his work, and you'll be guaranteed freedom from the expenses of an unexpected accident. Pride, fear, and confusion are stopping 5 million disabled from getting the help they need.

Five million disabled people are in need of our help. And we can't find them. Either they don't know where to go for help or they won't go.

Some are disabled physically. Others mentally. Some are living in the past. Others, disabled from birth, have no past.

But most, with proper guidance and medical aid, could be living instead of existing. They could be learning to take care of themselves. They could be taught interesting jobs. They could be getting more out of life than they're getting.

So if you're disabled (or concerned about someone who is), write to us for help.

You've got nothing to lose but your disability.

What's stopping you!

Barbershop Buffs Looking For Lost Chord

The Marin chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America needs bassos.

Also baritones.

Also tenors.

Also guys who sing "lead."

In an effort to get them, the SPEBSQA will have a free "open house audition" Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the little theater of Redwood High School in Larkspur.

"No bathtub singer should miss this opportunity," declaimed Tom Knight of Ignacio, SPEBSQA chapter president, "especially if he's never sung in a close harmony group.

"There's danger, though," he added. "The first time you lock in on a natural harmony chord it's a mind-blowing experience. It's worse than a drug. Once you get hooked, you can't turn yourself on alone. You have to find three other guys."

Reason for the audition tomorrow night is that the Marin Barbershoppers are trying to expand their Golden Gate Harmony Chorus into a 100-voice orter has three registered quarganization.

Besides the chorus, the chaptets, the Big Time Operators, the Bay Rums, and the Golden Gaters. They'll "ring a few chords" at the audition tomorrow, according to Knight. More are "in the works," he said.

The group meets every Tuesday at 8 p.m. for about two and one-half hours of singing under direction of Ned Hardin, music instructor at Balboa High School in San Francisco. The meetings alternate between Angelico Hall of Dominican College, San Rafael, and San Clemente School on Paradiste Drive in Corte Madera.

A culm or stem of bamboo springs up at a phenomenal rate: in hot, moist weather some species grow as much as three feet in 24 hours.

Span Commuters Slate A Session

The Golden Gate Commuters Association, a citizens group formed in December to oppose higher tolls on the Golden Gate Bridge, will hold a public meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in Room 311 of the Marin County Administration Building.

Chairman Martin Strauss of Fairfax said the meeting, the group's second, would be to draw up a statement of policy. "We hope to contribute some constructive opposition to the bridge directors' entry into the transportation business," he said.

The group formed after bridge directors hiked the cost of 25-round trip commute books from $6.50 to $10, a hike supported by several citizens groups in Marin.

Coeds Helping Hatch Owlish Plot

BERKELEY (AP) — The coeds of Stern Hall of the University of California are busy knitting little things in anticipation of a blessed event. Archimeda is about to become a momma.

Archimeda is a great horned owl who moved in with pretty, redhaired Chris Church, 19, of Richmond, last fall in violation of a university rule on pets.

"What owl?" said house mother Doloreta Farnsworth coyly when questioned about the bird with the huge yellow eyes.

"We have quite a few owls in the trees around Stern. . we really enjoy watching them."

Miss Rhuch also enjoys watching Archimeda hooting gently over a single egg in a cornflakes box-nest on the balcony of the dormitory room.

"Too -wit! Too- WOOOOO!" says Archimeda, cocking her head to one side.

Archimeda's mate, Merlin, lives in aeucalyptus tree next to the dormitory. When the expectant mother isn't setting, she's up there with Merlin too-witting and too-wooing.

An associate dean, who asked her name not to be used, confirmed Friday that the university would like Archimeda evicted, saying the rules "prohibit all animals."

Miss Church and the other coeds say they're confident no universety is so hard-hearted as to toss an expectant mother out on her tailfeathers.

Kentfield Board Sets Lot Survey

The Kentfield School District board has authorized a house and lot survey to predict the probable size and location of the student population for the next five years.

Results of the survey, made by parent volunteers, will be used to redesign present attendance boundaries for the district's three schools, according to the board in April.

Richmond Bridge Traffic Is Up

Traffic on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge totaled 501,042 vehicles during November, up from 447,053 in November the previous year, the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings reported.

Gross revenue totaled $412,680, up from $369,584.

Building First

MANILA (UPI)—A Manila construction firm has built the Philippines' first single-beam concrete house in a suburban development area. It was constructed under license from its designer and patent holder, Dr. Francesco Vanich.

A recent poll in Norway showed that in a sample population, 73 per cent approved of short skirts.

Novato Chamber Planning Assistance To Arrivals

A brochure to help new businesses open in Novato will b e put out by the Chamber of Commerce, chamber directors have decided.

A committee will be named by president George A. Barnwell to work with the city on the pamphlet, which will outline steps a new business must follow to open in the city, according to secretary Billie Carl.

The chamber would then set up a welcoming committee to help prospective businessmen get established, the directors decided Thursday.

The board also voted to try to obtain better land in areas rezoned for industrial offices and commerce, she said. Most of the industrial land is now swampland.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce board also:

LUNCHEON—Set March 5 at the Lodge for a public luncheon with Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R- San Rafael, at which he will answer questions about the state Legislature.

RECEPTION—Agreed to hold a reception for Allen V. Klemme, scheduled to take over as police chief on March 1. Time and place of the reception is to be set.

Buenos Aires is the largest Spanish-speaking city in the world, and it claims the most parks — about 150, the longest street 260 blocks, and the broadest boulevard 450 feet wide.

Assault Suspect Enters Dual Plea

Pleas of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity were entered yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Robert Leon Covic, 32, of San Francisco, who is accused of two charges of felony assault on jailers.

A preliminary hearing was set for March 27.

Covic was first arrested Jan. 22 while walking illegally on Highway 101. After his arrest he bragged that he had killed actress Sharon Tate. While being held in jail, he was accused of attacking two guards when they went into the maximum security area to investigate a light he had broken.

Collage Technique To Be Demonstrated

Gwen Stone, a San Rafael artist, will demonstrate collage technique and discuss its development in today's art Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

This is the second in a lecture series presented by the Marin Society of Artists.

The Many Talents Of John Milton Hagen

Marinite Writes Everything From Verse To Musicals

By DON KEOWN

"Don't call me a poet," remonstrates John Milton Hagen of Mill Valley. "It's an insult!"

An insult to Hagen?

"No," grins Hagen. "An insult to poets."

Then, if not a poet, what is he?

"A vegetarian," quips the irrepressible Hagen. Then slightly more seriously: "I'm what is known as a poetaster — rhymes with disaster."

And what is a poetaster?

"A POETASTER is several degrees below a poet. Let's say, a versifier, or a stanzambulist, or something."

And that is the way a conversation goes with John Milton Hagen, who, despite his protests, is most frequently referred to as a poet, and whose verse has won commendation from figures ranging from W. Somerset Maugham to Jimmy Durante, and including the likes of Ogden Nash and S. Omar Barker.

Barker, novelist, short story writer and "the cowboy poet," once referred to Hagen as "a fellow poet."

HAGEN AT once objected. But Barker was insistent, holding that Hagen's craftsmanship was such that he could only be described as a poet.

"It was nice of him to say so," says Hagen, "but I still disagree. I'm just a rhymester, a punster."

The fun-loving spirit with which Hagen approaches his verse is reflected in the titles of his books.

"I Am In Iambics" was one. "The Shrewd Nude and Other Light Verse — and Dark" was another.

FOR HIS most recent collection of verse, Hagen claims "probably the longest book title in the world."

He called it: "Lecherous, Licentious, Lascivious Lyrics Is Not the Title of This Book. The Actual Title Is the Violent Violet."

And what was it all about?

"It's concerned with sex, morals, politicians, hippies, taxes — you know, the modern scenery. Or obscenery, if you prefer."

It is contemporary satire in short and long verse.

DESPITE THE success of his efforts as poet or poetaster, Hagen is better known in most quarters as a songwriter.

Or rather, John Milton Hagen is hardly known at all as a songwriter. That work has been done under the name Sterling Sherwin, the same signature he frequently affixes to the short, pithy verse he submits to the Independent-Journal's letters-to-the-editors columns, or to the Marin Magazine's Marin Poets' Corner.

As Sherwin he is the source of some 600 songs that have been published in most English-speaking countries and have been translated into a number of foreign tongues.

FRANCIS, DAY & Hunter, who published his cowboy songs in Great Britain, described him as "America's foremost writer of western songs."

Canada and Australia later reprinted the book of his western songs, and it has remained a top-seller since World War II.

Some other Hagen-Sherwin song collections:

"Singin' in the Saddle Songs" for which Benny Bufano created the title page; "Songs of the Road and Range" and "Railroad Songs of Yesterday and Today," done in collaboration with Harry K. McClintock, who was known on the air as Haywire Mac; "Songs of San Francisco," the official book of San Francisco's Golden Gate Exposition, a second London-published "Saddle Songs" collection, and "Songs of the Gold Miners," "Songs of the Roundup," "Bad Man Songs of the Wild and Woolly West," "Songs of Road and Range" and "Western College Songs."

HIS "SINGIN" in the Saddle" songbook broke a United States record at the time when it sold 12,000 copies in its first three months on the music racks.

And one of his cowboy albums sold 100,000 copies in Britain and Australia during the war — until the paper supply ran out.

His western music has shown up as background for more than a few of Hollywood's more ambitious "horse opera" movies.

AND AWAY from the folk idiom and in the popular vein, he has produced such June-spoon numbers and novelties as "Tulips Will Bloom Again In Holland," "So Sweet," "The Moon and You," "Let's Live on Love" and "It's Reliably Reported in Certain Quarters (That I'm in Love with You).

"Yes," laughs the poet or poetaster-songwriter, "I envy Sterling Sherwin. He has an international reputation. He's a celebrity. John Milton Hagen is a comparative nobody."

But it was as both John Milton Hagen and Sterling Sherwin that he was written up in Success magazine.

AND ALSO as Hagen and Sherwin that he was featured in the now defunct popular national magazine Collier's in the late 1940s.

That piece was done by the late Dean Jennings, a fellow Marinite.

Jennings began his article

AT HIS TYPEWRITER, John Milton Hagen works in the study of his secluded Mill Valley home upon one of his current projects, which include a novel set in the Tin Pan Alley he knew so well, and a collection of short stories, as well as the poems and songs he always has going. Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792 — Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Why Can't I Do My Own Cleaning?"

You can. However, in addition to a technical knowledge of fabrics, dyes and weaves, you should -

1. Always use clean cloths, taking a clean portion for each operation.
2. If soap suds are required, make certain the fabric and colors will withstand water. Use a neutral, non-alkaline soap. Avoid excessively hot water. When necessary, use it sparingly and wipe it off quickly.
3. Use white, not colored or ethyl gasoline. Preferrably use non-inflammable carbon tetrochloride.
4. Avoid bleaching solvents unless specified.
5. Be careful handling cleaning solvents. They may irritate skin or lungs. Do not apply cleaning solvents directly to the fabric. Use a clean cloth or brush.

Yes, you can do your own cleaning, but isn't it safer, easier, more practical and economical to employ a professional drycleaner?

John Milton Hagen -- A Very Busy Marinite

Versatile Mill Valley Man Has Colorful Past, Lively Present

with a description of Hagen in the nervous years of early World War II, accompanied by some strange apparatus and hovering mysteriously around the aircraft plants and adjacent taverns of Southern California.

After several days during which he scraped up acquaintances and conversations with war plant workers and airplane test pilots, and scribbled pages of notes, some one in Burbank, suspicions aroused, summoned the police.

THE APPARATUS he was lugging around proved to be a portable organ.

And what Hagen, or Sherwin, was doing, was collecting material for some folk songs about the men and women who worked in wartime aviation.

So successful was the project that a much impressed Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker wrote a glowing introduction for the songbook, describing it as "a treasure chest of the air fraternity."

Composer-lyricist Hagen-Sherwin had never been up in an airplane, and could not tell an aileron from a harpsichord.

BUT THIS has never been a major obstacle for him. He has a unique ability for capturing, almost by osmosis, the terminology, the flavor and the attitudes of a field of work from those who do the job.

Thus he has written sea chanties without ever having been to sea. And mining songs without ever having been in a mine. And he became Amerisa's most prolific composer of original cowboy songs without ever riding a horse.

Hagen is Nebraska-born, the son of a real estate man and amateur singer who brought his family to California before World War I. Young Hagen exhibited musical talent early and it was encouraged. He studied privately and attended Stanford University where he earned his degree in 1921.

AT STANFORD, he studied under playwright Maxwell Anderson, wrote a prize-winning musical play "The Rah! Rah! Rajah," and edited the college humor magazine, the Stanford Chaparral, or more familiarly "The Chappie."

From Stanford, he went to New York City to write for a

ALTHOUGH John Milton Hagen, also known as Sterling Sherwin, insists he is not a poet, he can display these three published collections of his witty verse. The books are "I Am In Iambic," "The Shrewd Nude" and, his latest, "Lecherous, Licentious, Lascivious Verse Is Not the Title of This Book."

WITH HIS PET BOXER, Jeremiah, as his companion, John Milton Hagen reminisces over one of the several published collections of the cowboy songs that he has written. Western tunes have been his particular specialty as a writer of both lyrics and music.

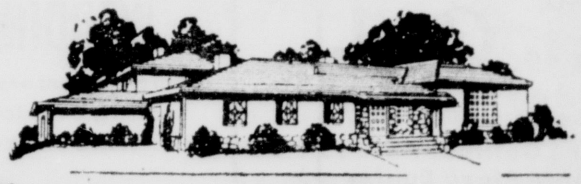
MILL VALLEY



Call Him Sherwin, Or Call Him Hagen, But Not 'A Poet'

Mill Valley Writer Disclaims Any Rights To Such A Title

western music publisher who soon left him stranded.

He survived for the next eight years by writing publicity for bands, blurbs for music publishers, theatrical articles and songs of his own, none of which turned out to be hit tunes.

AT TIMES, his diet was reduced to a breakfast of tea and cheese and a dinner of sliced green peppers and crackers, the last toasted over an alcohol lamp.

Eventually he returned to California, and it was back on the West Coast that he coined the name of Sterling Sherwin.

And it was under the name Sherwin that his work began to find a readier market and a larger audience.

The multi-talented Hagen's past also includes two plays written for Broadway and "a few Greenwich Village off-Broadway shows."

THE FIRST play, a mystery written in collaboration with Dana Rush and published by Longmans-Green, was pirated, he says, by a big producer who gave it an all-star cast. The result was a long run on the stage, and then a movie.

Hagen and Rush sued. "But," he says, "they had the better lawyers....It's a story in itself, and I'm saving it for a book of projected short stories."

His second play was actually a musical revue produced at the Daly Theater.

Hagen says: "It had a run of 4,320 minutes — or about three days. Somehow, it sounds better by the minute."

TICKETS WERE selling, he recalls, but the producer was working on a shoestring "and the shoestring broke."

His off-Broadway work he describes as "just a lot of experimental fun."

At the time Jennings wrote the Collier's piece he was struck by the complete absence of beds in the Hagen home — not the Mill Valley house Hagen now occupies, but nearby.

Hagen and his wife, whom he called "Beppo," were sleeping out-of-doors, Jennings wrote.

"Technically," says Hagen, "Dean was right. We had moved the beds out of the house. But it wasn't as Bohemian as it sounded. We were sleeping under cover -- under a roof overhang."

THE HAGENS have since divorced.

"We are still good friends," says Hagen, "even though in living in Bangor, Maine, she seems to have gone as far away from me as she can get and still remain in the United States."

At the time of the Jennings piece, Hagen was subsisting largely on a diet of peanuts and chestnuts, his munching of them beginning with breakfast and continuing through the day. Hagen then bought his peanuts 25 pounds at a time from a San Francisco Chinatown shop.

"THE PEANUTS turned out to be a front for a gambling dive, and the police raided and closed the place," Hagen remembers. "I had to find myself another source."

Nutritious peanuts remain a favorite food.

A dehydrated, shelled peanut sold by Planters in jars wins his special approval.

And he still roasts chestnuts slowly on a flat toaster on top of his stove ("first you have to stab a hole in each nut"), although he adds that "you can boil them quite successfully as well."

THE AIREDALES he favored at the time of the Jennings article have since given way to boxers. He now owns his second boxer, Jeremiah, because, like Jeremiah of the Bible who chided the populace, "he likes to go out into the woods and bark his head off at the whole world."

In his somewhat isolated home in the wooded Mill Valley hills, Hagen leads an almost recluse-like existence.

"I don't entertain at home," he says. "You just can't have people coming in and out, and get your work done."

When his work involves music, he tackles it at a small, much-used, lilliputian-sized organ.

HE OFTEN works long hours at a stretch, but he enjoys breaks in which he wanders in the fresh air among the trees with Jeremiah.

Despite his way-of-life, Hagen is not anti-social. Quite the contrary.

He does his socializing at his clubs. He is a member of the Bohemian Club and the Press Club of San Francisco.

He belongs, too, to Sigma Del-

HE USED TO buy his peanuts in 25-pound lots, but now John Milton Hagen gets them in smaller quantities. They remain his favorite food and source of energy. And he gobbles them throughout the day — sometimes even for breakfast.

ta Chi, the Mark Twain Society, the Eugene Field Society, the Late Watch and, of course, the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers. ASCAP, incidentally has scheduled a piece on Hagen for its quarterly, due out soon.

YET HAGEN insists he is not a joiner. "In most cases," he says, "I was invited to join."

A small energetic man, given to good spirits and to bursts of enthusiasm, Hagen used to rely upon a corncob pipe as his tranquilizer. But he has since given up all smoking, "although I still have quite an assortment of pipes around the house."

Essentially Hagen is an "idea man" — an innovator. His always working, creative brain has come up with such ideas as poetry in which the opening words, rather than the closing words, rhyme.

OR THE IDEA he was working with some years ago for three dimensional music with eye and nose appeal as well as sound.

"Lo and behold," he says, "one night I was watching television and there was a young fellow who played the keyboard of the instrument he had invented, and it not only made music but it also provided a colored light show, a different color for each note.

"It gave me a feeling of satisfaction that one of my old theories had been proven."

Right now, Hagen has a number of irons in the fire. One is a novel set in the Tin Pan Alley that he knew so well. Another a collection of short stories.

BUT HE STILL thinks of himself primarily as a writer of cowboy songs, the medium that first brought him success and recognition.

"Evidently," Dean Jennings wrote, "Sherwin (Hagen) has mastered the idiom in both music and verse, for his best customers are those same lonely riders of the plains."

Indeed, Hagen seems to have an ability to adopt and use just about any idiom, whether his subjects be railroaders, miners, pilots or what have you.

HE HAS EVEN written a "song without music" dedicated to would-be Golden Gate Bridge jumpers, entitled "Don't Spin Off the Span, Man!"

It begins like this:

"Oh, don't spin off the span, man,
No don't spin off the span!
Too late you may find
You've changed your mind,
Just after your dive began..."

And it ends like this:

"...For each reason why
You would 'cast your die'
There's 10 for the stay-alive plan,
Oh, don't spin off the span!"

Hagen doesn't know whether any potential suicides have heard or heeded his message. But he is confident that if they had kept as busy as he has been, and still is, they would never have contemplated a final jump in the first place.

The Seven Nuns Are Back Again

Some Things Change, But Some Do Not

Twelve years ago this date, a feature story appeared in the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine about a group of St. Raphael's Parish mothers who were preparing to present Natalie E. White's two-act comedy, "Seven Nuns at Las Vegas," under the direction of Ursula McCarthy.

Now another cast, some of them holdovers from 12 years ago, and with Mrs. McCarthy again directing, is preparing a sequel, "Seven Nuns South of the Border."

The play will open next Saturday night at 8 o'clock in St. Raphael's Auditorium, San Rafael, and will be repeated March 1, 6, 7 and 8.

AND IF MANY of the characters and some of the cast remain the same as for the 1958 play, the two productions also serve to reflect something of the changes that have occurred among Catholic sisters in America.

Mrs. McCarthy has, for instance, updated the habits of the nuns. Now the clothing is shorter and colorful in two-tone blue, and the headgear with its short veil almost whimsical.

The nuns in the new play will display more individuality in their characters, too.

THERE WAS, Mrs. McCarthy admits, a certain conformity in the 1958 production with an emphasis in the drilling upon modulation of voice and propriety of motion.

ARTIST CHARLES BROWN drew this depiction of what things can be like when seven lively nuns are on the go, as they will be in the comedy play, "Seven Nuns South of the Border." It's a sequel to a highly successful St. Raphael's Mothers Guild presentation of 12 years ago — and some of the participants in that event are again on hand.

The 1970 cast enjoys greater freedom on stage, each being allowed to flourish as an individual comic.

There have been other changes, too.

For instance, while Carl Zimmerman played Mr. Edelman 12 years ago and plays him again, the Mr. Edelman of 1958 was a nightclub owner who has now become Peace Corps head in Mexico.

A MORE DRASTIC change is that made by his wife, Jane Zimmerman, who was a Las Vegas chorus girl in the 1958 play, but who has graduated to the leading role of Mother Felicitas in the 1970 sequel.

Twelve years ago Jean Leonardi Colombo played Sister Frances. This year her mother, Evelyn Lombardi, is in the cast as Mother General Veritas.

And Mary Boracchia, who was the Reverend Mother in the original cast, is now the play's producer.

ST. RAPHAEL'S changes may not be as dramatic or as drastic as that effected by the villagers of Oberammergau, Austria, in their famed passion play, and where the man who played Christ a decade ago is now portraying Judas, but Mrs. McCarthy thinks the differences are impressive.

What has not changed, and must not, says Mrs. McCarthy, is the approach that the nuns take to all individuals and affairs, meeting them with respect, kindness and gentility.

That gracious, kindly warmth, the director believes, is typical of and essential to the nun. That and a delightful sense of humor which she also finds in nuns in real life, and which she insists upon for her own nuns on stage.

TWELVE YEARS AGO in the St. Raphael's Mothers Guild production of "Seven Nuns at Las Vegas," Carl Zimmerman had the role of Mr. Edelman and was seen in the scene with Pat Bradley, as Sister Edna, at right. In the new sequel, "Seven Nuns South of the Border," to open next Saturday at St. Raphael's Auditorium, Zimmerman again plays Mr. Edelman, and appears above in a scene with his wife, Jane, who portrays Mother Felicitas. In sharp contrast, in the 1958 show Mrs. Zimmerman had the role of a chorus girl.

THE CHANGE THAT recent years has brought about in the clothing of Catholic nuns is illustrated dramatically in these two photographs. Above, director Ursula McCarthy, right, rehearsed in 1958 the women who were to play the roles of sisters in "Seven Nuns in Las Vegas." The thespians were, left to right, Bette Botzenhardt, Pat Bradley, Pat Dillon, Jean Leonardi, Marjorie Du Bain, Jo Anne Bales (hidden) and Bette Denman. Below, Mrs. McCarthy is now directing a new group of "nuns" for the sequel, "Seven Nuns South of the Border," to open next Saturday in St. Raphael's Auditorium, San Rafael. The actresses in habits this time, again left to right, are Clara Giovannoli (hidden), Yvonne Vattuone, Beverly Biglieri, Maggie Keating, Sheelagh Steacy, Dolores Rodriquez and Jane Zimmerman. The newer nuns seem to be a more vivacious group, as well.

THIS IS A CONCEPT by Independent-Journal staff artist Jack Lucey of the tragic scene of Feb. 22, 1901, when the S.S. City of Rio de Janeiro, after running aground in San Francisco Bay, slipped from the rocks and sank to the bottom, even as a lifeboat of survivors was pulling away. The captain and 129 crewmen and passengers went down with the ship in the Washington's Birthday disaster.

A Holiday Marred By Tragedy In The Bay

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on early Marin County history written for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine by William T. Ortman, who came to San Rafael to live as a boy at the turn of the century.)

By WILLIAM T. ORTMAN

On a George Washington's birthday 69 years ago, Feb. 22, 1901, I was hunting rabbits with a friend in the hills on the north side of the Golden Gate.

It was a foggy morning, and we could hear the steady wail of a ship's whistle. It was coming from a distance, but in the almost eerie silence of the place, it was easily audible. And its persistence caused us to speculate as to its cause.

Then, quite abruptly, the prolonged blast of the whistle ceased, and instead there was heard a bubbling, gurgling sound, it, too, quite distinct. And then a complete silence.

WE MADE OUR way to the Fort Baker shoreline and found the wharf there a scene of great excitement. I learned that a ship was in distress in the foggy waters offshore. Two lifeboats with crews had been launched, and had disappeared into the mists. There was little more that could be done, except for waiting.

For an hour, perhaps longer, I waited on the dock, held there by youthful curiosity. Men walked to and fro along the wharf to keep warm. But there was little in the way of conversation.

Then an orderly from the fort came down to the dock to report that headquarters had received a call from San Francisco notifying them that a ship's lifeboat carrying survivors had just landed at Meigg's Wharf in San Francisco.

IT WAS THEN that we learned that it was a Pacific Mail Steamship Co. passenger ship, the S.S. City of Rio de Janeiro, that had gone down.

Still we waited on the pier for the return of the two lifeboats that had departed from there. And finally, from the fog we heard voices. We waited expectantly, listening to the splash of water being made by oars. And then the dark hull of a lifeboat loomed out of the gray.

As the boat glided into the wharf, we could see in its bottom the unconscious form of a survivor of the tragedy, a life preserver still around him.

HE MOANED IN delirium as he was carried from the boat to the wharf.

He was, we learned, one of the stewards from the Rio de Janeiro. And in the fort infirmary he made a quick recovery. In a few hours he was himself again. And we began to learn something of what had preceded the disaster in the bay.

On the night of Feb. 21, Capt. William Ward, skipper of the Rio de Janeiro, had anchored his ship in the fog and 11 fathoms of water outside the Golden Gate, unsure of his exact location, but believing himself to be somewhere between the pilots' light ship and the Farallones.

While the captain stood on his bridge, peering into the mists, his passengers were dancing to music in the salon.

AND WHEN Captain Ward ordered a blast from the ship's ear-splitting whistle to see if it would bounce back from the unseen cliffs of the Farallones, it was hardly heard by the merry-makers. Ominously, there was no echo.

The puzzled captain ordered the ship's fires banked and announced his intention of standing by "until this pea-soup lifts."

Second Officer Graham Coughlan, the ship's navigator, appeared to report: "Sir, the chart, log and astronomical figures all check. At the moment we are right in front of the Gate."

IT WAS 7 P.M. when Third Officer J. C. Holland came onto the bridge. "Has the pilot, Captain Jordan, come on board yet?" the skipper asked. He was told that the pilot had not, and that it was most unlikely that he would do so, considering the weather.

"We're staying right here until we pick up a pilot or we can see something," the captain decided emphatically.

After instructing the helmsman to sound the whistle every third minute for 10 seconds, Captain Ward retired to the rear of the bridge and a reclining deck chair.

It was daylight when he awoke and now the pilot, Frank Jordan, was on the bridge, talking to Conghlan.

JORDAN REPORTED that though the Rio de Janeiro was still in dense fog, "the bay was clear when I came out this morning."

When the pilot prepared to get the ship under way and headed through the gate, Ward questioned such a move in the dense fog. But when the fog parted for a few seconds, the men on the bridge could see the bright sunshine beaming upon the hills of Marin County.

"That's Fort Barry," Jordan pointed.

Ward shrugged. "You're the pilot. It's up to you. The ship is all yours." But he remained on the bridge with Jordan, eating his breakfast there.

BUT AS THE ship moved forward, it did not escape the fog as the pilot had anticipated. And when finally there was a brief separation, it disclosed a view of the Cliff House and Seal Rocks that shocked Jordan with the realization that the ship was much too far south and too close to shore.

He ordered a change in course, and increased the degree to the north when he noted how much the wind and current were dragging the vessel to the south.

Only a few minutes later, still in a thick fog, Frank Jordan came to the realization that all was lost. "Better stop the ship," he was advised by Captain Ward.

But there was no time for that. In the next instant there came a sudden, intense shock that sent the men on the bridge sprawling to the deck. The bow of the Rio pointed skyward as the ship climbed the reef of Blossom's Rock. And the steel plates on the bottom gave way inwardly with a rasping screech of ripping steel.

CHINESE DECK hands hosing down the main deck were knocked to the plank flooring.

Then the Rio's forward motion stopped, and the vessel began to settle back with the stern deep in the water. The deck listed crazily to port.

There was confusion on the deck with frightened passengers and Chinese crewmen running about. And when Captain Ward ordered that the lifeboats be prepared for launching, there was no response.

DESPERATELY, the skipper made his way to the helm, pulled down the whistle cord and fastened it to the wheel, so that its blast was continuous. The he hurried below.

"Women and children only," he ordered, and herded them toward the number one lifeboat.

Though heavily loaded with women and children, it was launched with the ship's physician in charge. It washed low in the ocean and shipped considerable water, but nevertheless remained afloat and moved clear of the Rio.

The second lifeboat was less fortunate. Filled, too, with women and children, it was only halfway to the water when its lowering tackle fouled. When crewmen released the rope, the front of the lifeboat fell into the water and women and children were thrown into the bay.

PILOT JORDAN heroically helped a young woman and her child into lifejackets and was aiding them down a Jacob's ladder that had been lowered over the ship's side. A roll of the vessel threw all three violently into the water.

Although Jordan looked for the woman and child, he found neither. And injured, he swam to some floating wreckage from where he was eventually rescued by a passing lifeboat.

Captain Ward, a hero, too, launched the third lifeboat alone by snubbing the tackle ropes on the ship's railing. The fog was so thick he could not see the boat as it came to rest in the water. But he shouted down: "Release the boat from the hooks. And get away from the ship."

AND AS THE lifeboat did so, the Rio started toward the bottom, sliding from the rocks and down into 30 fathoms of water. There was a tremendous gurgle—a death rattle—as the whistle went under the sea water.

And with his ship went the brave captain.

Drowned also were 129 passengers and crew members.

This was the story that we began to piece together that Washington's Birthday as we stood there on the Marin shoreline, one survivor safe among us and others on the far shore. More details were to come out later as newspaper men interviewed Frank Jordan and other survivors. And as a court of inquiry produced voluminous records that filled in the remaining gaps.

Dancing From The Street And The Soul

Once a week two young black men have been coming from San Francisco's Dancers' Workshop to teach dancing to all-white Marin Dance Cooperative classes of teen-agers at the Newman Center, College of Marin.

It is a kind of dancing that is far removed from the ballet lessons with which most white kids have been involved.

Lawrence (Sir) Washington Jr., one of the three instructors, describes it as "soul street dancing."

And the white pupils revel in it, Washington adds.

Working with Washington is Robert (Bo) Conley.

A THIRD BLACK teacher from the San Francisco workshop, Clint Shelby, sometimes accompanies Washington and Conley.

And with Melinda West, white, of San Francisco, a Marin Dance Cooperative product, Shelby makes up another teaching team that conducts classes for children at the Tiburon Peninsula Club under the auspices of the Mothers Club of St. Stephen's School.

When not teaching in Marin, all four work with Ann Halprin at her Dancers' Workshop at 321 Divisadero Street, San Francisco.

IT WAS THEIR association there with Mrs. Halprin, first as her students and then as her co-teachers, that eventually led the quartet to Marin.

Mrs. Halprin has been the leading light of the Marin Dance Cooperative since its inception. Until the just completed semester, she has always taught at least one of its classes. This winter she turned the teaching duties over to her young Dancers' Workshop proteges, and to other Marin Dance Cooperative faculty members.

Washington and Conley have been coming to Kentfield now for four months to instruct Marin teen-agers.

WHILE THEIR surroundings and facilities at Newman Center are less spacious and less elaborate than what they are accustomed to at Dancers' Workshop, the teachers nevertheless find a large measure of compensation in the great enthusiasm of their charges.

Bo Conley, who teaches congo drumming as well as dancing, comes from North Carolina and was a football star at Utah University.

Clint Shelby hails from Los Angeles and studied the dance at Studio Watts, a group with which Mrs. Halprin has worked. He was a lighting projectionist with the West Coast Pop Art Band and with the Electric Circus.

At RIGHT, caught up in the spirit of the dance and chanting as he performs the steps and swings his arms in rhythm is Robert Conley. Behind him a young student follows his lead to perform the dance herself. It is the vigor and freedom of the black dances that appeal to today's young people, the instructors say.

Different Kind Of Dancing

born in San Francisco and studied art and dance at Merritt College.

Of his titled nickname "Sir" he says: "I guess I got it from my father."

And why was his father called "Sir"?

"I guess because he was a gangster," he answers with a straight face.

GANGSTER'S SON or not, articulate young Washington believes there would be fewer law violators and less violence if more energy were directed toward such creative activities as the dance.

"It is the best possible form of self-expression," he argues. "That's why I would like to take our program to all the college campuses. It's an outlet, at a time when outlets are badly needed by young people."

Washington tells how, before each dance instruction session, he gives his teen-age students a pep talk "just like a football coach."

And often, he says, he winds up asking them: "And now, just what kind of dancing would you like to do today?"

AND ALMOST invariably, he adds, the preference is for dances that stress the faster and more vigorous movements.

Black street dancing, he adds, is rich in these, in contrast to the slower, more ritualistic dancing that grew up among the country blacks.

Washington and Conley are pleased with the reception which Marin's young whites have given to these dances that have been developed by the urban blacks.

BUT THEY would like to see a better ethnic distribution among their class members.

"We would like to have some black students, and some members from other minority groups," Washington says.

For a time, one young black girl did attend. But she dropped out.

The young instructors share an admiration for Mrs. Halprin and her dancing. They endorse the picture caption in the Drama Review that began: "Mother Ann, blue-eyed soul mama, number one. . . ."

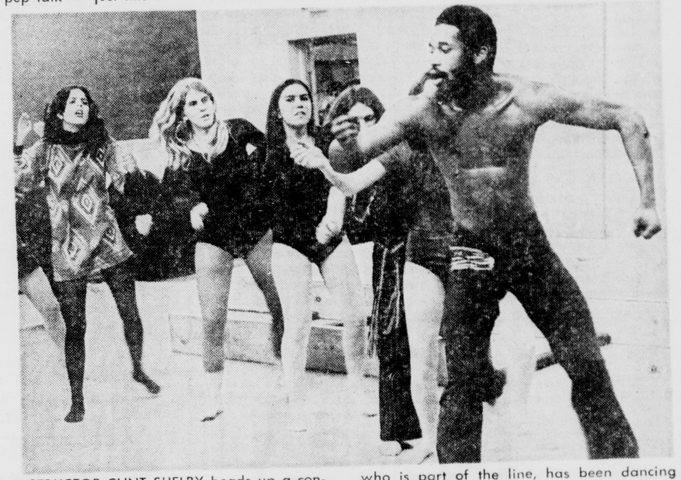
"AND SHE IS getting more soul into her work this year than ever," Washington says.

A new semester began earlier this month at Marin Dance Cooperative, and the instruction day at Newman Center for Washington and Conley was shifted from Friday to Tuesday. Other teachers conduct classes on other days.

The Marin Dance Cooperative is a non-profit organization that has been operating in the county now for 22 years. Board members are mothers of students or women particularly interested in modern dance.

Washington says he and his colleagues have found in these suburban women firm supporters of their theory that one of the best ways to eliminate racial and ethnic problems is to introduce one group to another group's culture.

BEFORE A CLASS SESSION begins, instructor Lawrence (Sir) Washington is likely to gather his young charges around him to deliver a pep talk — "just like a football coach." And the teen-agers are often given a voice then as to just what dances they will practice that afternoon.



INSTRUCTOR CLINT SHELBY heads up a congo line while he points out the intricacies of a specific step. Co-teacher Melinda West, who is part of the line, has been dancing with Marin Dance Cooperative since age 4.

Why Not A Farm Holiday In Denmark?

Perfect Way To Get To Know The Danes

"This is the first time I've really had a holiday with the kids along - we hardly saw them except at mealtimes," said a visiting housewife after she and her family had spent their vacation on a farm in Denmark.

It all began when the head of one of the local tourist associations in Jutland arranged for a few families to spend their summer vacations on a Danish farm. That was in 1966.

The following year 1,000 guests from abroad had the same pleasant experience, and a conservative estimate is that 17 local tourist associations can now offer vacation accommodations on about 300 farms all over the country, with an estimated capacity of 1,300 beds. And the project is developing fast.

ALONG WITH THIS growth have gone efforts to establish uniform prices, hygienic standards, etc.

That the farm must boast a bathroom would seem to be obvious in this modern world — and it is much more interesting to learn that another firm condition is that the farm must be a going concern, actually engaged in agricultural activities in one form or another. No dude ranches are allowed in this scheme. No half-timbered walls unless they are genuine. Real live pigs, poultry and people are the rule.

Another and equally important standard requirement is that at least one member of the farm household must have a working knowledge of the language of his guests. This is not only for obvious practical reasons, but also because the basic idea is as much that of the "bringing together" of people as merely another way of providing accommodation for more tourists.

ALSO IN KEEPING with this basic idea is the rule that no farm must take in more than eight guests at any one period. It is felt that the desired personal contact between hosts and guests cannot develop satisfactorily if more guests are taken in than a number representing one or two normal families.

Rules and regulations apart, however, the keynote is informality in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere.

The project is interesting to watch for several reasons. First of all, it demonstrates the constructive results of ready cooperation between alert and active local tourist associations, and the centralized official tourist offices, having at their disposal adequate staff, a whole network of branches in foreign countries and government contacts, as well as facilities for communication and distribution of information.

SECONDLY, THE project shows the practical possibilities of establishing cultural interchange and personal communication between visitor and host country, so often clamored for by those who, even today, look askance at international mass tourism.

True enough, we still see tourist groups being herded for full speed from one attraction to the other; but—and this is the third and most vital point of the fast-growing vacation-on-a-farm-scheme — we also see a new trend, away from hectic sightseeing and towards a more relaxed attitude.

The 11-countries-in-21-days type of tourism may not yet be a thing of the past, but the 21-days-in-one-country type of tourism is definitely a thing of the future.

It is a fact that, far from being tired of traveling, people are more ready than ever to spend their holidays abroad, provided they can find reasonable comfort at a reasonable price, combined with opportunities for recreation. Such people will love a vacation on a Danish farm.

FARMS ARE FAVORITE vacationing places for families visiting Denmark. And the farms must be the genuine thing, with livestock, crops and lots of good, fresh air. It's a perfect way for American tourists to get to truly know the Danes.

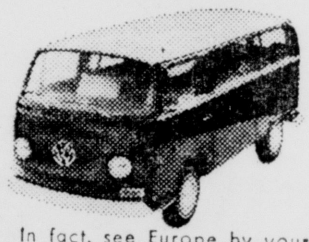
See Europe by bus.



In fact, see Europe by your choice of buses. The new Volkswagen Station Wagon comes as a 7- or 9-seater.

And there's room in the back of the bus for 10 or 12 good-sized valises.

See Leon C. Felton Co. about having a VW Bus waiting for you in Europe. We'll arrange licensing and delivery and tell you how to get it home again.

It'll be nice to have a family bus with almost twice the inside room of conventional wagons. Not to mention the money you'll save no matter where you drive it.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Some more new albums from Mercury and Philips:

BIG MAMA THORNTON—"STRONGER THAN DIRT"—Mercury SR 61225:

Like other figures of the "blues roots," Willie Mae Thornton is riding a tide of increasing public acclaim. Now that the new generation has discovered her authentic music, she can stop scrubbing floors (as she did during the lean years) and concentrate on belting out tunes like "Born Under a Bad Sign," "Funky Broadway," "I Shall be Released," and "Ball and Chain." It was Big Mama's version of the latter tune that Janis Joplin emulates in her hit performance.

This is the real thing—don't miss it.

"THE FOOL" — Mercury SR 61178:

A versatile little quartet: two gals and two fellows, with a rich instrumental backing, produced by Graham Nash of the Moody Blues, and some exquisite tune originals.

I really liked "Inside Your Mind," and the bagpiping of one of the group, Seemon. It's sort of like a meeting of Donovan (in his fairytale mood) and the symphonic Moody Blues.

Very nice artwork on the double sleeve.

THE SWINGLE SINGERS — "BACK TO BACH" — Philips PHS 600-288:

For those occasions when one tires of Bach on the Moog, electric guitar, jazz piano, or Japanese instruments and yet doesn't feel serious enough for the original article, there are still The Swingle Singers, who are at their old game for their ninth year now. The French vocalists vocalize their way through popular themes from the Well-Tempered Clavier, the Fugue in G for Organ, and the Chorale from Cantata No. 147.

"THE BEST OF NINA SIMONE" — Philips PHS 600-298:

Miss Simone is a completely individual performer who has little competition in her field. Her stage presence is fantastic, and no singer could demonstrate deeper or more honest involvement in her songs — especially those she has made her own, such as "See-Ling Woman," or "Mississippi Goddam."

This LP is a wonderful selection of songs with special meaning to Nina and her fans and will hopefully serve as a way of introducing her proud music to many new listeners.

Arizona Beckons March Visitors

Wide Variety Of Activities

There is a protean quality to the southern desert country of Arizona that gives vacations here a special flair.

Few of the nation's winter, early-spring sun-break destinations offer so much variety, so many vivid contrasts, in such a compact area.

ON A SINGLE day's outing, the visitor might:

Laze under palms or walk among pines,

Go sun-tanning, swimming, surfing or even snow skiing.

Look down at Grand Canyon or up at great mountains.

See spiny cactus or gentle, colorful flower gardens.

Watch Indian ceremonials or the shows at smart nightspots.

Drive through thriving cities or lonely ghost towns.

Roam cattle ranches or savor the delights of Old Mexico.

American Airlines, whose Astrojets serve Phoenix with frequent daily flights, points out that a typical jaunt might be from palms to pines and water sports to skiing — and back — on one vacation day.

FOR THE MAN or woman — or better yet, the entire family — seeking refuge here from drearier February and March regions, the day could start with a "wake-up" swim in the heated pool (quite likely landscaped with tall palms) of resort, hotel or motel.

Then it's less than a three-hour drive north to Flagstaff and the Arizona Snow Bowl on the 12,000-foot high San Francisco Peaks. A couple of hours skiing can be followed by a picnic lunch—a hearty one from a big basket after the morning's exercise — under the pines.

The afternoon provides a choice — exploring the volcanic areas around Sunset Crater or the ancient Indian cliff dwellings at Walnut Canyon, both national monuments. Or the visitor might prefer a look at beautiful red-rock Oak Creek Canyon, the prehistoric Indian ruins at Tuzigoot or Montezuma Castle National Monuments or the ghost town of Jerome.

All are between Flagstaff and Phoenix.

THERE WILL BE time for another dip in the pool at Phoenix before dinner. And if the sun, the water, the snow and the sightseeing haven't caused an irresistible need for sleep, you can top off the evening at a nightspot.

This year, snow skiing can be combined with surfing — although the two together might prove too strenuous a day for most folks. At Big Surf in Tempe, there are man-created waves like those off Waikiki.

On the way to Tempe there is the Desert Botanical Garden, where paved paths lead past thousands of varieties of odd cacti, succulents, scrubs and trees — all identified — typical of Southwestern desert country. Big Surf is only a few minutes driving time from the garden.

Or there are fishing and boating less than an hour's drive east on the dam-formed lakes along the scenic Apache Trail.

THE APACHE TRAIL (State Highway 88) is another illustration of diversity.

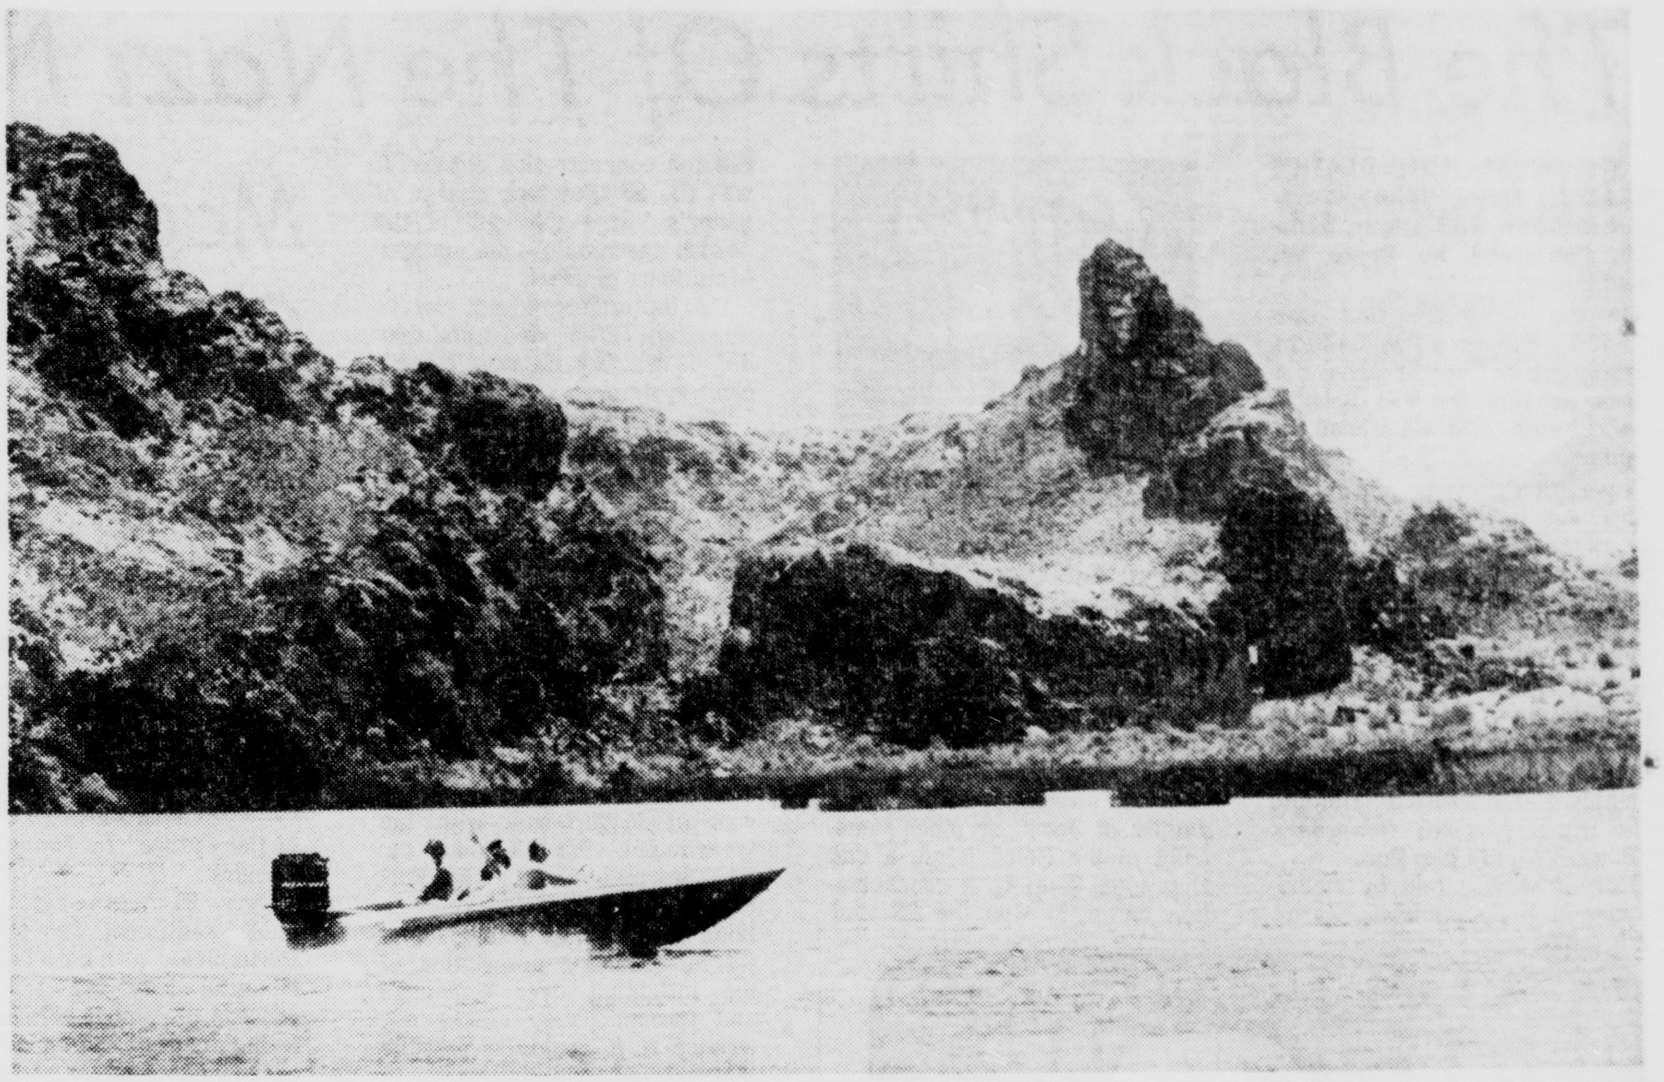
The 200-mile loop, a one-day outing from Phoenix and back, reveals natural desert gardens, the supposed location of the Lost Dutchman Mine at Superstition Mountain, former gold locales where some ore still is being mined, a trio of recreational lakes noted for their boating and bass fishing, rock-hunting sites, cliff dwellings at Tonto National Monument, extraordinary panoramas and dramatic scenery, copper mines, odd rock formations and lush irrigated citrus and date groves.

Another popular northward trip, best enjoyed on a two or three day motor drive, is Grand Canyon, about five hours by road from Phoenix. Once again, several highway loops are possible, all with different lures.

At the pine-rimmed canyon visitors can ride mules into the depths. Fairly short extensions from Grand Canyon lead to painted deserts and eroded badlands, to the Navajo Reservations with its hogans and sheep herds, and to the mesa-top villages of Hopi-land where ancient ceremonials still are danced and unusual handicrafts from dolls to silver jewelry can be bought.

SHOPPING ALSO IS a lure of Old Mexico — about a three-hour drive south of Phoenix to the border town of Nogales. Along the way, visits can be made to movie sets like Old Tucson or to nearby Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum (where you can walk through an underground tunnel and watch animals living like they normally do). Spanish and Indian lore are vivid, too, in old missions like lovely San Xavier del Bac, often called the "White Dove of the Desert" or at the imposing ruins in Tumacacori National Monument.

All the gay color — even bullfights — of Mexico, its friendly people and bargain goods are just across the border where crossing formalities are minimal. And a step away, so to speak, the hills hide numerous ghosts of frontier mining camps.



ONE OF ARIZONA'S most popular and unspoiled playgrounds, easily accessible to Californians, is Lake Havasu and its Lake Havasu City, not only the new home of the London Bridge, but also a year-round resort community. Los Angeles industrialist and sportsman Robert V. McCulloch founded Lake Havasu City just six years ago. It has become the favorite starting point for trips through the Topock Gorge of the Lower Colorado River, described as "the most scenic and spectacular region between the Grand Canyon and Mexico." Entrance to the 20-mile-long corridor is just 10 miles north of Lake Havasu City, a point that aslo marks the southern boundary of the Lake Havasu National Wildlife Refuge where some of this country's rarest waterfowl can be found. An interesting stopping point in a trip through the gorge is Picture Rock with its hundreds of Indian petroglyphs on dark stone walls that reach down into the lake waters. Another is Devil's Elbow, the lake's narrowest point with a startling contrast between sun-baked cliffs and cold deep water.

The Black Shirts Of The Nazi Nightmare

THE ORDER OF THE DEATH'S HEAD by Heinz Hohne, Coward-McCann, 583 pages, $12.-50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In the nightmare that was Nazi Germany, no uniform struck greater terror than the black shirt of the SS (Schutzstaffel) with its death's head insignia.

By most Germans, and by almost everyone in other countries, the SS was seen as the "elite" force of a monolithic totalitarian state, in which power flowed from the fuehrer to the Sicherheitzpolizei by a perfectly ordered system in which no one questioned and no one hesitated. Adolf Hitler's Nazi regime was seen as the very model of totalitarianism, the twisted triumph of German passions for order.

It wasn't quite like that.

How it was is told by Heinz Hohne in his meticulous, carefully researched and thoroughly documented history of the SS, "The Order of the Death's Head," which has been translated from the German by Richard Barry, an Englishman.

Reviews Of New Reading

The SS was no less terrible than it appeared to the world. It was the SS that knocked on the door at midnight to hustle a family of Jews, or other "enemies of the Reich," into a van that took them to a concentration camp. It was the SS that ran the concentration camps. It was the SS that took charge of Hitler's "final solution" of the Jewish question — the murder of millions of Jews.

But the orders did not always flow from Hitler. And when they did, it was by no simple, efficient system.

The party-government structure of Nazi Germany was made up of an overlapping hodgepodge of jurisdictions, each fighting always to expand its own power. That the SS came at last to be the most feared of all was because its head, Heinrich Himmler, connived more cleverly and retained his close ties to Hitler longer than most of the others in the reichsfuehrer's inner circle.

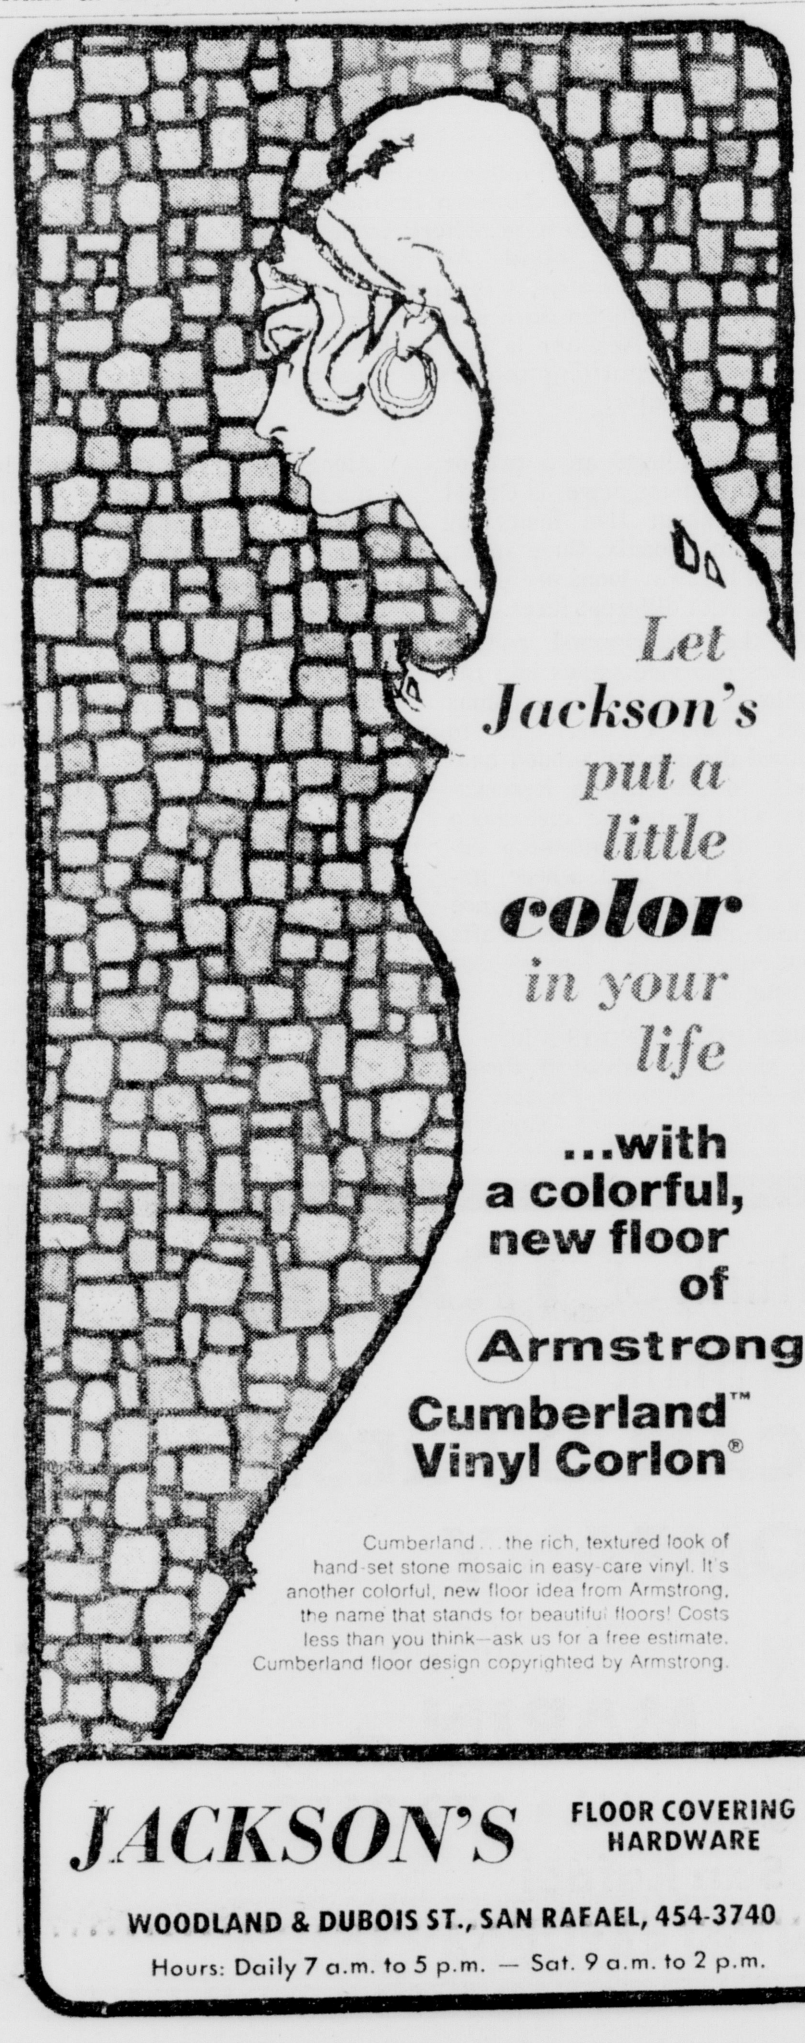
At one time or another, the SS was at loggerheads with the Wehrmacht, the Gestapo, the SA (Sturmabteilung), the Foreign Ministry. And SS organizations even warred among themselves. (Hohne's description of the infighting over espionage and foreign policy makes one wonder if it could be possible that similar infighting exists in our own country among the CIA, the Foreign Service, and the intelligence arms of Army, Navy and Air Force.) Some of the cruelest and most insane Nazi policies were born in this struggle for power within the government itself.

The story of the SS is a sordid but fascinating one. And it ends on a chilling note. Hohne writes:

"In one of these prison-camp discussions (after the fall of the Third Reich), the former SS-Untersturmfuehrer Erich Kernmayr shouted: 'When our troops marched into Czechoslavakia after Munich did we say "no" in our heart of hearts? Did we then say "no" even to ourselves? No, a thousand times no! We were intoxicated by a vision of world power. It gripped the people like a great frenzy. The frenzy of power.' "

"This march of the devotees of power knew no limits and disregarded all norms; its effects were all the more disastrous in that these youthful standard-bearers of this supposedly new Germany were not simply under the spell of the dictator's magic; they were also swayed by that old German belief that Government can do no wrong and if it does, then, by differentiating between his private life and his official duty, a citizen can emerge unsullied from any task laid upon by the state."

An "old German belief" — but only German?



Magnificent Career Of A Revolutionary

PIONEER OF THE FUTURE: MARGARET SANGER by Emily Taft Douglas; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 262 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Suzanne D. Stamler.

In the era of revolution and controversy surrounding the pill, population, pollution and civil liberties, Margaret Sanger re-emerges in a well-balanced biography, "Pioneer of the Future" by Emily Taft Douglas.

Over 60 years ago when public sentiment was strictly Puritanical, a heroic and beautiful lady led a lonely crusade to combat human suffering caused by unwanted pregnancies and to stem the tide of runaway populations.

Today Margaret Sanger takes her place in history as one of the truly great revolutionaries who had the vision and daring to pursue the cause of birth control until it became generally accepted and sometimes practiced.

With a dedication akin to Jeanne D'Arc, Margaret Sanger fought against a hostile world, unleashing an avalanche of social reaction that led to public rebuke and personal anguish.

Undaunted by eight jail sentences, intellectual limitations, domestic crises, divorce and ill health, she established birth control clinics throughout the world, spurred the medical profession to endorse contraception, urged foreign countries to alter their population patterns and won new interpretations of existing laws.

"But the test of her work," the author writes, "was not measured in abstractions, but in the reduction of human tragedies. Today birth control not only saves the lives of countless mothers, but enhances the health and happiness of many times that number."

Yet her dedication did not deny her feminine charms and admirers. Margaret Sanger was a woman whose fragile beauty, impish gaiety and adventurous spirit drew her into life-time liaisons with some of the most daring thinkers of her day, such as Havelock Ellis and H. G. Wells.

MARGARET SANGER
A lonely crusade

"H. G. Wells thought Margaret was the greatest woman in the world." But others thought she was reckless and immoral. Domestic duties were often forsaken for her global cause. It was her mother's early death at child birth that instilled a deep rejection of her domestic role and a need to right the wrong her mother suffered.

Commitment to her cause to save lives by controlling births was further realized when as a young nurse she saw death, disease and suffering as the midwives of illegal abortions, infant starvation and too frequent pregnancies.

The book is a well-documented profile of a woman whose fascinating personality and single-minded purpose are richly interwoven into a single piece.

The author, a former congresswoman-at-large, and the wife of former Sen. Paul Douglas, is a polished professional at handling factual material with fluency and fluidity.

Interspersed with the text are somewhat faded photographs that further document incidents that were milestones in a magnificent career.

A Not-So-Funny Douglas

SHUT UP AND EAT YOUR SNOWSHOES! by Jack Douglas, Putnam's, 251 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

If you watch the nightly talk shows — namely Merv Griffin — you've no doubt heard it first hand — the escape to the Canadian backwoods by comedy writer Jack Douglas, his wife, Reiko, son, Bobby, and assorted large animal types.

Now its all down in print thanks (?) to G. P. Putnam's Sons.

Briefly it's the escape of the Douglas household from suburbia USA to the bushland of Northern Canada. From the jumping off spot — Blue Lake — it's 116 miles from the nearest parcel of civilization. But really not too far for the Douglases to escape to New York to keep Merv company.

While there is nothing wrong with Douglas' style of writing, I tended to say "so what?" after a couple of chapters. I can't feel too sorry for them. When the elements get too rough they can always flee to the comfortable, uptight elements of civilization, New Milford, Conn., where they maintain other digs.

Personally I would rather hear Douglas tell his many funny crisis stories on a television show than read about them.

BY DON KEOWN

THE FIRST HURRAH by Richard O'Connor; Putnam's, 318 pages, $6.95.

Did ugly religious prejudice cause Americans in 1928 to reject the better qualified presidential candidate, and thus bring disaster upon themselves?

It is one of the many myths of American history that Alfred E. Smith, the "Happy Warrior" from the sidewalks of New York, was defeated by Herbert Clark Hoover solely because of his Roman Catholic faith. And that, if this had not occurred, Smith might have enabled us to avoid, not only the depression, but also the ominous war clouds that began darkening in the early 1930s.

A reading of Richard O'Connor's new biography of Smith, "The First Hurrah," exposes the fallacy of these beliefs.

Voters that Nov. 6, 1928, had more reason than Smith's religion to mark their ballots in Hoover's favor.

Certainly Smith was the more personable of the two. But this was before television accentuated charismatic qualities. And the truth was that Smith took into the campaign almost nothing in the way of experience beyond the state governmental level. He had a minimum acquaintanceship with national and international affairs, although, admittedly, this last was far less important then than it became in later campaigns.

In 1928, too, Smith stood as the symbol of the urban way of life — "the most powerful conservative in urban America," Walter Lippmann had called him — , and while the scales were tipping, they were still weighted in favor of rural America, a sector particularly suspicious of the New Yorker's well-publicized Tammany affiliations.

Even with these differences, Smith failed to present a really striking contrast to Hoover in his political, social and economic views. Smith, one-time crusader, had become as much the pal of the big business men as any Republican, and his ideas no longer worried them.

There was, too, widespread resistance to Smith's anti-Prohibition stance.

And finally, Hoover began the campaign with a built-in advantage as a Republican. The Grand Old Party was then the majority party, entrenched in office throughout the 1920s and riding the crest of national prosperity. There was little warning of the crisis ahead and nothing to induce the voters to make a change.

All these factors O'Connor brings out. He pays less attention to the fact that the votes lost to Smith because of his Catholicism among the bigoted and fearful were to a considerable measure offset by Roman Catholic block voting — by his co-religionists who voted for Smith simply because he was a Catholic.

Nor does O'Connor's book substantiate the claim of some that Smith would have guided the nation around the pitfalls that spelled depression.

True, the cocky little man in the derby hat had begun his political career as a progressive humanitarian in the field of social legislation, although always a fiscal conservative. Gradually he had become more and more the conservative, less and less the liberal, until by the late 1920s there was little reason to have expected him as President to have acted differently or more effectively than did the inept Hoover when the economy began to skid.

Indeed, yet later, he became the embittered and jealous critic of the man who did possess the vision and the daring to act, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. And almost always it was destructive criticism, devoid of constructive alternatives.

Smith admirer though he is (and Roosevelt is never given the best of it, or even an even break in O'Connor's reconstruction of that historic feud), the author nevertheless admits that his hero would not have been able to ward off either the depression or World War II, to say nothing of solving the class and race problems that were already festering beneath the more apparent wounds.

O'Connor's presentation of the Al Smith story is somewhat disappointing, considering his past record as a biographer. The pace is sometimes almost a plod, and consequently Smith emerges a less colorful, interesting and impressive figure than he must have been.

If O'Connor's earlier narration is not up to the stature of his subject, he attempts to recompense for this in his summary. While bewailing the tragedy of Smith's final, wasted, embittered years, he sees him, nevertheless, as the first great architect of the urban coalition that was to lift the Democrats from minority to majority party status, and pave the way for Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson.

Indeed, Smith did lay some of the foundation. But Roosevelt built the structure. And it was within his work that the people sought shelter from the storms of the depression.

As O'Connor himself says in closing his book: ". . . it is the legend that survives."

And if the legend of Al Smith has somehow become greater than the man, and if O'Connor is himself sometimes susceptible to those myths, it is all in keeping with an American tradition that we rarely remember or retell the past exactly as it happened.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE LAUGHING POLICEMAN by Maj Sjowall and Per Wahloo; Pantheon, 211 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The Swedish husband-and-wife team of Maj. Sjowall and Per Wahloo seem to be getting better and better in their writing of crime novels.

Certainly this one is a splendid example of the police procedural story.

Stockholm is shocked by a mass murder, a far rarer occurence in Scandinavia than it is in America. Eight passengers on board a city bus have been riddled by submachine gun fire. One was a detective. Another is unidentified. The others represent a wide range of occupations and ages.

For Martin Beck and his fellow detectives, the investigation proves to be a long, hard, often exasperating and frustrating one. But eventually they reach the truth.

Their search for the perpetrator of the horrifying and puzzling crime is a quest that commands the reader's attention all the way, peopled as it is by some very real characters who act and react just as one might expect human beings to behave under such circumstances. Even the mass murderer, when finally unmasked, is believable, if terrible.

WHAT WINTER MEANS TO ME

Winter is the pouring rain
Splashing on my window pane;
Running in the rain with glee—
That's what winter means to me.

Winter is the Christmas tree,
Candy canes and shopping spree,
Christmas carols, mistletoe—
That's what winter means, you know.

Winter comes, and winter goes;
Spring soon comes to melt the snows.

How Much Color Will You Have This Spring?

Garden Page

Will your garden really come alive with color this spring?

Are you sure?

If, after giving the question some second thoughts, you are uncertain, it is still not too late to take some effective corrective steps.

There are a number of plants and shrubs in the nurseries that are blooming, or almost ready to burst into bloom, and all you need to do is to plant them in the spots where you are confronted by a color shortage. No one else will know that you didn't set them out months ago.

IT IS, OF course, too late to plant spring-blooming bulbs (summer-blooming bulbs are another matter). But at some nurseries you might find container-grown daffodils, tulips and hyacinths whose flowers can be enjoyed indoors, or planted in the garden for "instant color."

Azaleas have been blooming for some time, and are still doing so. By selecting different varieties, you can have color from these dependable performers half the year, into the late spring.

The same holds true for camellias. And the color choices among the camellias and azaleas are delightful. Both make excellent landscape specimens.

DAPHNE, WHICH has been dispensing its fragrance in some gardens for weeks, can still be found in bloom, willing to share its lovely scent for yet more weeks.

Look, too, for the deciduous shrubs that have already broken their winter's rest or soon will be doing so, with a dazzling display of color. The star magnolia (Magnolia stellata) is one of these, and can be found cloaked in white flowers whose beauty will be the talk of your neighborhood.

Annuals such as pansies, violas and Iceland poppies are quick to flower and true reminders of the spring season.

SOME NURSERIES will have large-sized calendulas (bright oranges, golds, yellows) and fairy primroses (pinks, white, lavenders) already in bloom. These will continue to show color until late spring.

There are other trees, shrubs and smaller blooming items that Marinites have learned to rely upon for their spring garden color. The nursery is the place to find them. And you still have ample time to make sure that your garden does, indeed, reflect the gaiety and freshness that is spring.

IF YOU ARE confronted by a lack of early spring color in your garden, there are a number of trees and shrubs available that will provide the necessary transfusion. But don't overlook the smaller annuals, such as the pansies pictured here, as a source of quick color. They bloom quickly and provide lots of spring color. Pansies can be used in beds by themselves for a mass effect, in border plantings, or tucked in a few plants here and there for a cheery garden note. Greet Your Guests With Evergreens

The place to greet your guests is outside the front door, not in person, but in the plant life you have stationed there.

An entryway planting gives that all-important first impression. This is one place where neatness counts and you want a planting that puts up a good front. In such an area, therefore, evergreen plants are needed, and there are many desirable evergreen shrubs to fill-the-bill.

First, the trim yew pine (Podocarpus) is a landscaper's favorite. In a tub or in the ground, this upright grower has eye-appeal. It's neither a yew nor a pine, but its fine texture and rich green color is a distinctive addition to the entryway.

IT'S EASY TO get overly enthusiastic over camellias, but this versatile shrub meets this challenge admirably, especially in filtered shade. The glossy evergreen foliage is reason enough to plant them—the long blooming season with profusions of lovely blossoms is a colorful bonus.

For a clipped look, try boxwood at either side of the entrance—in tubs or in the ground. The neat applish-green foliage is handsome. You can prune these into pyramids or globe-shapes.

Darker green are myrtus and wax-leaf privet. The latter has larger foliage and is usually available in nurseries already trained in interesting shapes—like tree forms and topiaries.

IF THE ENTRANCE is along a walk that parallels the house, espaliered plants will create a pleasing "reception area." Pyracantha, loquats, magnolias and evergreen pears lend themselves to espaliering against a wall.

Where shade predominates, gold dust plant (Aucuba) is a stunning sight. The popular all-green aucuba is also a favorite in such areas.

The list doesn't end here. These and other shrubs will all welcome your guests in the manner you wish.

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔All bareroot roses, fruit and nut trees should be planted this month, while they are still available.

✔It's a good time for planting groundcovers, too. Consider the new ground-hugging junipers for a beautiful show in difficult garden spots.

✔Bloom-time is a good time for moving camellias or azaleas if they must be moved. Use a nurseryman's mix in transplanting them to assure sturdy development of new roots.

✔Snails? Use bait or pellets at strategic points in the garden to control them.

✔If you have not already done so, better take care of pruning those hydrangeas.

✔Feed established roses between now and mid-March. Do not feed newly-planted ones until they are established.

✔Summer-blooming bulbs should go into the ground now.

WHAT WINTER MEANS TO ME

Winter is the pouring rain
Splashing on my window pane;
Running in the rain with glee—
That's what winter means to me.

Winter is the Christmas tree,
Candy canes and shopping spree,
Christmas carols, mistletoe—
That's what winter means, you know.

Winter comes, and winter goes;
Spring soon comes to melt the snows.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST by Oscar Wilde — Two young men throw off the shackles of Victorian prudery, escaping to a romantic rendezvous where girls don't equate love with marriage.

LITTLE MALCOLM AND HIS STRUGGLE AGAINST THE EUNUCHS by David Halliwell — Bay Area premiere of a timely drama of youth in revolt. A suspenseful comedy, pertinent and provocative.

THE BLOOD KNOT by Athol Fugard — Half-brothers, one poor and black skinned, the other worldly and light enough to pass for white, are reunited after years apart.

THE TEMPEST by William Shakespeare — An eerie procession of goddesses, clowns, magicians, sprites and spirits weaves mythically and magically through "Such stuff as dreams are made of."

THE ROSE TATTOO by Tennessee Williams — A mourning widow's denied love hunger explodes in a violent affair, shattered when the truth of her late husband's philandering is revealed.

OEDIPUS REX by Sophocles — Fate stalks a haunted young king as he discovers himself a murderer and an unwitting accomplice to incest.

ST. JOAN by George Bernard Shaw — A scathing indictment of the evils of an insidious bureaucracy wreaking its horrible will and vengeance upon an idealistic young girl.

HADRIAN VII by Peter Luke — London and New York prize-winning drama that catapults an eccentric, impoverished writer from obscurity to the Papacy.

NOTHING is more essential to a successful home workshop than a good workbench. Easi-Bild's "Workbench Book No. 672," available from Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, for $1, contains complete directions for building three such benches. There's a six-foot workbench with two big drawers, a large shelf and other special features. The pattern can also be used for constructing a child's-size bench. There's a four-foot fold-away workbench especially useful to apartment dwellers.

When Toilet Tank Acts Up, Here's What You Can Do

Easy Accessibility Makes Repairs Relatively Simple For Handyman

By ANDY LANG

The top of an old-fashioned toilet tank, still in use in the large majority of residential bathrooms, is not attached. It can be removed simply by lifting it off the tank.

There's good reason for this easy accessibility to the inner workings of the tank. No piece of equipment in the house is likely to require more attention over the years. And the only way that you can even find out what the trouble is, let alone repair it, is to remove the tank cover.

If you flush the tank while the cover is off, you'll quickly note how it operates. Turning the handle lifts a rubber ball (or similar object) at the bottom of the tank, sending gallons of water rushing through the opening into the toilet bowl. As soon as the tank is emptied, water comes rushing back into it through the supply pipe, usually at the left side of the tank. As the water in the tank rises, it pushes upward the round metal or plastic float at the end of a horizontal rod. When the ball reaches a certain height, it automatically shuts off the valve in the supply pipe, thus stopping the entry of water into the tank.

When everything is working properly, the tank is silent after water no longer enters it. When it isn't, water continues to drip or even flow from the tank into the bowl. This can be due to any one of a number of reasons.

If the ball at the bottom of the tank does not drop properly onto the valve seat, water leaks under it and goes into the bowl. The ball may not be dropping accurately, in which case it can be adjusted; or it may be so old that it requires replacement, which is done by screwing it off the rod; or the valve seat may have rust or grit on it, correctable by rubbing it with steel wool.

If the float at the end of the horizontal rod has lost its buoyancy because it has sprung a leak, it may fail to shut off the supply float valve. Unscrew it from the rod and shake it to see whether there is water in it. If so, buy a new ball. If it appears to be all right, bend the rod slightly downward, using both hands so as not to throw the entire mechanism out of alignment. Then replace the float.

If everything appears to be in order, but the supply valve isn't working efficiently, usually evident by a leak at the top of the supply pipe, you'll have to replace the valve washer or get a new part. The important part of this operation is to shut off the water going to the tank, usually by means of a handle underneath the tank. If you aren't sure how to replace the valve washer, go to your local hardware dealer, tell him what you want and ask him to show you how to make the replacement. Many hardware stores have the inside of a flush tank on display, which will make the dealer's explanation crystal clear.

Even if nothing is wrong with the toilet tank in your home, it's a good idea to take the cover off and flush it half a dozen times so that you can learn exactly how it operates.

Give Child His Own Psychedelic Bulletin Board

Handyman's Pages

Any grade school child would enjoy having a "psychedelic" bulletin board in his or her bedroom.

In fact, the youngster can let imagination run wild in selection of shapes, patterns and colors.

First, it should be oversize, so that school and hobby exhibits won't interfere too much with the rainbow of colors that might be chosen for any far-out design.

A four-by-seven or four-by-eight foot panel of Masonite Peg-Board is an ideal size. One slightly narrower would fit on a closet or room door, too.

Just remember to include spacers behind the Peg-Board for fixtures used in hanging the displays.

Water paints applied with fingers can be used to decorate the panel. Some children would prefer sketching their design in chalk first, and then following the outlines with the paint. Others will design as they go.

If the child is too young for this creative project, mom or dad will enjoy doing it instead.

As variations, the child or his parents might choose to complement the bulletin Peg-Board with smaller wall plaques of similar free-style design.

Simply use unperforated hardboard, sold at lumber yards.

Hang the plaques on the wall by means of dime store hangers fastened to the backs.

Nixon Told Volunteers May Bring End To Draft By 1971

Recruit Pay Hikes, Vet Benefits Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special commission told President Richard M. Nixon today the draft can be eliminated next year and the armed forces switched gradually to an all-volunteer basis with higher pay and other reforms.

The commission told Nixon "the nation's interests will be better served by an all-volunteer force, supported by an effective standby draft, than by a mixed force of volunteers and conscript."

The 15-member group, set up last March, recommended that the Nixon administration ask congress for prompt enactment of pay increases, particularly for young first enlistment servicemen and lieutenants, and other improvements. It proposed that the draft law die June 30, 1971.

Achievement of an all-volunteer military force would carry out a major campaign pledge by Nixon.

FIRST YEAR COST

The panel estimated it would cost about $3.24 billion to put the new draft-free force into effect the first year. This would raise the defense budget for fiscal 1971 to a total of more than $75 billion .

The group took no stand on how big an all-volunteer force should be, but offered proposals for a two-million or three-million man force to cost between $1.5 billion and $4.6 billion for a three million-man force on a continuing basis.

It appeared to lean toward a middle ground force of about 2.5 million at an annual cost of about $2.1 billion.

Military manpower specialists have said in advance that the commission was trying to reach an all-volunteer force at an unrealistically low cost.

In the past, government studies have suggested a true all-volunteer force would require up to $17 billion more a year.

1971 GOAL

The 15-man panel headed by former Secretary of Defense Thomas Gates, said it believes that if reforms including increased skill pay and reserve pay and greater recruiting efforts, put into effect this year, enough volunteers will be attracted to the service to permit transition to a wholly voluntary armed force in 1971, with the draft machinery on a standby basis for emergencies.

The United States now has about 3.3 million men under arms and is gradually reducing that force as troops are withdrawn from the Vietnam war.

Pay increaes would be concentrated largely with the first-term serviceman, raising the average base pay for a private from $180 a month to $315 a month and increasing fringe

Nine City Council Contests

There will be contests for city council posts in nine of the 10 Marin cities holding elections April 14.

The exception is Ross, where Frederick S. Allen and Roy Farrington Jones are unopposed for reelection.

It is not unusual for Ross to have no contest for council. In fact, it is unusual when it does, although two years ago it had seven candidates for three council openings. One "nonestablishment" candidate, radio disc jockey Jack Carney, was elected that time, but resigned before he had served a year.

Aside from the Ross no-contest, the races April 14 will vary from three candidates for two positions in Larkspur to seven candidates for two positions in Novato.

San Rafael has no city election this year, electing in odd-numbered years.

Candidates, with the number of positions to be filled shown in parentheses for each city, are as follows:

BELVEDERE (2) — Beatric S. Mann, Vernon E. Perry, Willard G. Pittman, Alan Steinau. (Neither Sally Mathews nor John R. Moore, whose terms expire, is seeking re-election.)

CORTE MADERA (3) — Edward W. Colthurst (incumbent), David I. Freed, Patricia Friend, Herber C. Leney, Holmes S. Norville (incumbent), Harold B. Wagstaff (incumbent).

FAIRFAX (3) — Winston R. Curtis, Frank J. Egger (incumbent), Albert E. Gately, James K. Henington, Lee Nelder, Robert R. Souza (incumbent) , Adelaide P. Wilson (incumbent).

LARKSPUR (2) — Neil R. Brixon (incumbent), Raymond C. Kesner, Alfred J. Malvino (incumbent).

MILL VALLEY (2) — Jean Barnard, Edward J. Boessenecker (incumbent), Dolph F.

NORMAN LIVERMORE JR.
Federal post next?

Livermore Wooed By D.C. Offer

Norman B. Livermore Jr. of San Rafael, state secretary for resources, has been offered the post of undersecretary of th interior by the Nixon administration.

Livermore declined comment today on the report that he had been offered the position, but other high-ranking state Republicans said they were aware the offer had been made approximately a week ago. They did not know, however, whether Livermore would take the job.

If he accepted, Livermore would succeed Russell E. Train, recently named chairman of the White House Environmental Council. The job pays $40,000 a year compared with the the $35,000 Livermore is paid as resources secretary.

Livermore was named administrator of the State Resources Agency in Janurary 1967 and heads five departments—parks and recreation, fish and game, conservation, water resources, and harbors and watercraft.

He is considered one of the administration's strongest executives and presumably would be under pressure from the governor to remain in Sacramento.

Philippine Peso Is Devaluated

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine government announced today a "free market exchange rate for the peso, starting immediately. The central bank described is as an alternative to devaluation but it had the same effect.

When banks open Monday, the $1, now traded for 3.90 pesos, is expected to bring from 5.50 to 6 pesos.

VICTORY FOR REAGAN

Regents Up Cost For Cal Studies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Breaking a century-old tradition, the University of California Board of Regents has decided to charge students tuition for the first time.

The decision to impose tuition —which the Regents termed an "educational fee"—came in a 16-6 vote Friday. It was a personal and political victory for Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor had urged ending the tuition-free tradition at the 106,000-student, nine-campus university system ever since the Regents fired Clark Kerr as university president in 1967.

At present, California residents pay $300 a year in fees for medical and other non-educational services, but do not tuition—the actual cost of their education. The average cost for all expenses is $2,400 a year.

The Regents established a tuition schedule requiring undergraduates to pay an extra $150 this autumn and an extra $300 in September, 1971.

Tuition for graduate students will be $180 this fall and $360 next year. The new "educational fee" schedule will also apply to out-of-state students who, unlike residents, already pay tuition.

Income from tuition was estimated at $18 million the first year and double that the second, The tuition will be placed in a special fund to be spent at the discretion of the Regents.

The new tuition charge, however, will not apply to medical, dental or pharmacy students at the 102-year-old university. Their fees will be discussed at the Regents' meeting next month.

The Regents' decision to charge tuition was expected to

Israeli-Bound Jetliner Falls; Second Blasted

WUERENLINGEN, Switzerland (AP) — A Swissair passenger plane bound for Israel crashed in a forest several hundred yards from Switzerland's first atomic research reactor Saturday. All 47 persons aboard, including 11 Israelis, were killed.

Listed among them was one of Israel's top heart specialists, Dr. Hanoch Milvitzky of Hadassah hospital in Jerusalem.

The plane had taken off from Zurich on a flight to Tel Aviv. had radioed the control tower Airport officials said the pilot that there was a fire aboard and had been instructed to return to Zurich. He acknowledged the message and was heading back when the plane went down, the officials said.

Some witnesses said they heard an explosion as the plane approached Wuerenlingen at low altitude. Others said the aircraft was on fire as it fell into the forest and exploded on impact.

The shock wave broke window panes in nearby houses.

Airport officials said the plane, a Conrado manufactured by General Dynamics Corp., disintegrated in the crash.

Witnesses crowded around the crash scene as police and investigators combed the wreckage. Bodies were strewn around and some were wedged between the branches of trees.

In Tel Aviv, dozens of Israeli families converged on Lod In-

North Viets Capture Laos Post, Ambush U.S. Troops In Vietnam

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Swept from the Plain of Jars by an overwhelming North Vietnamese blow, the Laotian government garrison retreated in confusion Saturday with a third of its force dead or missing.

"There is utter confusion and chaos," said a high Laotian army officer. "We do not know where the government units are, whether the wounded are still lying on the plain or whether they have got into the mountains."

The government garrison of 1,500 men based at Xieng Khouang was hit by 6,000 North Vietnamese supported by tanks. By midday the enemy controlled nearly all the plain. Officials said more than 500 defenders were killed or missing. North Vietnamese losses were unknown.

Sources in Saigon said U.S. fighter-bombers from bases in Thailand said Laos' tiny air force flew more than 200 sorties trying to stay the North Vietnamese advance.

Military sources in Vientiane reported the North Vietnamese had concentrated 20,000 troops in the area of the plain, 125 miles northeast of Vientiane.

The remainder of the 10,000-man force of Gen. Vang Pao, the Laotian commander, was preparing for a bitter stand to deend fhis headquarters at Long Cheng, 30 miles southwest of the plain.

The North Vietnamese opened their campaign Feb. 12 to capture the plain, which controls vital roads leading from North Vietnam. Three times they attacked the airfield at Xieng Khouang with smaller units and were repulsed.

State Coaches Bloc Claims Hirsute Athletes Girlish

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO—Claiming that long hair on boys "connotes feminity," the California Coaches Association yesterday urged a federal judge to uphold Redwood High School's short-hair rule that ousted four runners from the track team.

The association filed a friend-of-the-court brief with Judge George B. Harris of U.S. District Court, who gave the four runners until March 3 to file a reply.

Their attorney, Paul Halvonik, called the coaches' brief "a slur on our founding fathers," who had long hair.

Harris has restored the four boys, Kevin and Brian Pusser, David Silverman and Bryan Tracy, to the track team until a decision in their suit, which charges the school violated their constitutional rights by kicking them off the team for long hair.

Harris yesterday extended his temporary restraining order against the school, allowing the students to work out with the team. Track competition starts next month.

The haircut regulation, Halvonik said, "is an attempt to promote a certain view and though. . .If a school can tell students how long their hair should be, it can tell students where to part it. It is an attempt to have them look and think alike."

Asst. Marin County Counsel Richard V. Godino, the school

LAST RITES FOR DETROIT SMOKER — Participants in a week-long ecology fair at San Jose State College shovel dirt onto a new car they buried to call attention to autos' role in air pollution. The event was yesterday.

Antipollution Students Bury New Car Despite Protest By Blacks

By JIM CHURCH

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A cross made of rusted automobile mufflers marks the grave of a brand new car, buried in ceremonies climaxing San Jose State College's weeklong antipollution festival, "Survival Faire."

The car, bought with $2,500 collected by students, was buried Friday eight feet deep in a lawn between the Music Building and the cafeteria.

Its stering column was locked and an alarm buzzer was attached to deter anyone from trying to exhume it.

Members of the Black Students Union, carrying signs saying "Ecology Is Not the Issue" and "Don't Bury the Car, Bury the System," demonstrated against the burial.

"We are opposed to the waste of $2,500 when our people are starving," said Mike Torrance, a BSU spokesman. He demanded the equivalent in money for "the oppressed blacks and browns of the community."

The ceremonies continued smoothly after $500 was collected in hats passed among a gravesite crowd of 10,000.

Sociology Prof. John G. Sperling, whose Humanities 160 class arranged the Survival Faire, said the donations would be given to the campus Economic Opportunity Program.

Local car dealers had criticized the burial of a new car, pointing out that older cars emit five times as many polluting hydrocarbons.

Gov. Ronald Reagan called it a silly idea, suggesting the car be raffled off to benefit an antismog group.

Why bury a new car?

"We wanted to shake up Detroit," said Mark Tigan, a prelaw student who codirected the festival. "An old car wouldn't make such an impact."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Doped Cones?

OAKLAND (UPI) — Police have arrested the operator of an ice cream parlor across the street from a junior high school on suspicion of possession of heroin.

George Schuyler, 52, Castro Valley, was picked up Friday after 70 balloons containing a substance believed to be heroin were found in a sack hidden in the ice cream mixing machine.

Russ Deny Blast

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet officials today denied speculative reports that a nuclear submarine plant in the Gorky area exploded two weeks ago and polluted the Volga River with radioactive waste.

"The thing is such absurb nonsense," a Soviet diplomatic said. "We cannot dignify it with a formal denial."

Baby Rescued

OZARK, Ala. (UPI)—Searchers found tiny kidnap victim Shaun Yvette McLeroy Friday night, wrapped in a yellow blanket and hidden in a clunp of sagebrush. She apparently suffered no ill effects from her 34-hour adventure.

A mystery note, stuffed in the mailbox of the four-month-old girl's parents, told them where to find her.

Concern had been intense at this Army Base city after the child was taken Thursday from the parked car of her 19-year-old mother who had run into a grocery store. Shaun Yvette suffers from a dangerous form of epilepsy and doctors had feared she would die if she did not receive medication.

Death In Korea

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea said today its sentries had shot and killed an armed spy sent across the North Korean border by "the U.S. imperialist aggressor army."

Nigeria Disaster

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Fifty-two persons who survived a train disaster this week were killed when the truck taking them to a hospital overturned, reports reaching Lagos today said.

They had lived through a train derailment that killed more than 100 persons on Tuesday in central Nigeria's Benue Plateau state.

Schrade Asks Gift Probe

By DENNIS J. OPATRNY

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A member of the Legislative Ethics Committee suggests politicians be prohibited from receiving campaign contributions during years they are not running for office.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman recommended the restriction in the wake of the controversy arising from Senate leader Jack Schrade's acceptance of a $5,000 campaign gift from a special interest group.

"I would like to limit contributions to the year of election," said Lanterman, R-La Canada, who helped write the legislature's 1966 Code of Ethics.

Lanterman said Friday the contribution to Schrade "can be an embarrassment to the member that far in advance." He referred to the fact Schrade does not have to run for reelection until 1972.

The payment was made to the San Diego Republican in 1969 by the California Association of Thrift and Loan Companies when he was vice chairman of a key committee hearing a multi-million-dollar bill relating to the lending industry.

The association backed the measure that Schrade voted for in committee and on the floor, where it was defeated.

Schrade, who has asked the ethics panel to investigate the circumstances surrounding the contribution, claims his vote is not connected with the sum, which he said was deposited in his campaign fund.

"I feel my name has been defamed," he said when informing a newsman of his request for the probe.

Eric Hoffer Is Retiring

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—ERIC Hoffer says the United States has become "a nation of cowards." So, at age 70, the self-educated longshoreman who rose to national prominence is retiring from public life.

"We have become a nation of cowards," the noted philosopher-author-columnist-television personality said Friday. "We used to be a country with courage. I am worried about a country in which people will not speak out for what they believe.

"I don't want to die barking. I'm going to crawl back into my hole where I started," he added.

Injured Fireman Has Surgery In Novato

Novato Fireman James Cavallero, injured in a fire on Nov. 24, was reported in good condition today at Novato General Hospital following corrective back surgery Thursday, the hospital reported.

Cavallero, son of the late fire chief George Cavallero, fell while fighting an attic fire at the Calvin Penrod home at 853 Rae Lane.

Behr Requests Lynch To Eye Schrade Fund

Peter H. Behr, Republican candidate for the State Senate from Marin, Napa and Solano counties, yesterday called on Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch to launch a grand jury investigation of Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego.

In a telegram to Lynch, Behr, of Mill Valley, requested the inquiry in connection with an alleged $5,000 campaign contribution by a savings and loan association to Schrade, president pro-tem of the Senate.

JUDGE'S EFFIGY BURNED—Demonstrators in Eugene, Ore., applaud the burning of an effigy of Federal Judge Julius Hoffman, during a rally protesting the sentencing of the "Chicago 7." One of the defendents, John Froines, is an assistant professor of chemistry at the University of Oregon in Eugene.

Maximum Terms, $5,000 Fines Meted In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The five men convicted in the riot trial were given nearly two hours to speak in the courtroom before Judge Julius J. Hoffman sentenced each to five years in prison and a fine of $5,000 plus court costs totalling about $60,000.

The 74-year-old judge passed sentence Friday in U.S. District Court on the five men convicted of crossing state lines with the intent of inciting rioting during the week of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The judge also ruled that the prison terms would run concurrent with the contempt sentences he imposed last weekend on the defendants and their two lawyers.

The prison terms were the maximum allowable under the federal antiriot law, but the judge could have fined each man $10,000.

In sentencing David T. Dellinger, 54; Jerry C. Rubin, 31; Abbott H. "Abbie" Hoffman, 31; Thomas E. Hayden, 30, and Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29, the judge did not mention jury fees.

Judge Hoffman ruled that the defendants cannot be released from prison until the court costs and fines are paid, but the five men could avoid the payments by declaring themselves paupers.

Two codefendants, John R. Froines, 31, and Lee Weiner, 31, were acquitted by the jury of 10 women and 2 men.

At the midwinter meeting of the American Bar Association in Atlanta, Ga., the Individual Rights and Responsibilities section decided to have a committee investigate various aspects of the five-month trial and report at its next meeting in May.

In the courtroom statements, Dellinger told the judge, "I think you are a man who has had too much power over too many people for too long . . . You are like George III of England (king during the American Revolution.) You are trying to hold back the tide of history."

Davis said, "I hope that I will be allowed out by 1976, and when I do come out I'm going to move right next door to Tom Foran (prosecuting attorney). I'm going to organize his kids into the revolution."

Hayden told the judge that his conviction would not halt the dissent of young people in America. "They're doing things now in the streets that we never did in Chicago during the convention week. One year later, the very thing they (the government) thought they could prevent by prosecuting us in happening, an interstate riot."

There were demonstrations Friday in seven cities.

Los Angeles police arrested 28 persons after a crowd of 500 refused to disperse near the campus of the University of California.

Jerry Rubin councluded his presentencing speech by saying, "This is the happiest day in my life." He told newsmen that he and the other four convicted men did not like jails. "Don't salve your consciences by saying we're revolutionaries and that we don't mind jails. We have tears in our eyes."

Rubin offered Judge Hoffman a copy of his book, "Do It," inscribed: "Julius, you have radicalized more young people than we ever did. You are the greatest yippie."

Abbie Hoffman compared the rebellious acts of the defendants to the Founding Fathers. "George Washington grew hemp. He was probably a pot head . . . Ben Franklin had 17 illegitimate kids."

ternational Airport to find out whether relatives or friends were aboard the airliner. They clustered around the airport's Swissair office, anxiously awaiting a passenger lists. Many were in tears.

Israel is still recovering from the shock of the grenade attack at the Munich airport on a group of El Al Israeli airline passengers 10 days ago. One man was killed and a top Israeli actress, lost a leg in that incident.

Almost immediatele after the crash an investigation commission was dispatched to the scene by helicopter.

Shortly before the crash near here an Austrian airliner carrying mail for Israel was forced into an emergency landing at Frankfurt, Germany, by an explosion in the baggage compartment containing the mail. None of the 38 persons aboard was injured.

The explosion ripped a hole about the size of a manhole cover in the rear section of the plane. The blast occurred 11 minutes after the Caravelle jet had taken off from Frankfurt en route to Vienna, Austria.

Police took into custody an Arab who had been aboard, a police spokesman said. There was no immediate elaboration. They also questioned other passengers.

district's attorney, argued the rule is a legitimate exercise of the athletic department's concern, imposed for health reasons to protect the athletes' performance and safety. It also teaches discipline and enhances morale, he said.

"We can't prove hair a half inch longer or shorter would be better," he said. "It is admittedly an arbitrary point, but it is reasonable."

Halvonik argued that the hair argument is not trivial when the school can bar athletes from sports because of it. "If that is trivial," he said, "I can't imagine what would be a substantial invasion of our rights."

Solano County Says Local Pollution Control Needed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Solano County officials say air pollution can best be controlled through local administration.

Wallace Brazelton, chairman of the Solano County Board of Supervisors, headed a delegation appearing before the Assembly Local Government Committee in opposition to two measures intended to force Solano, Napa and Sonoma counties into the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Brazelton, County Counsel Milton Goldinger and County Adminstrator David Balmer said Solano and Napa counties instead should form their own air pollution control district "separate and apart" from the six-county district based in San Francisco.

"From an economics consideration, Solano and Napa counties should not be placed in a position where they will be obligated to contribute tax funds to maintain air pollution control for the entire Bay Area which would be out of proportion to its contribution of pollutants in the atmosphere," Brazelton said.

Chief administrative officer D. J. Callaghan of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District urged the committee to bring the three north bay counties into the district.

He was supported be Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, chairman of the committee hearing the bills, and Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose.

Assemblyman John F. Dunlap D-Napa, supported the plea for a separate Solano-Napa district.

The committee continued the hearing until March 12 to hear testimony from Napa and Sonoma county officials.

The smog district invited the three counties to join last fall after hearing complaints that agricultural and open dump burning in the three northern counties was adding to Bay Area air pollution.

The Bay Area district severely restricts agricultural burning and has totally banned not only all open dump burning but even back yard incinerators and all other outdoor fires except barbeques.

REGENTS

result eventually in fee increases for the 180,000 students in the State College system. That would require a change by the State Legislature in current law limiting fees at the State Colleges.

The vote came after an all-day session at the San Francisco Extension campus during which the Regents worked out a compromise between two competing tuition plans.

One plan was backed by Reagan and the other by UC President Charles J. Hitch. The plans differed principally in semantics, with Reagan wanting to use the word "tuition" and Hitch a "fee increase." The Regents finally decided on "educational fee."

The tuition plan adopted provided that students in financial need may defer payment of charges until after graduation on conditions similar to those of student loans.

A resolution passed by the Regents included a statement reversing California's historic position that the state should provide free public higher education.

The resolution said the university now accepted "the general concept that the student is economically responsible for part of his educational costs."

Reagan was obviously pleased with the result, but showed irritation in four hours of discussion of some ten proposed amendments to the plan.

Regent Frederick G. Dutton, an anti-tuition leader, protested that not enough discussion was allowed and charged " gag, on top of a railroad, on top of a deal."

Hitch voted against the majority. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty was absent.

He expressed concern for the children of the poor and worries about a "negative dowry" of college women whose future husbands eventually would be responsible for their debt obligation to the university.

Tuition was nearly unanimously opposed by faculty and students, some of whom donated blood to be sold to finance advertisements opposing tuition.

Mrs. Jordan May Seek Her Ailing Husband's Job

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The wife of Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan is "seriously considering" running for the job held by her ailing husband.

Mrs. Jordan, 56, a Republican like her husband, confirmed she is giving the race consideration.

Jordan has been mute and paralyzed for months as a result of a stroke.

If Mrs. Jordan ran, her name would have to appear on the state ballot as "Alberta Jordan" rather than as Mrs. Frank Jordan because the law prohibits the use of a name other than one's own.

Jordan and his late father held the secretary of state job for most of this century. His father, Frank C. Jordan, was secretary of state for 30 years. Jordan, 81, first was elected to the office in 1942.

Syrian, Israeli Forces Battle

By HAL McCLURE

TEL AVIV (AP(— Fighting flared briefly today between Syrian and Israeli forces across the occupied Golan Heights of Syria.

The Israelis said Syrian army troops fired two cannon shells at an Israeli patrol and an Israeli army post.

The Israelis returned the fire in both incidents and reported no casualties or damage.

Arab guerrillas in Jordan opened up with machine guns on an Israeli patrol passing near the Sea of Galilee, the Israelis said. The fire was returned.

Israeli security forces have detained 21 Israeli Arabs in northern Israel who are suspected of having links with Arab sabotage organizations, the Israeli national police reported today.

New York Bombings

NEW YORK (AP) — A series of firebombings and small explosions early today hit near a Greenwich Village police station, the home of the judge in the Black Panther bomb-conspiracy trial and two military recruiting booths in Brooklyn. Police said none caused damage or injuries.

Phouma pledged earlier this week that government forces would hold the plain, which is 50 miles long and 20 miles wide.

U.S. officials had counseled against trying to hold the plain against the strong North Vietnamese forces. They said the plain's strategic value was doubtful and not worth the casualties.

While the plain is of little value to the Laotian government, it is was vital to the North Vietnamese. They need it to guard the Ho Chi Minh Trail through eastern Laos over which they send men and supplies to South Vietnam.

More than 15,000 civilians living in the plain were evacuated in a massive airlift a few days before the enemy push and thus were spared being caught in the fighting.

Elsewhere, a North Vietnamese force hiding in hedgerows has ambushed a U.S. armored unit south of Da Nang, killing more Americans than in any single previous battle this year, military spokesmen said Saturday in South Vietnam.

In a five-hour battle, 14 Americans were killed and 29 wounded, the spokesmen reported. Four North Vietnamese bodies were found on the battlefield.

Elsewhere in the north, a 101st Airborne Division unit was hit by enemy fire in jungled mountains 16 miles southwest of Hue, losing two killed and eight wounded.

In the air war, U.S. B52 bombers launched heavy attacks Saturday against North Vietnam's main supply route through Laos in the campaign aimed at forestalling a new Communist command offensive in South Vietnam.

It marked the third time this week that the eight-jet Stratofortresses had been diverted from targets in South Vietnam to saturate North Vietnamese supply depots along the Ho Chi Minh trail in eastern Laos.

Informed sources said at least 25 B52 bombers unleashed 750 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese supply depots in eastern Laos.

Over South Vietnam, only one B52 mission totaling five bombers was reported during the 24-hour period ending at 2 p.m. Saturday. This mission struck at enemy troop concentrations and staging areas in Phuoc Tuy Province, 46 miles southeast of Saigon.

Rogers Talks With Ghana's Leaders

ACCRA Ghana (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers conferred in the 17th century Christiansborg Castle today with Ghana's ruling military triumvirate and Prime Minister Kofi Busia.

American officials said Rogers informed Busia the United States was willing to consider a new $15 million loan for Ghana's economic development. Rogers arrived for a 24-hour visit to Ghana Friday night and was due to leave later today for Monrovia Oiberia, the last stop on his 10-nation Africa tour.

Hawaii Abortion Bill Is Gaining

HONOLULU (UPI)—A landmark bill to give Hawaii the most liberal abortion law in the United States has passed its major hurdle and is only a step from becoming a law.

The house of representatives passed the bill Friday after a week of delays. The Senate was scheduled to vote Tuesday on the bill—and to approve it by a wide margin.

The measure would make an abortion an individual choice of mother and doctor — not matter of criminal law. An abortion could be performed:

—By a licensed physician in a state-licensed hospital.

—On a woman who has lived in Hawaii at least 90 days.

Wallace 'Proud' To Visit Calley

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says he was "proud" to visit with Lt. William L. Calley Jr., accused of murdering 102 Vietnamese civilians.

Wallace and Calley met Friday for about 75 minutes. After the meeting, Wallace, a third-party presidential candidate in 1968, said they "talked in general about the situation in Vietnam and discussed the problems in generalities."

Wallace said Calley's case was not discussed.

L. A. Police Break Huge Burglary Ring

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A total of 16 persons were under arrest today in a huge burglary ring police think committed more than 1,000 burglaries in Southern California.

Police said Friday that officials had recovered more than $40,000 in merchandise taken in burglaries in Los Angeles, Orange and San Bernardino counties during the past two years.

ARMY

benefits, housing, food and other allowances from $301 to $437 a month.

Critics have contended the commission was missing a major point in pursuit of an all-volunteer force by minimizing additional benefits for veteran servicemen. These critics contend a viable all-volunteer force is not possible unless enough skilled veterans are kept in uniform.

Basic pay of lieutenants in their first year would be raised from an average level of $428 a month to $578 and their total compensation, including allowances, from $717 a month to $869 a month.

The commission said an all-volunteer force would "minimize government interference with the freedom of the idividual to determine his own life in accord with his own values," while removing what are called present inequities for first term servicemen and promoting efficiency and dignity of the armed forces.

"We are, of course, fully aware of the current and frequently emotional public debate on national priorities, foreign policy and the military, but are agreed that such issues stand apart from the question of when and how to end conscription," the commission said in its 211-page report.

The commission noted and rejected a number of objections raised to the all-volunteer concept.

"The frequently heard claim that a volunteer force will be all black or all this or all that, simply has no basis in fact," the report said in challenging the idea that higher pay will attract more Negroes than whites.

Challenging the idea that an all-volunteer force would stimulate foreign military adventures by the United States, the commission said:

"To the extent that there is pressure to seek military solutions to foreign policy problems, such pressure already exists and will not be affected by ending conscription. The volunteer force will have the same professional leadership in the present mixed force."

The commission further disputed the idea that an all-volunteer force will lack the flexibility to expand rapidly in times of a sudden crisis.

It noted it has recommended a standby draft "which can be put into effect promptly if circumstances require mobilization of large numbers of men."

Prowling Suspect Faces Charges

Paul Edward Phillips, 18, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary and of possessing marijuana and stolen property after he allegedly was caught prowling at the home of Valentine R. Field, 914 Valley View Lane, Mill Valley, sheriff's deputies said today.

Field, of no known address, was awakened be a prowler and held Phillips at bay with a shotgun while his wife called the sheriff's department, the report said.

When arrested, Phillips was found to possess a corncob pipe containing suspected marijuana and a payroll check and personal checks belonging to Jerry M. Rosa, Surfside 1, Gate 5, Sausalito, deputies said.

Phillips remains in Marin County Jail on $200 bail. He is scheduled for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

Soviets Release Pair Of Prisoners

MOSCOW (AP) — A Belgian and a Norwegian, who had been sentenced by Soviet courts to one year in a labor camp in separate but similar cases for scattering political leaflets, were released today and expelled from the Soviet Union, their embassies reported.

Victor Van Brantegeme of Belgium was put on a plane from Moscow to Copenhagen, his embassy said. At about the same time, Norwegian student Gunnar Gjengset was put on a train from Leningrad to Helsinki, the Norwegian embassy reported.

Washington's Birthday Delays Some Meetings

The celebration of Washington's Birthday on Monday has caused some Marin governmental agencies to postpone their meetings, while others will meet as usual.

Among the groups whose Monday meetings have been changed are: Lagunitas School District board, to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at San Geronimo School; Mill Valley Planning Commission, 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall; Mill Valley Park and Recreation Commission, 8 p.m. Tuesday at the library; Novato Planning Commission, 8 p.m. March 9 at the Community House, and the Tiburon City Council, 7:15 p.m. Thursday at city hall.

Among the organizations which will meet Monday are: Sausalito School District board, 7:30 p.m. at the district office; Fair-Marin, 8 p.m. in Room 400 of the Civic Center; Kentfield School District board, 8 p.m. at Wolfe Grade School; Almonte Sanitary District board, 8 p.m. at 152 Almonte Boulevard, Mill Valley, and the Homestead Valley Sanitary District board, 8:30 p.m. at Homestead School.

The Reed School District board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Bel Aire School to discuss the district's budget.

Young Trio Denies Varied Charges

Three young men arrested Thursday by the California Highway Patrol after being stopped for erratic driving pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to drug and other charges.

A preliminary hearing was set for March 3 for Frank Garcia, 21, of Daly City, and Paul Einar LaFabregue, 23, of San Francisco. Garcia is charged with driving while under the influence of amphetamine (speed), possessing amphtamine and narcotics paraphernalia and having a loaded pistol in his car.

LaFabregue is accused of being under the influence of speed and possessing the drug as well as having paraphernalia.

The case of a third man, Gary Neil Baldridge, 31, of San Francisco, who is accused of being under the influence of speed, was continued to March 20 for setting of a trial. Baldridge is to be returned to San Francisco for probation violation, his attorney said yesterday, and may be sent to state prison.

Mail Supports Reagan's Stand

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan's correspondence is running heavily in favor of his stand against involuntary school busing to achieve racial integration, a sampling of his mailbag showed today. The tally since Tuesday: 69 to three.

"Please keep up the good work as you are the champion of the silent majority," wrote a San Fernando man.

But a Redwood City man who called himself a "middle-class white" told Reagan in a telegram he was "very distressed that apparently the governor of my state is more interested in "vigorously opposing mandatory busing" than he is in encouraging meaningful and integrated education."

Freeway Crash Injures Four

Four San Francisco residents were injured slightly yesterday in an accident on Highway 101 on California Park hill.

Injures were George Bird, 23; Leslie Ladouceur, 33; Frieda Lunderman, 30, and Paul Ramos, 37. All four told the California Highway Patrol they would see their own doctors

Details of the accident were not available from the highway patrol today.

OBITUARIES

ADMIRAL AND MRS. C. E. EDMONDSON

Word was received today that retired Admiral and Mrs. Charles E. Edmondson III, parents of Mrs. Ann Taylor of Strawberry, were killed Feb. 14 in a traffic accident in Caracas, Venezuela.

Edmondson and his wife, Elizabeth Ann, had lived in Caracas since 1960. He retired from the Navy as a rear admiral in 1958. He was a graduate of the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y., and served in the Navy during World War II and the Korean War. He was a naive of Galveston, Texas, and Mrs. Edmondson was born in New Orleans.

They are survived by five children, Mrs. Taylor, Cmdr. Roy A. Edmondson of Virginia Beach, Va.; Lt. Cmdr. Raymond D. Edmondson of Jacksonville, Fla.; Maj. Kenneth L. Edmondson, now flying with the South Vietnamese Air Force, and Lois J. Edmondson, a student at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Funeral will be Tuesday in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D.C.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

If Cops Say Oink, Oink They Deserve To Be Called Pigs

DEAR HELEN:

Last year I was in sixth grade and was a patrol. Another boy and I were at a corner where there was a policeman. He was a cool guy that always joked with us. We thought he was great.

This year when I saw him again and said "Hi!" he scowled and said, "Oink, oink!"

If cops are going to act that way, they deserve to be called pigs. — KNOWS ONE

DEAR K.O.:

. . . .And maybe he's only living up to the name too many punks call him.—H.

DEAR HELEN,

I'm a Negro, and I guess a lot of my people will get mad at what I say but I have to say it.

When Martin Luther King died, we blacks rioted. When the Kennedys and President Eisenhower died, the whites mourned. They didn't go around burning and looting as we did.

We say we riot to gain our rights. Well, we aren't going to gain our rights that way.

The only way we'll do that is to sit down and talk things over. If we take a realistic view of it, the whites just might hear our words instead of our noise.

But if we keep on rioting the only thing we might accomplish is being kicked out of the U.S.

I'm only 13 so I can't change much. But I'm writing this hoping it will get in your column. I'm proud of some of my people but ashamed of others.— SPEAKING OUT

DEAR SPEAKING OUT:

"Hear our words instead of our noise"—that's a tremendous hope for the future. And young people like you—white, black, red, and yellow— can bring it off. Thanks for writing.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am the oldest of three children in my family and I get everything I want. Every time I open my mouth for something, it's mine, regardless of price.

Helen, they think they make me happy, but I don't deserve all this stuff. Other kids get punished, but I can come home as late as I want and never a word is said. I love my parents and I want them to love me, not give me everything, but never really know I'm there.

I'd like to strive for something, and earn it, then get praised for work well done. I guess this sounds crazy, but life is too easy for me. What can I do?—W.L.

DEAR W:

Why don't you go out and get a job? Then set your own goals, and stick to them. If your parents can't see the value of earned respect, you can find it elsewhere— starting with yourself. —H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

SEW SIMPLE

A Bridal Gown Made For Less

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I have to acquire two wedding gowns somehow this year for my two girls, and I am seriously thinking of making them. Any hints before I start would be greatly appreciated. Also, should I use a hint of color as shown in many gowns today?

MRS. H. A.

DEAR MRS. H. A.,

You would be amazed how many women make their daughters wedding gowns today, and more surprising yet is how many girls make their own wedding gowns. I know of one girl who came from a very well-to-do family, married a boy whose father was president of one of our largest companies, and she chose to make her own gown when money was really no object. Was she proud!

I would suggest that you study the bride magazines for your ideas. These gowns are pictured in such a way that you can really decide on the effect you wish. Then search the pattern books for patterns that may have to be combined for the completed gown. We often take the sleeves from one pattern, the bodice from another and the skirt from another, as long as they are compatible.

There is a vast selection waiting for you in fabrics, trimmings and handsome laces. Usually, you can make a beautiful gown for less than one third the cost of a ready-made gown. The most important advice I can give you is to be sure to allow plenty of time. There is so much last minute rush connected with weddings that you will be much too upset to do a good job or enjoy what you are doing unless you have allowed plenty of time. Believe me, your daughter will treasure her gown forever!

MRS. GLADYS Fowler, Columbus, Ohio, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"I wanted to share an easy way to make bias binding for neck edges, hems and seams. I use the same material that is used to line the garment, that way it matches perfectly.

"Cut a strip of bias the desired length and twice the desired width plus seam allowances. Take it to that great helper, your iron, and press it lengthwise with the wrong side together. It is now folded in half. Place it on the edge of the seam with raw edges together and stitch close to the edge. Turn and your edge is pressed and ready to be stitched or tacked by hand. I do hope this will help others as it has me. It is easy and always neat. The best part about it is that you don't have to run out for binding at the last minute; just make your own."

DEAR EUNICE,

With the loose fitting dresses we have all become so accustomed to in recent years, zippers in the back of our dresses were no problem. Now all of a sudden I am having great difficulty zipping up my dresses myself. Since I live alone, this can pose quite a problem. Should we go back to the side closings?

MRS. B. B.

DEAR MRS. B. B.,

I know exactly what you are talking about, having experienced the same thing myself. Recently, I went out of town for business, and when I got back to my hotel room late that evening, I absolutely couldn't get my zipper down. I decided to venture out into the hall and if nothing better, ask the elevator operator to help me out. Fortunately, I found another woman guest just coming in who came to my rescue, and we had a great laugh as we talked about the newest headache.

I don't think it's the close fit as much as the long sleeves combined with the more fitted bodice that does it. Guess we better get the old zipper-puller-uppers out but in the meantime, you can use a safety pin attached to a string and it works like a charm.

Eunice Farmer gives you key fitting points to be carefully checked in fitting in her informative booklet "Your Pattern and You." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

ON THE AGENDA

Marin Charitable Foundation Gives $12,000 To Youth-Related Groups

Twelve thousand dollars, proceeds from the 1969 Debutant Ball, sponsored by the Marin Charitable Foundation, will be presented to five Marin County youth-related organizations Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Caroline S. Livermore Room of the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The Marin County Planned Parenthood teenage clinic will receive $5000, the Boys Club of Southern Marin arts and crafts program, $1,500, the Marin County Aid to Retarded Children, $1,500, Marin County YMCA Drop-Out Program, $3,500, and Marin County YWCA Girl-Time Program, $500.

The 1970 officers and board members of the Foundation are Mrs. Edgar Lindner, president; Mrs. John Manwaring, first vice president; Mrs. Phillip McCoy, second vice president; Mrs. Alfred P. Otto, Jr. recording secretary; Mrs. James Stapler Jr., corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Alan McLenegan, treasurer.

Members-at-large are Mrs. Harry Johnson III, Mrs. Daniel Cochran, Mrs. Gregory Solon, Mrs. William Schoenfeld and Mrs. C. Russell Johnson.

SPRING INTO Casuals is the theme of the 15th annual luncheon and fashion show of St. Patrick's Guild Tuesday at noon at the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda. Mrs. Richard Baumsteiger is decorations chairman.

Models will be Mmes. Mick Gennaro, Richard Kincaide. Victor De Martini, Charles Craycroft, Piero Sebastiani, John Lessin, Robert Jobe, William Cancilla, Gerritt Orton and Myron Rosser under the direction of Mrs. Philip Dunnigan.

Hostess chairman is Mrs. James R. Drimmel, Jr. and reservations chairmen are Mmes. Ernest T. Mock and Erney Ellison of Corte Madera.

GUEST SPEAKER at the Bethel Baptist Women's Mission Society meeting in Novato at 11 a.m. Tuesday will be the Rev. P. Lynn Miller, a missionary appointee of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies.

Reverend Miller became director of public relations and financial development, Bacone College, Muskogee, Okla. in August, 1968 following appointment by the American Baptist Convention.

A native of Iowa, Reverend Miller studied at the University of Iowa and at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon Ia., where he majored in music and voice. He holds a degree in Theology from Northwestern Baptist College and Seminary, Oakbrook, Ill.

Luncheon will follow the program.

"EXPLORING THE World at Our Finger Tips", will be the theme of Corte Madera Women's Club program, Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Recreation Center.

Braille transcriber Betty Klink, will present a demonstration of transcribing printed material into braille for the blind. Miss Klink, is a member of the Braille Transcribing Class, a public service project of the College of Marin, for volunteers.

Preceding the braille demonstration, there will be a brief review of the American Heritage Reading Series, completed by club members, Mmes. Alfred Lee, Ron Sperry and John Conkle.

"ESTATE PLANNING Through Trusts" will be discussed by William E. Lashbrook, vice president of Financial Programs, Inc., at a meeting of the Mill Valley Branch of the American University Women at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Mill Valley Community Church.

The program has been arranged by the newly formed investment study section of the organization. Introducing the program will be Christine Clausen, investment broker of Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis of San Francisco, who acts as broker for the investment club which grew out of the study section.

Lashbrook, who lives in Tiburon, represents a firm with $600 million in assets which manages a fully licensed trust company and has been managing mutual funds since 1932.

Husbands and other guests are invited.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM the Republican and Democratic Central Committees of Marin will speak at a luncheon Tuesday sponsored jointly by the Leagues of Women Voters of Central and Southern Marin.

Structures of the committees in the county and discussions of how a voter can be active in the party of his choice will be speakers' topics at the luncheon to be held at noon at the Pepperwood Restaurant in San Anselmo. The program continues the leagues' joint celebration of "The Year Of The Voter" as part of the League Of Women Voters' 50th anniversary nationally.

Guest speakers will be Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Gatov for the Democratic party and Mrs. Ruby Streiff for the Republican party.

Mrs. Gatov is past member of the National Central Committee for the Democratic party, a member of the Marin County Central Committee, and was treasurer of the United States under President Kennedy.

Mrs. Streiff is an associate member of the State Central Committee of the Republican party and serves as precinct director for the Marin County Republican Central Committee.

Arrangements for the luncheon have been handled by Mrs. Warren Hansen of the Southern Marin League and Mrs. H. James Compton of the central Marin League, both of whom serve as voters' service chairmen for their respective organizations.

Reservations chairmen for the luncheon are Mmes. Garret Crotty of Mill Valley and Vincent V. Mac Kenzie of Ross.

THE BETA Sigma Phi Mardi Gras dinner and dance to be held tonight at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base will begin with cocktails at 7 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m. Mrs. Donald H. Einitz is the queen candidate of the Upsilon Gamma Chapter. She is the chapter's recording secretary and has been on the social and the ways and means committees.

THE HIGH TWELVETTES of Marin will observe their 20th anniversary with a luncheon Wednesday at 1 p.m. at the Tiburon Lodge. Mrs. Oscar Deen, president, said past presidents will be honored.

ADOLESCENCE WILL be the topic at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere on Wednesday, February 25 at 9:30 a.m. when Dr. Joan Kelly, psychologist speaks to the St. Stephen's Guild. The public is welcome to attend the talk and the coffee afterward.

MRS. GEORGE H. DEXTER

Mrs. Dexter Is President

Members of the Mannequin League of Marin have elected Mrs. George H. Dexter of San Anselmo president. A three-year-member of the organization, she has served as secretary and was chairman of the Mannequin League Ball last year.

"The members, who are schooled in facets of fashion modeling, donate their time to present an average of 20 fashion shows a year and net from $300 to $1500 from each for Marin's non-profit organization," says Jeri Dexter.

"Additionally Marin's Mannequins hold their own fund raising ball in the spring and donate proceeds to the charity the league chooses. We also model for non-charitable groups, and fees charged for such services are also donated to charity."

A 13-year-resident of Marin, Mrs. Dexter has three children. Her husband is an automobile dealer.

Reading, painting, the piano, sewing, cooking and traveling are the new president's hobbies. Most of all, she says, she enjoys people and entertaining. Her other organizations are Boys Town of Italy and the Women's Auxiliary of St. Vincent's School for Boys.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Gonzalez. She chose as her attendants, Shirley Pederson as maid of honor and Sherry Michaelis and Jackie Cecil as bridesmaids.

Vic Lubinoff served as best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mrs. Vera Lubinoff of Novato. Ushers were John Gonzales, the bride's cousin, of Milpitas and Michael Gonzales, brother of the bride.

The bride was graduated from San Marin High School, and the bridegroom was graduated from Novato High School. Bob attended College of Marin and is employed at Bergman Manufacturing in San Rafael.

Miss Phillips To Receive Award

Miss Magdalene Phillips of Mill Valley, blinded by an eye disease in her childhood, has been selected as the Army Handicapped Employee for 1969. She is a 12 year federal employee at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, where she operates a dictating machine transcriber in the hospital's physical medicine service.

She will travel to Washington, D. C., next month to receive the Meritorious Civilian Service Award.

In Marin Miss Phillips became the first operator of a completely braille switchboard for Guide Dogs for the Blind of San Rafael. She had previously worked as a medical secretary in Oregon.

Miss Phillips was honored in the past for her four year contribution to the National Safety Council, instructing children in traffic safety.

GUEST LECTURER — Dr. Paul F. Brandwein, president of the Center for the Study of Instruction in San Francisco, will speak March 10 at 4 p.m. at a Dominican College health education workshop for teachers and nurses. The workshop, to be held at Bertrand Hall, is co-sponsored by the college and the Marin Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Butterflies are not just restricted to warmer climates; more than 40 species are found in the Arctic Circle.

Youth Vote Drive Plea For Help

Chairman Mark W. Tracy of the Marin Youth Commission issued an appeal yesterday for adult help in circulating petitions to get the question of a lowered voting age on the statewide November ballot.

Tracy said Marin's quota is 10,000 signatures, and the commission hopes to obtain most of them Monday, dubbed 18-year-old Vote Day in California He appealed for registered voters to circulate petitions and to sign them because youths cannot legally do so.

Any adult volunteer who wants to help may contact the Switchboard of Marin or one of the following area coordinators:

MILL VALLEY AREA—George Kewin, 69 Fairway Drive; Ann O'Reilly, 2 Bigelow Avenue.

SAUSALITO—Mrs. Richard V. Brady, Waldo Point.

BELVEDERE — Paul Kraus 89 Bellevue Avenue.

ROSS—Ann Bennett, Makin Road.

SAN RAFAEL—Gary Sanford, 6 Maywood Way; Bill Lawler, 65 Oakridge Road.

MARIN CITY — Horace White, 59 Cole Drive.

NOVATO—Mark W. Tracy, 425 Alameda Del Prado.

MARSHALL—Madelyne Angress, 21300 Shoreline Highway.

The commission is helping a statewide group called Independent Volunteers for Vote Extension (INVOLVE) to gather signatures. A total of 520,000 signatures is needed to place the measure, aimed at lowering the voting age to 18, on the November ballot.

Deadline for filing the petitions is April 6 but the commission would like to collect all the signatures by March 6 in order to tabulate them.

Tracy said more than 2,000 signatures have been collected already in Marin by Lotte Schiller of Mill Valley ,Marin coordinator for INVOLVE.

Ferryboat Runs To Ignore Holiday

The Tuburon ferry will make its regular runs Monday, despite the Washington's Birthday holiday.

Ferries will leave Tiburon at 7, 8:20 and 10 a.m., and 12:30, 1:50, 3:10, 4:40, 6:10 and 7:40 p.m.

Ferries will leave San Francisco at 7:40, 9 and 11:50 a.m., and 1:10, 2:30, 4, 5:30 and 7 p.m.

Committee To Select Mental Health Official

A nine-man committee to select a program director for mental health services will be recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

The director would succeed Dr. Donald P. Wilson, current head of the mental health center at Marin General Hospital, and have authority over both inpatient and outpatient mental health programs.

Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, who was appointed last week as county director of community mental health services, would handle the administrative work, leaving all program matters to Wilson's successor.

With this clear split in duties, the supervisors hope to avoid feuds such as that which developed between Wilson and the former county director of mental health services, Dr. Clyde G. Miller.

Ray K. Bolinger, administrator of Marin General Hospital, and Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella will recommend to the board that the selection committee nominate three candidates for the job of program chief. The supervisors and hospital directors will make the final appointment. The new program chief is scheduled to start with the new fiscal year in July.

Bolinger and Campanella will recommend that the committee consist of: Bolinger; County Administrator Alan Bruce; Cooke; Dr. Bradford Simmons, chief of staff of Marin General Hospital; one representative of the Marin County Psychiatric Society; and four from the mental health advisory board--George Monardo, Miss Martha Valliant, Dr. Richard W. Brunstetter and Jack Williams.

Wildlife Film Set

"Tidewater Trails," a film of wildlife in Tidewater, Virginia, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Olney Hall at the College of Marin as the fourth program in an Audubon wildlife series cosponsored by the Marin Audubon Society and the collee. Charles T. Hotchkiss, nature photographer who made the film on historic Jamestown Island, will narrate.

Beethoven's 'Lost' Notebooks Published

BERLIN (Toronto News Service)—A batch of Beethoven's "forgotten" personal notebooks, stolen by a spy working behind the Iron Curtain in 1950, are to be published in East Germany in March.

Their publication—almost 150 years after they were written—are likely to arouse considerable interest, for they show the music genious to have been a more human, understanding person than he was thought to be.

They reveal, too, that the maestro, contrary to legend, was not without humor. Arguing the merits of a conductor's wife with a friend, he scribbles in one notebook: "A magnificent bottom-side view."

When his nephew Karl brought home a scruffy student friend, Beethoven reacted by writing: "Poverty deserves sympathy—but there are exceptions."

The Ulbricht regime values the hitherto unpublished notebooks at more than 250,000 pounds and keeps the collection—there are 137 of them—in two strongrooms in the Staatsbibliothek (state library) in East Berlin.

Six years ago the State commissioned the library's music director, Dr. Karl-Heinz Kohler, 40, to begin the huge task of editing them.

Beethoven took to using notebooks when he went deaf between 40 and 45. He would get visitors to jot down their questions, and sometimes would write his replies rather than speak them.

Often after their departure, he would write down observations about them.

The James Bond-like adventures of the booklets in the 1950's occurred after a double-agent hired by both the West Germans and the Poles worked his way up to the job of music director at the library.

On fleeing to the Federal Republic, the spy took with him the notebooks and many other treasured manuscripts.

When the full extent of his espionage activities became known in Bonn, he was arrested and thrown in jail.

Years later, after "cold war" wrangling, the booklets were safely returned to Communist East Berlin.

Dr. Kohler said in East Berlin recently that attempts to publish the notebooks were made, but were interrupted by the two world wars. Only 40 have been printed to date.

"The other 97 are of tremendous importance, dealing with the final years of Beethoven's life. From the notebooks I have edited, it is clear that a new 'character image' of Beethoven emerges. It is undoubtedly a more human image."

The notebooks give a much better picture of Beethoven's final months than anything previously known.

"They reveal that he continued to work and never complained of his illness. He apparently read a great deal of Sir Walter Scott at the time, and in a written conversation on March 5, 1827, three weeks before his death he discusses the relative merits of the various German editions of Shakespeare.

Dr. Kohler has been puzzled by long columns of addition entered by Beethoven in the booklets. Notation suggests he was given a book on the basics of multiplication.

"The conclusion seems to be," says Dr. Kohler, "That the man who dreamed up the 9th Symphony, taken so early as he was out of Bonn public schools to play piano at the Duke's court, had never learned his multiplication tables."

One time, Beethoven wrote that his nephew Karl said: "The lover of the maid was just here. He intends to marry her because she is pregnant. Now he demands that you let her go as soon as possible because she is very sick."

Beethoven replied: "There's no other way. We've got to get her out of here—otherwise we'll have a scandal on our hands."

A dramatic episode revealed involved a matter of where the 9th Symphony was to be premiered in 1824.

Communications Center Is Busy

The Marin County Communications Center is Marin's "party-line" for emergencies and informateon.

Recently settled into new quarters at the Hall of Justice, it also serves as "police headquarters" for several Marin cities, during the graveyard shift.

When a man lies severely injured on a highway, it is the communications center, that calls for an ambulance to speed to his aid and alerts the hospital emergency ward of his impending arrival.

When a suspect in an armed robbery in San Rafael speeds northward along Highway 101, a dispatcher at the center alerts Novato police to be on the lookout.

When trees topple in storms and roads are blocked on county roads, a dispatcher notifies the county works department.

It is literally at fingertip touch with police officers, firemen, ambulance drivers and other emergency personnel throughout the county.

Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, dispatchers are seated behind a long communications board, with lights blinking as radio calls are in progress, telephones at arm's reach and nearby a computerized teletype machine.

As a crew, they provide coordination among departments that can't communicate instantly with each other, police, deputies, firemen, coroner, ambulances or humane society.

A Mill Valley police officer radios that shots are being fired into the city apparently from outside the city, and the message is relayed to sheriff's deputies who have jurisdiction in the unincorporated area.

To a newcomer the radio messages that come forth are cryptic, "11x1—1008," which deciphered meant that a Belvedere police officer was back in service in his patrol unit.

This might not seem to be an earth-shaking message, but after 5 p.m. the center serves as "police headquarters" for Belvedere and dispatchers must know where officers are.

When a Belvedere resident calls his police department after 5 p.m., his call goes to the communication center, and the same holds true for residents of Tiburon after 5 p.m., Fairfax after 10 p.m. and Ross, night and day hours when there isn't anyone at the Ross station.

A call comes in from "1L39," a sheriff's deputy asking for a check on the license number of a car he is stopping, and within 30 seconds, thanks to the computerized teletype, he has his answer.

With a few taps of the keys, dispatchers can learn from the computer if there are any traffic warrants outstanding against the driver or if the car is stolen, and if necessary, get information from Washington, D.C., about out-of-state cars.

It was a quiet night Monday as three dispatchers, Victor Wright of Novato, Ronald Kiesel of Petaluma and Thomas Richardson of Terra Linda manned the swing shift, but there was a fair share of license checks.

Late in the shift, Henry Alvernaz of Novato, chief dispatcher, dropped in to see how things were going for the night crew, and they recalled how voices with "southern accents" pop out of the speaker from time to time as faraway stations drift in.

"The skips are still with us," said Alvarnaz, who singled out for recognization, "that Mexican oil drilling outfit."

As for the volume of calls, Alvernaz pointed out that last month, for example, "There were 10,000 calls on the police circuit, 9,000-plus on the local government circuit, and more than 1,000 on the fire circuit."

By calling the center, a police officer can get assistance from other officers, an ambulance, a check on a gun or stolen property or a tow truck or a Pacific Gas and Electric crew.

Working in an adjoining room was teletypeoperator Cheri Velasco of San Rafael, who was sending out messages for information about various individuals requested by the sheriff's office, district attorney's office, probation officers and Marin courts.

The center, also monitors of a bank of burglar alarm lights, set atop the communications board.

When the alarm bell rings, dispatchers radio the location to the law enforcement agency involved. Dispatchers also listen to California Highway Patrol radio calls, with a view toward providing local assistance to CHP officers if needed.

With all these connections, it appears that if anything is happening in Marin, the communications center will be the first to know, and they're in a position to tell everyone else about it.

SENDING AND RECEIVING — Messages and information are the life blood of the Marin County Communications Center at the Hall of Justice, the link that binds police, fire and other emergency personnel. Dispatcher Thoman Richardson of Terra Linda (left) makes a license check through a computerized teletype machine from a city police officer to a sheriff's deputy, while Ronald Kiesel of Petaluma, fills in his log after sending an ambulance to an automobile accident. Larkspur Bike Paths On List

The Larkspur section of the Marin County bicycle path system will be considered by the Larkspur Planning Commission when it meets at 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall.

The park and recreation commission has recommended the planners and the city council approve the plan, and approve a proposal to use levees along Corte Madera Creek as part of an internal bicycle path system.

The commission also will consider ordinance amendments to change minimum floor area requirements and parking requirements, and is to choose new officers for 1970.

High School Bids Prove A Puzzle In Mill Valley

Mill Valley School Destrict officials have opened construction bids for the proposed 48-classroom middle school and found them considerably higher than expected.

How much higher was in doubt, however, because of a complicated bidding procedure, Supt. James A. Collins said. The procedure also left unclear the identity of the low bedder.

Bids for total construction from three firms Thursday ranged from $3.4 million to $3.5 million, although 25 alternate bids, which could change the figures, where made. Collins said the most recent unofficial estimate of constructeon costs by district architects was $2.6 million.

Collins said he architects and school staffhad begun detailed review of the various proposals to determine the lowest bidder. The school was originally scheduled to open in September, but state offecials, who must approve the plans, held drawings longerthan usual for detailed review of provisions for earthquake resistance.

The school, to be located on Camino Alto, will accomodate 1,200 sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.

The National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City preserves western history items from 17 western states.

A subtle message to astute attorneys:

How to obtain glorious county-wide recognition

— without shouting from the rooftops

As a practicing attorney, would it offend you if literally thousands of families became familiar with your firm name? People who just might need a lawyer—if not today, tomorrow?

Would you tear your California Code in half and curse the day? Or would you sit back and bask in the glow of knowing such recognition was coming to the right, and most deserving place?

IF YOU FEEL THAT RECOGNITION is something which is hardly deleterious to building a bigger practice, you might consider how simple, how easy if is to obtain it:

To wit: Place your legal advertising where your firm name will be seen county-wide . . . where 45,000 families (that's 71.0% by the way) are exposed to your legal escutcheon.

Place it where everyone looks—in the Independent-Journal, naturally! Where people have an insatiable curiosity for news . . . where legal notices gain amazing readership, from people who want to know who's doing what and doing it where and when. (One of our best human-interest features!)

Which means your firm name is printed 45,000 times with each legal advertisement you place. Which means you become known, recognized!

A legal notice for a client, as you can so astutely see, becomes a very legal notice of YOU.

BEATS WALKING OR DRIVING — R.E. Pauley, official for Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., displays model of the "Carveyor" system which will carry San Jose shoppers on a six-mile round trip from far - out parking lots to the San Antonio shopping area, at speeds up to 15 miles per hour.

(AP Wirephoto)

Trial Removal Planned In I-J Violence

The attorney for most of the persons facing criminal charges stemming from last Saturday's riot outside the Independent-Journal building said yesterday in Marin Municipal Court that he plans to ask that they be tried outside of Marin County.

However, attorney Robert D. Carrow agreed to have the cases set yesterday for preliminary hearings and trials.

The first preliminary hearing in which he wishes to test his defesne will probably take two or three days, he said, as compared to the usual hour or two devoted to such matters.

He chose John Joseph DeMartini, 44, of Mill Valley, vice president of San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21, as the person to have the first hearing. It was set for March 17.

DeMartini is charged with felony assault on an officer, resisting arrest, participating in a riot, unlawful assembly, failure to disperse and remaining at a riot.

Seven other men are accused of felonies and four with various misdemeanors.

The arrests occured during a riotous demonstration called in support of the typographical union's strike against the I-J. During the rally there was extensive property damage to the I-J plant and 17 persons were injured.

Officer Buried

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A policeman killed by a bomb planted at a police station was honored Friday at a Requiem High Mass attended by 1,000 persons, including 700 fellow officers.

As a precaution, police searched St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church for bombs shortly before the funeral began for Sgt. Brian V. McDonnell, 45, victim of a terrorist's time bomb.

McDonnell was injured fatally and seven other officers were hurt Monday night when a steel pipe packed with black powder, bullets and steel fence staples exploded at the Park Station. One of the fence staples entered McDonnell's brain.

Meanwhile, contributions pushed the reward money for the capture and conviction of McDonnell's killers past $35,000.

Conveyor Belt To Haul San Jose Shopper Traffic

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—A no-wait mass transportation system which can handle as many as 22,000 persons an hour will be installed in San Jose, Calif., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. said Friday.

The proposed Carveyor Sestem will be six miles long, according to Olney G. Smith, executive director of the San Jose Redevelopment Agency.

The first phase of the project, to be started in mid-1972, will be a route from a perimiter parking lot to the San Antonio Plaza and park center project in the city's downtown area. San Jose has a population of 400,000.

Goodyear officials said the Carveyor could be the answer to some of the nation's traffic congestion problems.

The all-weather system is called the Carveyor to reflect a unique principle in which a network of conveyor belting propels small, wheelless cars that are always available for immediate boarding by passengers.

Riders board the cars from a platform moving at 1 1-2 miles an hour, the same speed as the cars pass through the station.

As the cars leave the station, they move over a bank of accelerator wheels which increase the car movement to a cruising speed of 15 miles an hour.

Decelerator wheels slow the cars at each station.

Robert E. Mercer, general manager of Goodyear's Industrial Products Division here, said the system "is the best thing man has yet been able to devise for moving people quickly and efficiently over short distances in highly congested areas."

Ticket Leads To Pot Arrest

Richard Dale Pitts, 20, of San Francisco, was arrested last night on suspicion of possessing marijuana after a Marin County sheriff's deputy stopped him for a traffic violation.

Pitts was arrested about 10:30 p.m. at an undisclosed location Shoreline Highway after sheriff's deputies found what appeared to be a small amount of marijuana in Pitts' coat.

Pitts was also arrested for several outstanding traffic warrants held by San Francisco. He was being held on $940 bail and is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Marriage Ended For Ex-Kentfield Psychiatric Chief

The marriage of former Kentfield psychiatrist Dr. Thomas P. Lowry and his wife, Frances, finally came to an end yesterday behind the closed doors of a Marin Superior Court.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered the marriage dissolved under the new California divorce law after hearing about a half an hour of testimony. At the request of Dr. Lowry's attorney, Frances Hancock of San Francisco, the courtroom was cleared of spectators.

Dr. Lowry, former chief of the psychiatric unit at Ross General Hospital, had filed for divorce in February 1968 on grounds of cruelty but later alleged that the marriage should be annuled since his divorce from his first wife was not final at the time of his marriage.

Then Mrs. Lowry filed a complaint for divorce, charging the doctor with adultery.

Dr. Lowry still faces a misdemeanor criminal charge of battery against his wife whom he is accused of attacking on June 11 at her Tiburon home.

Dr. Lowry moved last year to New Mexico, giving up his Marin practice.

Purse, Coat Gone

A purse and coat worth $308 were stolen Wednesday between 3:25 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. from the car of Virginia Meyers of Oakland while it was parked at Stinson Beach State Park, sheriff's deputies said today.

What's the Use?
it's
Washington's Birthday

AND, as everybody knows, people don't read ads on Washington's Birthday or Easter, or Christmas. Or New Year's. Or in the summer.

UNFORTUNATELY, "everybody" is wrong.

ASK any readership research organization. You'll learn that people don't turn off their minds at Yuletide. Whitsuntide, high tide, or low tide.

NEWSPAPER readership doesn't go downhill during the skiing season, or the haying season.

ADVERTISING readership doesn't take a dip in the summer.

WE'VE celebrated many Washington's Birthdays at the Independent Journal. We've seen many summers. And we've learned that readership of both editorial and advertising pages stays at the same high level every day of every week and month of the year.

NO MATTER where you advertise, "season" is no reason to draw a blank with your customers and prospects.

EVEN during holidays, people read.

THANKS for helping us prove it.

VENDING
BUSINESS

We have enjoyed 20 years of unparalleled integrity dealing with our customers. Our company is expanding again and requires distributors to service routes of vending machines.

ROUTES ESTABLISHED!
NO SELLING!
NO SOLICITING!

JUST PLAIN, OLD FASHIONED GOOD SERVICE!

Car is required! Six to ten hours per week can run a small route. Income commensurate with investment and effort. Earnings can grow to $1,000 per month with investment starting for as little as $1,500.
Yes, we will consider part time operators who are looking for an ideal supplemental income situation, but but he or she must be expansion minded. An intelligent company financing plan is afforded after initial investment.

Please do not waste your time or ours if you're looking to "play with a few vending machines." Sincere people who are prepared to follow this company's principles of "an honest day's pay for an honest day's work" may write.

Your first letter should contain sufficient references to verify.

All letters are personally reviewed by Mr. Cecil Ussery, President and Chairman of the Board.

WHO KNOWS WHAT EVIL LURKS IN THE HEART OF USED CARS?

We invite you to compare our cars with others. Because we at Felton's know a used car can be a thing of beauty on the outside and a mass of corruption on the inside. Our 16-point inspection takes us to parts of the car rarely traveled by used car dealers When we find it pure at heart . . . then it's ready for you.

Good Can Still Triumph Over Evil!

Marin Prisoner Load To Drop?

A mid-year survey of California's probation subsidy program indicates that expected commitments of youths and adults to state institutions during 1969-70 will be reduced in Marin County as well as most other counties in the state.

The program aims to encourage counties to provide intensive probation supervision for youthful and adult offenders who can best be rehabilitated in the community rather than in state institutions.

The state pays subsidies to the counties in return for reductions in the numbers of comitment.

The Marin estimate showed a drop of 4 cases from the expected total of 44.

The county will receive almost $4,000 for each case below its expected total.

Board To Reply To Jury's Blast

Continuation of an ethnic studies class at Adaline E. Kent School and expansion of the foreign language program will be considered by Kentfield School District trustees at their meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at Wolfe Grade School.

The board will also consider deleting Spanish classes at the third and fourth grade levels and adding Latin, French and Italian language classes for the seventh and eighth grades.

Petaluma Neighbors Pick New Officers

Four new directors have been elected by the Petaluma Gardens Homes Association.

Elected to one-year terms were Albert Bonovitch, John Hunter, Donald Leeper and James Mosunich. Board officers include Lee Diltz, president; Richard Myers, vice president and Mrs. Joseph Sheaff, secretary.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Blindness From Glaucoma Now Is Truly Needless Tragedy

Blindness from neglected glaucoma is a needless tragedy. We have many new and potent remedies and the means for early detection. The problem is getting the victim to recognize the disorder early and seek treatment.

There is a continous flow of fluid (aqueous humor) through the chambers of the eyes. It is under sufficient pressure to keep the eyeballs from collapsing. Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and excess fluid overdistends the visual compartments. The increased pressure damages the delicate nerve cells of the retina unless the fluid is allowed to escape.

GLAUCOMA IS SUSPECTED when ever vision becomes foggy, or pain is noted in and about the eyes. This includes colored halos around artificial lights or difficulty in focusing, especially in dim light.

Excessive tearing, headache, swollen lids, and dissatisfaction with glasses are other clews. These symptoms may appear rapidly or so gradually, they escape detection for some time.

Anything that reduces the amount of fluid in the eyeball and keeps the pupil as small as possible is helpful. Remedies for the former include Diamox, Cardrase, and Neptazane. Miotic drops such as eserine, phospholine iodide, pilocarpine, or Prostigmin also diminish the size of the pupil.

Surgery is recommended when glaucoma does not respond to medication.

ON THE OTHER HAND, anything that dilates the pupils should be avoided. Emotions increase ocular tension in much the same way as they cause the blood pressure to rise. Therefore the sufferer should avoid excitement, anger, worry, and fear.

Pressure on the eyeball also is increased by physical strain, overindulgence in coffee or tea, or by tight collars. The pupils enlarge in a dark room, hence watching the movies or television is taboo. The same applies to the use of eyedrops or other medicines that dilate the pupils.

MODE OF DELIVERY

Mrs. C.R.B. writes: My last child was a posterior birth. I'm wondering if my current pregnancy will be the same.

REPLY

Unless a pelvic defect exists, there is every reason to believe that your next baby will present itself in the usual way.

The Cricket Philosophy Is No Good At Bridge Table

THE CRICKET

There used to be two entrances to the most famous cricket ground in the world; one was marked Gentlemen and the other, Players. Perhaps we should draw the same distinction in bridge. Certainly, when today's hand was played South was a gentleman of considerable dignity, but nobody would make the mistake of calling him a bridge player.

Opening lead — ♠ Q

DUMMY'S ACE

West led the queen of spades, and our gentleman declarer won the trick with dummy's ace. He knew exactly what to do next because he had learned the lesson at his mother's kneee, which was not the kind of joint in which you really learned how to play.

Declarer led a trump from dummy with assurance and aplomb, but with no success. The defenders took their two trumps and their two spades, and South took his beating. It was all very decorous, but it was enough to make a bridge player cry.

OBVIOUS PLAY

South has an obvious play for his contract if he is not obsessed with the notion that declarer is morally bound to lead trumps at his first opportunity.

Declarer should take the ace of diamonds at the second trick and then overtake the queen of diamonds with dummy's king. If nobody ruffs the first or second diamond, South is virtually home. He leads the jack of diamonds from dummy to discard one of the losing spades.

DEPENDS ON RUFF

If nobody ruffs, South can safely lead trumps. The defenders will get two trumps but only one spade.

Even if one of the opponents has only two diamonds, he may not gain by ruffing the third diamond. He may have to ruff with the ace or king of trumps, in which case his side will still get only two trumps and one spade. Even if a defender manages to ruff the third diamond with the missing low trump, the ace and king of trumps may then fall together on the same trick.

S- K 9 8
H- K
D- 10 9 6 3
C- Q J 5 4 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1-no-trump.

The hand is not quite strong enough for a response of two clubs. If partner opened with one spade, you would bid two clubs since your support for partner's suit would make your hand strong enough for the response of two clubs. If partner opened with one spade, you would bid two clubs since your support for partner's suit would make your hand strong enough for the response at the level of two.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Feb. 21, the 52nd day of 1970 with 313 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1878 the New Haven, Conn., telephone company published the first directory of its kind—listing 50 subscribers.

In 1885 the Washington Monument was dedicated, 37 years after it first went under construction.

In 1950 Hungary sentenced American businessman Robert Vogeler to 15 years in prison on charges of espionage. Vogeler served 17 months and was released in April, 1951.

In 1965 "Black Muslim" leader Malcolm X, was fatally shot in New York City.

A thought for the day—Wendell Wilkie said, "Our sovereignty is not something to be hoarded but something to be used."

Women Face Hearing

A preliminary hearing has been set for March 17 in Marin Municipal Court for two women arrested Jan. 23 when drug agents raided their San Anselmo home. Rebecca Ann Matthews and Holly Jane Humphrey, both 21, are accused of possessing marijuana.

Car Hits Tree

Loverd Howard, 21, of 99 Cole Avenue, Marin City, was treated for a cut eyebrow at Marin General Hospital yesterday after a car in which he was riding ran off Panoramic Highway near Bootjack Camp at 4 p.m. and hit a tree, the California Highway Patrol said.

Leisure Time Explosion —Yet No Time For God

Along with the population explosion, the pollution explosion and other explosions, we are having a leisure time explosion.

In the year 1900, the average work week was just over 60 hours. By 1920 it had dropped to just under 50 hours. Twenty years later (1940) it had fallen to a point between 40 and 45 hours. By 1960 the average had dipped below 40. By 1976 it will be down near 35 hours, and by the year 2000, the experts tell us, it will be less than 30 hours.

IN 1850, after you put in an average working day, got an average night's sleep and took an average amount of time eating, dressing, going to and from work, etc., you would have had an average of two hours and 11 minutes of free time.

By 1960, this average free time had grown to a little more than seven hours and 45 minutes per day.

If you throw in Sundays, Saturdays and holidays, you can count on 3,700 free hours a year, after work and average sleep. The average person has 22 years more free time during his life than did his grandfather.

"The future of America," said a Nevada clergyman recently, "will be determined by how well it learns to make use of its free time."

The accomplished wordsmith, Eric Sevareid, declared, "The greatest challenge facing America today is the rise of leisure time and the fact that those who have most of it know the least how to use.

AN INCREASING AMOUNT of leisure is devoted to vacationing.

An estimated 140 million Americans now take annual vacations. Tourism now has grown to a $40 billion annual business.

Tourism is one of the top three sources of income in 34 of our 50 states.

One-half of all vacations are now taken at times other than summer.

If you include snow skiing as a water sport, it is correct to say that nearly all outdoor recreation is being increasingly tied with water sports or their availability in an area.

By the year 2000, U.S. population is expected to double and usage of outdoor recreation facilities will triple.

Despite all this "head for the water" movement, 75 per cent of the aforementioned free time is still spent at home.

NOT LONG AGO United Press International reported on a survey concerning the "average American."

He is materialistic, satisfied with small pleasures, and interested principally in such as football, hunting, fishing and car-tinkering. His age is now 27. He does not read so much as one book per year. Although he attends church a few more than half the Sundays of the year, he is not seriously interested in theology, the supernatural, nor in heaven or hell.

Now is probably the first time in all human history that a majority of men have not had some considerable concern for their souls and some sort of life to come.

WHAT DOES ALL this mean?

If you are engaged in any sort of business, it means that you should keep an eye out for leisure-related selling opportunities.

If you are a dedicated churchman, today's "Average American" presents a stiff challenge. Today's affluent young American apparently doesn't feel any need for religion.

By contrast, in unaffluent Africa and Asia the number of Christians increased 90 million in little more than half a century between 1907 and 1963.

America spends about $850 per family annually for military and related expenses.

American families spend less than $4 per year per family to support religious activities, including missionary work and missionary relief to needy.

If you consider yourself a churchman but all you do is attend services for an hour on Sunday and put your contribution into the collection plate, you cannot possibly be understanding the problem.

All men still have souls.

Government welfare programs of all sorts may be able to help meet material needs but they don't even pretend to meet spiritual needs.

If the pursuit of materialism is not to lead us to national doom, the "average Ameican" is going to have to do more than just go through the motions of going to church half the Sundays of the year.

Anyone who says he doesn't have the time is deluding himself.

—Jack Craemer

Unbalancing Nature

When man fiddles around with the delicate balance of Nature, he often produces unexpected results. The most recent example we have seen is in Tasmania.

The crayfish industry is a major source of income in this area. Now, the industry is threatened by a dramatic increase in the number of octopuses.

These eight-tentacled creatures raid the fishermen's crayfish pots.

Why the octopus explosion? Because other fishermen had taken so many sharks, which like nothing better than a square meal of octopus.

The web of Nature is a delicate thing. Something we do not yet fully comprehend.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the owners of Marin tidelands acreage who deeded that acreage to Nature Conservancy so it can remain undeveloped and with public access.

BRICKBATS to the five members of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board who blocked disclosure of data on industrial air pollution.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Minister Concerned Over Violence

I am writing to you to express my profound concern over the acts of violence in the labor dispute, of the past few weeks. Although, I am not embroiled in the issues of the dispute, I am distressed when that dispute spills acts of violence into the streets of a community for which I have a deep concern.

The effectiveness of any strike, regardless of your position, labor or management, depends upon persuading the general public to be sympathetic toward your cause. It is my sincere opinion that acts of violence, harrasment, threat or intimidation only succeed in alienating a public which is "sick to death" already of such un-needed and un-wanted actions.

It is my hope that all parties envolved in this dispute will allow the steady hand of peaceful reason to guide them in their conduct.

RISE Appreciates Anonymous Help

The Redwood International Student Exchange (RISE) membership wishes to thank the I-J for printing the story about its activities in the Feb. 7 Marin Magazine. The picture layout and headline presentation were superb! As a direct result of the story, RISE received a $100 donation from an anonymous "well-wisher." We are therefore especially grateful to the I-J and appreciate this chance to thank "well-wisher" publicly. . .

Thanks are extended especially by those hardworking members of the RISE rummage sale committee which has had its financial goals thus lightened. (But the rummage sale can still use rummage — call chairman Mrs. Jan Smekens in Greenbrae — and buyers, at Redwood High School Friday evening March 13 and Saturday all-day March 14.)

Garbage Result Of Litterers

Your pictures and caption on page 3 of the I-J of Feb. 14 clearly and graphically illustrate one of the problems confronting the water district in its efforts to combat pollution and to keep the watershed clean and beautiful.

The "garbage" which is shown is that collected on the wonderful 29,000 acre recreation area of the watershed. It is gathered weekly from litter cans and other "scatter" by district employees. This has up until now, been deposited in a deep ravine, away from public view and not drainable into the domestic water supply. Under favorable weather conditions, to avoid air pollution, the flammable material has been burned and the remainder covered with earth fill.

Burning has been banned. This discard must, therefore, be carted away and disposed of at considerable expense. In the wooded area many trees fall during stormy weather. Now these must be left to deteriorate and rot, imposing a very dangerous fire hazard. Mount Tamalpais has experienced altogether too many disastrous conflagrations in the past.

The Marin Municipal Water District has created a Department of Recreation and Land Management in the endeavor and the hope of making the forests, meadows and mountains more beautiful and enjoyable to all citizens who care to participate.

Unfortunately much of these efforts by the district have not been appreciated by some of the public which it seeks to serve. Much vandalism has occurred. Rest rooms have been damaged and some of the toilets thrown into the lakes. Litter has been strewn about, to mar the beauty, although adequate facilities for waste disposal have been provided. Bathing in the lake (our drinking water) is forbidden by ordinance. A number of citations have been issued to some of the "nudies" who do not read or understand what the posted signs imply.

Tanks, water valves, pipe lines, and expensive telemetering equipment have been tampered with and destroyed.

However, in spite of all this disregard for public use and convenience, it is the intention of the district to continue to improve the recreational facilities, to police the district to the best of its capabilities, to keep the water shed clean and to provide Marin County the best water in the world.

Fulfill Duties Aright; Extend Hand To Others

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Whether our duties are great or small, in public life or in private enterprise, in making a living or in keeping a home, in office or plant, classroom or boiler room - each and every one of us can feel a sense of satisfaction in fulfilling his duties aright, whatever they may be. In such fulfillment we come to glimpse that beauty and truth which emerge in selfless involvement, social participation and human extension.

No one summed it up better than Emerson when he linked God to man in a binding commitment: "So nigh is grandeur to our dust, so near is God to man, when duty whispers low, 'Thou must,' the youth replies, 'I can.' "

In the responsive prayer of "I can," a power is given to man to rise above himself. And there are prayers without words: prayers of silent devotion; prayers of mood rather than mouth.

HUMAN LIFE is a struggle and an achievement, but it is also a gift. And this gift is as good as is the spirit in which we receive it. It is therefore, for us the living to learn from the bitter lessons of mortal vanity and frailty, how precious the short span of life is: how life can be mutiliated by putting it off, by compromising it, by embittering it.

Life is too short for hatred, malice, hurt and revenge. Too many are the enemies assaulting the individual human life to permit man to turn foe against himself, against his neighbor. We have a common brotherhood in misery; can't we have a common brotherhood in ecstacy as well?

We are besieged by fears within us, imbedded in our human nature, and fears outside us lurking in physical nature. We fear others and we fear ourselves; we fear living and we fear dying. We fear the ills of the body and of the mind, of the heart and of the soul.

We have a common humanity; might we not gain a union of sympathy and solidarity among us? Might we not feel in our own agony the pain of others; in our own tribulations, the struggles of others; in our unfulfillment, the need for compassion in others?

LET US THEN, turn our thoughts from malice and greed to loving-kindness and humanity, that we may truly know that God's work is indeed our work and His love unites us all. There is enough for each of us of glore and adventure, of struggle and sublimity, to lift us in orbit as a chorus of angels in praise of our humanity - in clasping the hand of man in reaching out for the hand of God.

While we live, we can make the minutes of our life longer by sharing them with others in noble endeavor; the hours of our life more lasting by occupying ourselves with things of beauty and a truth higher than ourselves; the weeks of our life fuller by filling their contents with the fulfilling stuff that lifts the soul; the months, the years more enduring by crowding them with the eternal and indestructible heritage of the human spirit - thereby granting ourselves immortality by virtue of having contributed our share to the common good which can never die.

Nixon Foreign Policy Flawed By Insistence On ABM Go-Ahead

WASHINGTON—President Nixon's foreign policy for the '70s contains a great deal of quiet common sense. The effort to come to grips with the massive reality of Communist China is in itself a noteworthy departure from the head-in-the-sand policy of the past 20 years.

The steps taken thus far are miniscule. Yet this first small effort to break down the barriers is in itself a notable advance. And the resumption of the talks at Warsaw is another move toward breaking down the glacial barrier that has walled away 700 million of the earth's inhabitants.

This is a look down a long road with the hope that at the end there may be some break in the wall shutting away China's millions. It pales to insignificance alongside the discussion of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks. Here the going is rough, the view obscured as though with deliberate ambiguity.

AT HIS PRESS conference in January the President announced the decision to proceed with Phase II of the Safeguard antiballistic missile. This came as a shock to those most familiar with the long and tortuous attempt to put the nuclear genii back in the bottle.

Those close to the struggle to check the spiralling arms race had hoped for a pause of at least six months or a year. After a long and bruising senate battle, the President had by a one-vote margin got approval last year for two ABM installations.

Some work was going forward on the two ABMs, one in North Dakota and one in Montana, and, since in part they are experimental, a delay might even be a net gain. A memorandum by one of America's top nuclear physicists found the ABM Safeguard obsolete even before construction began. The weight of scientific opinion, outside the circle of professional weaponeers, appears to have been overwhelmingly against proceeding with phase II.

How much the decision owed to the power of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is a matter for speculation, with the Pentagon curtain concealing the decision-making process. One news story coming obviously from a Pentagon leak carried full details of phase II of the Safeguard program, with the new missile sites spotted on the map.

AT THE SAME time Sec. of Defense Melvin R. Laird has made no secret of his conviction that MIRV, the multiple warhead intercontinental missile, has progressed so far that deployment is just around the corner. The Russians are likewise said to be so advanced with their multiple missle that the next step is deployment. If hese reports are true, the weaponeer has triumphed again with a weapon that defies inspectin.

Nothing in the message, not even the assurances about Vietnamization of the war and the continuing withdrawal of American forces, compares in importance with the SALT discussion. Aside from troop cost, the bulk of military spending is in strategic weapons. One estimate of the bill for Phase II of ABM is $11 billion and, like all Pentagon price tags, this is probalby only a down payment.

THE STRUGGLE in the Senate last year over phase I of the Safeguard missile was a memorable contest. Many of the same opponents will enter the fray against phase II. But they will be fighting a rearguard action. The precedent is established.

So much in the President's message on the "State of the World has a spare and convincing sound. The contrast with the section on the nuclear talks is striking. There Mr. Nixon seems to be using deliberate ambiguity to conceal his purpose. It will take a very great surprise—an act of courage—at the next SALT round in Vienna to dispel this impression.

ART BUCHWALD

He Shook The Hand That Shook The Hand That Shook The Hand

WASHINGTON — It was only after Jackie Kennedy Onassis's letters to former Deputy Secy. of Defense Roswell Gilpatric were lifted from his safe that anyone realized the market value of Jackie's stolen letters.

A few days after the publicity of Mrs. Onassis' letters a man walked into my office and said he had four letters he would like to sell me, written by Ros Gilpatric.

"To Jackie Kennedy Onassis?" I asked.

"No," he said. "To Mrs. Robert McNamara. They were stolen from her bureau drawer and concern a surprise party Gilpatric was planning for Robert McNamara."

"That doesn't seem to have much value," I said.

"ARE YOU CRAZY?" he said. "They were written by the man to whom Jackie Kennedy wrote 'Dear Ros.'"

"How much are they?" I asked.

"Five hundred dollars for the four of them," he said, "and you ask no questions how I got them."

"That's too much money," I said.

"All right," he said. "How about four letters Mrs. McNamara wrote to Averell Harriman on his 75th birthday?"

"What are you asking for those?"

"Four hundred dollars."

"YOU'VE GOT to be kidding."

"You mean to say you would not be willing to pay $400 to own the letters of the woman to whom Roswell Gilpatric wrote before Jackie Kennedy wrote to him?"

"Well, I didn't exactly say that."

"I could have gone elsewhere with these," he said, sticking them back in his pocket and pulling out another set of letters. "Now these are letters Averell Harriman wrote to the New York State Democratic Party asking them to unite behind somebody — anybody. They were slipped to me by Mrs. Harriman in a moment of jealous anger. I'm asking $300 for them."

"YOU'RE A THIEF," I cried.

"A thief, am I? Do you realize these letters were written by the man who received letters from the woman who owned letters from the man whom Jackie Kennedy Onassis thanked for sending her a slim volume of poems?"

"Don't go," I begged. "It's just that $300 is a lot of money."

"All right, then," he said, opening his valise. "For $200 I will sell you 10 letters from the New York State Democratic Party, asking for contributions to draft Arthur Goldberg for governor of New York. Before you protest, I would like to remind you that you would own the letters of a party to whom the man to whom the woman to whom the man to whom Mrs. Kennedy Onassis once wrote 'With my love, Jackie.'"

"DO YOU HAVE anything cheaper?"

"Here are some letters from Arthur Goldberg for $100. These letters, all authenticated, were sent out by Mr. Goldberg, denying he had any ambitions to run for governor. If you can't afford the Gilpatric letters I'd advise you buy these."

"But they're so far removed from the Jackie Kennedy Onassis letters."

"How can you say that?" he said. "They were written by the man who was supported by the party which was appealed to by the man who received a birthday greeting from the woman who received four letters from the man who was the owner of the original letters written by Jackie Kennedy Onassis from the Yacht Christina the day after her marriage to Onassis. What the heck do you want for a hundred dollars?"

Nasser: A Man Riding Two Tigers?

By SIMON KAVANAUGH
(London Express News Service)

LONDON—The dilemma of the man who rides a tiger is well-known. It is more dangerous to get off than to stay on. But remaining aboard the tiger demands extraordinary skill and luck; and even then the rider can't expect to be in charge of his destiny.

Gamel Abdel Nasser has no equal as a tiger-jockey. For he is borne along not by one tiger but two. And an uneasy partnership they are. Soviet aid and Arab nationalism. Before he can even begin his nightmare balancing act he has to convince the tigers that their interests are identical.

For more than a decade people have been saying that the act is impossible. But Nasser is still proving them wrong.

Why did he ever get himself into that predicament?

The answer is simple: Ambition.

Nasser came to eminence as a revolutionary reformer. He was a shadowy figure in the 1952 revolution which brought down King Farouk's tawdry regime. The figurehead of the new revolutionary government was an amiable, middle-aged soldier, General Neguib.

But it soon became clear that Neguib was no more than a figurehead. Nasser, then a 36-year-old colonel, was the real inspiration and leader of the revolution. The conservative Neguib had served the purpose of testing the water before Nasser took the plunge.

The approved version of what happened is that Neguib failed to recognize that one revolution wasn't enough. There had to be two; one to topple the old corrupt regime, a military coup; the other a social revolution which would take the people into the 20th Century.

At that stage it was still easy to see Nasser as an Egyptian reformer, trying to breathe purpose, vision and a sense of nationhood into a people morally sapped by centuries of subjugation by one conqueror after another.

He formulated a program of land reform, state aid for economic development, redistribution of wealth and educational reform. He drove himself relentlessly from early morning to late at night, pushing through his reforms in the face of the vested interests of the middle-class and the deep conservatism of the peasants.

The gray anticlimax of slogging reconstruction that follows a revolution is hard for any people to take. The realization by simple minds that there is to be no instant Utopia breeds apathy and resentment. In Egypt, centuries of fatalistic resignation made it harder still to take.

The people needed an obvious, romantic cause to inspire them.

Nasser had it ready-made. Egypt would restore the Arab world to the greatness it had once known. Once again it would stretch from the Atlantic to the Persian Gulf, a Moslem empire, powerful and cultured. It was an intoxicating prospect for a race who had been lowering their eyes before foreign rulers for generations.

The rebirth of the Arab world had been a folk dream for centuries. The Arab League — a loose union of Arab countries — created in 1945 was an attempt to realize the dream. But the league had failed. Self-interest had proved stronger than Arab oneness and the resultant disunity had been shown disastrously in the league's humiliating defeat when it tried to kill the infant state of Israel at birth in 1948.

But Arab nationalism persisted. And it was this that Nasser planned to exploit. Alongside Jordan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and the Yemen, Egypt was not a "pure" Arab country. But Nasser held a trump card. The purely Arab countries were governed by traditional, autocractic rulers. But in even the most exclusive of them ordinary men were beginning to question absolute authority. Nasser, the son of a postal clerk, could speak a language they understood. The Arab world envisaged by Nasser was something worth fighting for. Or more precisely something worth saying you'd fight for.

Whatever individual Arab leaders may have thought of Nasser's ambitions, they found it more immediately advisable to seem to share their subjects' enthusiasm for him.

And so Nasser emerged as the leader of the Arab world. Ordinary Egyptians could now feel that they were going somewhere. They were. Headlong into a humiliating confrontation with Israel.

The Egyptians are not by nature a warrior people. The other Arab states are. The mere existence of Israel was a rebuke to their manhood. So what was Egypt going to do about it?

By this time Nasser was riding two tigers. The second was Russian aid.

He hadn't really wanted to mount this new tiger. But as he saw it, he had little choice. The British and Americans withdrew their offers of aid to build the Aswan dam which was to revolutionize Egypt's economy and the Russians pressed him to accept their aid instead. The Suez operation by Britain, France and Israel reinforced the Russians' suggestions that he needed their military aid as well.

Nasser was now balanced on two tigers and the Arab world waited to see what he was going to do. For a time he contented himself with roaring louder than the tiger of Arab nationalism, but eventually he had to act. The result was the humiliation of the Six Day War when the Israelis made a mockery of his Russian military aid and his pretensions as the deliverer of the Arab peoples.

Nasser wanted to dismount then. But he couldn't. His own Egyptians would not let him.

Since then Nasser has continued his balancing act, growing more strained and tired as the tigers grow more restive.

The Russians are badly disenchanted by the way he keeps losing their equipment to the Israelis and by his brinkmanship which they fear could involve Moscow far too directly in Middle East hostilities.

Arab nationalists are just as disenchanted by the fact that Israel is stronger than ever and in possession of Arab territory captured during the Six Day War.

At the Arab summit conference at the end of last year Nasser tried to reassert himself. For a moment he seemed like his old self, demanding as a right command of the combined Arab armies and substantial economic aid for Egypt, the spearhead of Arab nationalism. But the conference broke up in disarray, by all accounts a total failure.

It could just be that Gamal Abdel Nasser will be the man to solve the eternal predicament of tiger riders by having both his tigers drop him and walk away in disgust.

U.S. TOLL 40,000

Viet War One Of Four Bloodiest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAIGON (AP)—Since Jan. 1, 1961—nine years ago, when the only Americans in South Vietnam were advisers in what was regarded as a messy little civil war—more than 40,000 Americans have been killed in combat.

Of those 40,000 or more, almost 18,000 have died in the 20 months since warring governments and the Viet Cong started talking at Paris in May of 1968. The Vietnam war is the fourth bloodiest, in terms of battlefield deaths, that American troops have ever fought in. The number of war dead surpassed the Korean War figure of 33,629 last March.

Counting total American casualties—killed and wounded—more than 302,000 Americans were bloodied in encounters with the enemy. In World War I, battlefield casualties totaled 257,404 Americans killed and wounded. But the figures are not really comparable, because the only wounded counted in World War I were those who required hospitalization. Close to 133,000 Americans have been wounded seriously enough to be hospitalized in the Vietnam War.

Official South Vietnamese casualties, which are dated from Jan. 1, 1960, are listed as more than 98,000 killed in action and over 218,000 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces have lost almost 587,000 troops killed during the war, according to statistics supplied by the U.S. Command.

In a war which has been fought for close to a decade among the civilian population of South Vietnam, civilian casualties from terrorism, bombing, artillery and napalm are staggering. There is no reliable estimate for the number of civilian men, women and children killed in the war, but it is known to be in the hundreds of thousands.

In addition to the 40,000 Americans killed in Vietnam combat, some 7,000 U.S. military men have died of nonhostile causes—accidents, disease and so forth.

The number of Americans missing in action and known captured or interned is 1,354.

POLITICS AND THE POLLUTION SCOREBOARD

National Parties Grab Onto A Survival Issue

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Early in 1970, the growing public cry for cleaner air, water and general environment is finding a most potent potential ally—politics.

The rising political concern could help remedy two crippling weaknesses in past antipollution efforts—a lack of money and lack of legal authority and governmental determination to enforce corrective actions.

To politicians—from city halls to Washington—the answering of public complaints about pollution could bring the reward of votes.

Governmental battle lines in the pollution war began to be more clearly drawn in a period that witnessed these other gains and losses in matters of Americans' environment:

JET PORT DROPPED

—Plans were dropped for a jetport for Miami in the Florida Everglades, after conservationists argued it would threaten the Everglades National Park.

—Bee keepers reported disastrous lethal effects upon bee colonies from use of some pesticides which farmers or others began using in place of longer-lasting DDT. The DDT was blamed for taking a toll of birds, fish and other life, while bees seemed to tolerate it better.

—Research chemists at the Bureau of Mines Coal Research Center in Pittsburgh produced, in laboratory experiments, a type of crude petroleum from ground-up garbage and paper. A next question is whether the technique would work practically to help dispose of solid wastes.

WALTER J. HICKEL
Politics of purity

—Governmental agencies brought suit against a score of industrial firms on charges of polluting or interfering with navigation on New York City waterways.

STRIKE FOULS WATER

—In Cincinnati, a strike by city employes piled garbage up on the streets and led to spilling of millions of gallons of raw sewage daily into the Ohio River. One hundred miles downstream, Louisville, Ky., uses river water for domestic purposes. Kentucky officials protested.

—Citizens for Clean Air picketed a New York City department store selling plastic toy trucks that emit exhaust smoke —not because of the infinitesmal physical contribution to pollution, but because the toys might encourage kids to think "air pollution is an acceptable way of life."

—Three Oregon newspapers campaigned for a ban on sale of soft drinks and beer in one-way, no-deposit, no-return bottles or cans.

LESS SMOGGY CAR

—General Motors announced it would modify future car engines to run on lower octane, lead-free gasoline, and Ford and Chrysler were expected to follow suit. The action means the petroleum industry must develop powerful but less polluting gasoline.

—The Hawaiian Electric Co. announced it was converting its Waiau power plant to use of low-sulfur oil to reduce air pollution in Oahu. It had already done so with its downtown Honolulu plants.

—Michigan State University set up a center for Environmental Quality. It will call upon many university specialists and resources to study threats to the environment and to seek solutions.

—A Presidential Water Pollution Control Advisory Board said Galveston, Tex., was "polluting itself into extinction" by threatening its tourist industry and beaches through discharge of 1.5 million gallons of raw sewage per day into Galveston Bay. But it complimented Corpus Christi, far to the southwest in Texas, for its cleanliness.

ADVISERS NAMED

—President Nixon appointed the three members of his new Council on Environmental Quality—Russell E. Train, undersecretary of the interior, Robert Cahn of the Christian Science Monitor, and Gordon J.F. MacDonald, vice chancellor of research and graduate affairs of the University of California at Santa Barbara. Conservationists generally liked the appointments, questioned only whether their work as advisers and watchdogs over influences upon the environment would be funded sufficiently in times of tight budgeting.

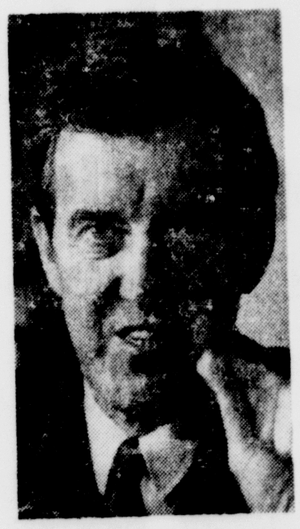
NIXON PRIORITY

The President in his State of the Union message gave high priority to cleaning up the environment, and in his budget message suggested specific sums for antipollution programs.

He enriched some of these proposals last week. For example, he authorized $4 billion immediately for fiscal 1971 to cover the full federal share of a $10-billion program to clean up waste waters, with $1 billion to be spent each year for the next four years. Congress earlier had voted $800 million for this purpose for next fiscal year, while the administration had originally asked for only $214 million.

In other steps, Nixon proposed a means of helping states raise money through bonds for water clear-up, establishment of state-federal water quality standards to impose precise effluent requirements on all industrial and municipal sources; authority to impose fines up to $10,000 daily for failure to meet water and air quality standards; and research under the Solid Waste Disposal Act to emphasize techniques for recycling materials.

Before the President submitted his environmental message, Democrats had taken the view his programs involved more rhetoric than action and money muscle, and some, like Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, could point to their own long-standing efforts to halt environmental pollution.



SEN. EDMUND S. MUSKIE
Plans fund bills

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel said the party with the best record on environment "is going to be the party that wins the most election."

Republican Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey praised the initiative expressed in Nixon's proposals, but said "they are still not enough."

MUSKIE PLANS

Muskie plans to introduce legislation to provide $12.5 billion over a five-year period for waste treatment grants, with states and cities matching for a total of $25 billion. He will also seek $325 million a year for three years beginning in fiscal 1971 for clean air programs.

New York State's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says the cost of cleaning up his state's waters is estimated at $3 billion, and that the national bill for sewage and waste control would be more like $30 billion.

The State of Illinois needs over $1.5 billion to clean up its water, says C. Wallace Poston, director of the Great Lakes Regional Office of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration. Rescuing Lake Michigan from pollution would cost upwards of $1 billion, he adds. Other members of the same agency think the bill could be $2 billion to $10 billion.

On matters of air pollution:

The Occidental Chemical Co. in Houston, Tex., with an annual payroll of $500,000, shut down operations and was put up for sale after the Texas Air Control Board denied it additional time to conform with state clean air standards. Vice President John Harris said the company had already spent too much money trying to control pollution with fluorides from producing fertilizer. "If you take the pollution out of the air, you have to put it in the water and that would have meant a whole new set of problems," he said.

PRESIDENT NIXON
Wars on pollution

In Washington, the General Services Administration announced that more than 1,000 federal trucks and autos would be converted this year to burning natural gas in a system that cuts noxious exhaust emissions by about 80 per cent.

AIRLINES PLAN

The National Air Pollution Control Administration and the nation's airlines agreed the airlines by the end of 1972 would have installed devices, called burner cans, that would eliminate up to 80 per cent of the carbon particles in the smoke left by jet planes exhausts.

But the devices, producing a higher temperature, would also bring an increase of about 40 per cent in the amount of nitrogen oxides in the exhausts. While this is invisible, it nonetheless is blamed as being one culprit in producing smog when sunlight breaks it down into ozone.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon set a precedent this week by sending Congress a "state of the world" message which included a stiff warning to Russia against meddling in the Middle East.

The document set guidelines for a U.S. foreign policy based on three principles: cooperation with allies, deterrence of aggressors and negotiation with friend and foe alike for the settlement of differences.

The Nixon stance committed the United States to a major role in world affairs, with the proviso that America's allies would be expected to carry a larger part of the burden—particularly in dealing with "local disputes which once might have required our intervention."

The President warned Russia that the United States "would view any effort by the Soviet Union to seek predominance in the Middle East as a matter of grave concern" — words about as harsh as any likely to occur in the niceties of international usage.

On another key issue—Vietnam—Nixon cited some progress in U.S. pacification and Vietnamization programs, but said hopes of peace still hinged on Hanoi's willingness to negotiate in good faith.

Reaction to the message was predictable. America's friends approved it in general, with some local reservations, and foes of the United States assailed it.

Israel was pleased and the Arab states were angered by Nixon's stand on the Middle East, which included an assurance that the United States would supply arms to its friends "as the need arises."

Russia's official press reacting with unusual promptness, was scornful of the President's comments on Vietnam and the Middle East.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

MANILA — The U.S. Embassy was attacked by a mob of youths armed with stones and torches and shouting "imperialist pigs" in the worst outbreak of anti-Americanism since the Philippines became independent in 1946. Heavy damage was inflicted on windows and furniture in the building's ground floor before Marine guards drove off the mob with tear gas. The Hilton Hotel and passing cars also were attacked.

CHICAGO — A jury in federal court acquitted the "Chicago Seven" of conspiracy to incite a riot during the 1968 Democratic National convention, but found five of them guilty of seeking to incite riorts. All seven were already in jail, serving sentences for contempt of court. The verdicts touched off a rash of radical violence across the country.

NEW YORK—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn suspended Detroit Tiger star Denny McLain indefinitely because of "his involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities." It was the first time in 46 years that a big leaguer had been suspended from baseball because of an alleged involvement with gambling. Kuhn promised a thorough review.

JERUSALEM—Israeli planes continued heavy attacks on Egyptian positions along the Suez Canal, but there were no further attacks on civilian targets like the scrap metal foundry near Cairo which was bombed last week. Israel has acknowledged the foundry attack, but says it was accidential.

WASHINGTON—The House and Senate both approved education appropriation bills containing Southern-sponsored amendments forbidding the busing of school children as a means of achieving integration.

ONE POLLUTION SOURCE ABATED—Backyard burning such as this commonplace San Rafael scene was a thing of the past, when the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District ban on this type of smog-producing activity took effect Jan. 1.

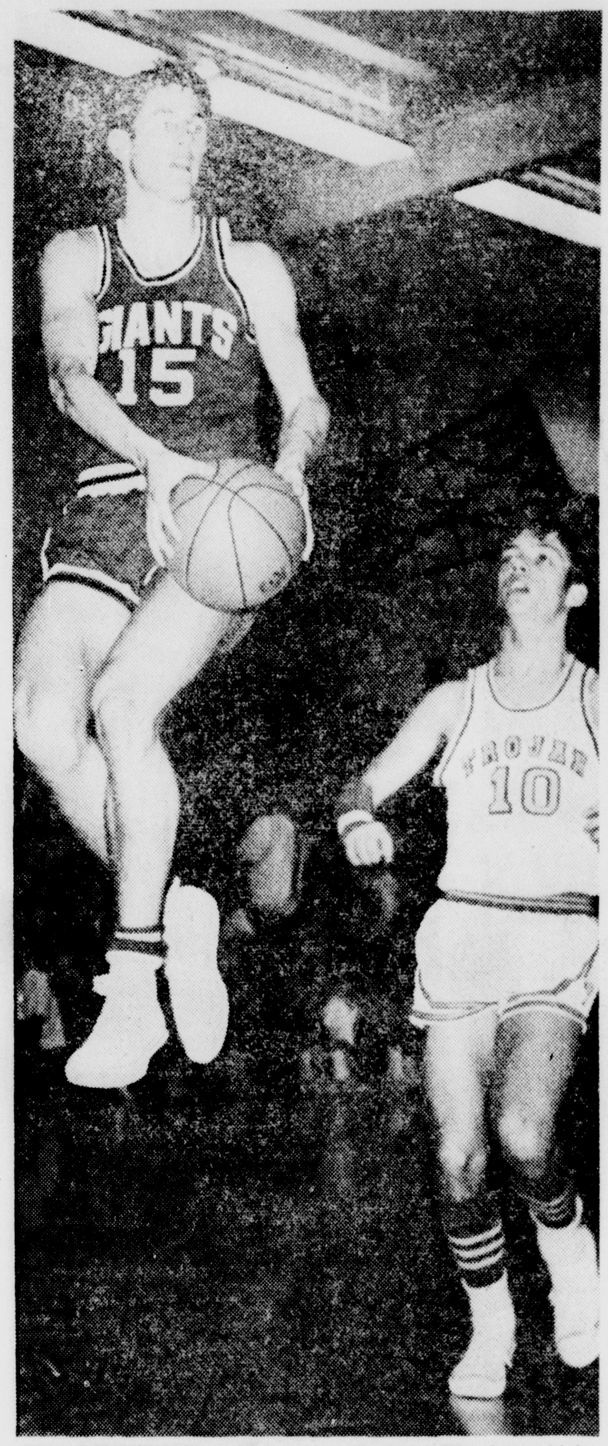
Redwood Wraps Up Championship



PIRO PIROUETTE — Redwood flash Jerry Piro leaps high for another clutch rebound high above frustrated Gordon Walker of Terra Linda.

Piro Leads Clincher

By GARY TISCHLER

The Redwood High School basketball team put the clincher on the Marin County Athletic League championship last night, a week and two games before the race is officially over, when the Giants slowly, but surely cut down Terra Linda, 64-49, in a jam-packed gymnasium at Terra Linda.

Terra Linda, surprisingly, was the only team left with any hopes of overhauling the Giants, a piece of knowledge which was obviously too heavy for the Trojans to carry around all week.

Now, they won't have to worry about it anymore. They'll have to think about taking second place, no mean achievement, all things considered. They're currently tied with Tamalpais for the runnerup spot. The Indians downed shortened San Rafael last night 60-53, despite a big scare, while in second division action, Drake was upended by resurgent San Marin, 56-44 and Novato finally put it together to down Marin Catholic, 70-52.

TROJANS TIGHT

Terra Linda was obviously tight last night, and obviously too short. The Trojans were outscored, 17-5, in the opening quarter, even though Redwood wasn't playing its greatest game of the year. From there on in, the Trojans, with somber-faced coach Bob Corley somehow staying calm through it all, had to play a grim game of catch-up, which never worked closer than nine points in the final two minutes in one brief, hopeful moment that was snuffed out by missed opportunities and a Redwood semi-stall.

The Giants, playing loosely throughout the game, got a fine individual effort from Jerry Piro, who grabbed big rebounds and came through with key field goals that snuffed out one Terra Linda rally after another. Piro finished with 20 points, but Scott Trobbe, the rubbery junior center, got nine points and one moment that isn't easily forgotten.

McLain Back This Season?

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — "I believe and hope to God I'll be back in baseball this year," suspended Detroit pitcher Denny McLain said, adding he would like to see his Tiger teammates who started spring baseball training across town Friday. McLain spoke in front of his Lakeland home one day after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kukn suspended the 25-year-old All-Star hurler indefinitely for what Kuhn called "involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities."

"If the ballplayers want to talk to me, I sure would like to talk to them, but Jim Campbell Detroit general manager hasn't said anything about their wanting to see me," he said. Meanwhile, the Tigers opened up spring training at Marchant Stadium with the signing of all but one player, shortstop Cesar Gutierrez, who is en route from Venezuela.

Detroit's second foremost pitcher, Mickey Lolich, and first baseman Norm Cash signed their contracts Friday morning. In a taped television interview with WTT, Tampa, Fla., McLain also said he could not go into much detail about the suspension "because I'm under supervision by Commissioner Kuhn's office."

"One of these days, I hope people will find out what this is all about," McLain added, noting he has received "a tremendous amount of telegrams giving me their support."

"I've got to look for a job, I've got a home to pay for and a family to feed," McLain said. He added he would either have to "get back into baseball" or he'll have to go on the nightclub circuit again. McLain has appeared in several clubs, performing on the organ and singing.

Further troubles beset the McLain family Friday, when a suburban Detroit judge ordered the McLains to be evicted from their home near Detroit unless they pay $2,400 in back rent within 20 days.

McLain, who had a $90,000 baseball contract this season, has had other financial problems lately.

Earlier, the two-time Cy Young award winner said in a copyrighted interview with the Detroit News that he feels he will be reinstated within a month.

McLain also said, "I'm very sorry, I caused a lot of people a lot of embarrassment — not only to my wife, Sharyn, but my father-in-law, Baseball Hall of Famer Lou Boudreau, and my mother."

McLain said he's "embarrassed baseball to a certain extent. I'm asking the benefit of the doubt. I apologize to the commissioner and I'm sorry anything like this has had to happen."

He said about Kuhn's treatment that "I can't see any other alternative for him to take."

The righthander, who won 55 games in the last two American League season, said in referring to his financial problems that "contrary to belief, 99 per cent of my problems stem from business. I made a lot of lousy investments."

Also Friday, it was revealed in Flint, Mich., that five persons, one of whom McLain has been accused of associating with in 1967, have been subpoenaed to testify next Wednesday before a federal grand jury investigating organized crime in Detroit.

Fewer Whiffs, More Hits For McCovey

There was a time when pitchers could tease Willie McCovey into swinging at pitches outside the strike zone. Until Bobby Bonds came along and struck out 187 times last season, McCovey held the team record for the Giants with 119 strikeouts in 1963.

Two years ago, after averaging 100 or more strikeouts a season, McCovey stopped swinging at bad pitches. In 1968 he trimmed his strikeout total to 71 and last season he cut it to 66. His home run and RBI production immediately ssoared. He led the National League with 36 homers and 105 RBIs in 1968 and repeated again last year, 45 homers and 126 RBIs.

McCovey was elated at being voted the league's Most Valuable Player in 1969. "It's baseball's highest individual honor," he said. A pennant only could have made him happier. "That always comes first but it is a team effort," he said.

Even Willie Can't Explain It

In trying to analyze his greatest year in baseball, McCovey frankly acknowledged that he could not explain it. "I don't know how it happened," he said. "I signed late, reported late and I thought everybody would jump on me."

McCovey missed the first three weeks of spring training last year while negotiating a new two-year contract that boosted him from $60,000 to$85,000 per season. He also reserved the right to reopoen contract talks if he had another big year in 1969. Of course, the MVP made him a cinch for another raise and he got it in a new two-year deal of $100,000 a year.

Even though his late start last spring proved beneficial, McCovey will be ready this spring on opening day of training.

Maybe He Should Be Late Again

"Maybe that's what I should do all the time—start late," said McCovey. "Nobody was more surprised than I was last spring when I got off to such a great start even though I missed the opening weeks. It carried over into the season. I never had that good an April since I've been playing."

McCovey hit .319 in April. He finished the season with a .320 average.

McCovey's late start last spring wasn't the reason why he had his greatest year. That was merely coincidental. But there was a reason for his big success in 1969. And it was the same reason for his success in 1968.

When McCovey stopped swinging at bad pitches, there were two courses of action open to pitchers. They could walk him or take their chances with offerings in the strike zone.

Of the 121 walks given McCovey last year, 45 were intentional, a major league record. Of his 157 hits in 491 ABs, 73 were for extra bases (45 homers, two triples and 26 doubles) and a .656 slugging percentage, highest in the National League since 1955 when Willie Mays had .659.

Marin Prep Has Great Bowl Score

Wayne Ziegler, 17-year-old Redwood High School senior, is the hottest young bowler around.

And his doubles partner, Dave Mendelson is not too far behind.

In the Marin County Junior Championships at Greenbrae Lanes this week, Ziegler, 184 average, rolled a 750 three-game series, highest ever by a Marin County junior, to run off with the singles championship.

Ziegler started off with a 245 and then almost threw a perfect 300, hitting 10 consecutive strikes and then getting a 10-pin tap on his 11th ball, picking it up for a 289. His final game was 216.

That's quite a score for the best of veteran bowlers, and when you consider Wayne has been bowling for only three years, it makes the feat terrific.

Mendelson was Ziegler's partner in Class A doubles and would you know it, Dave ran up a 702 three-game series while Wayne rolled a 587. Dave, 15, is a sophomore at Redwood High. He had games of 267, 201 and 234 for his 702.

Tournament winners, with handicap scores:

Singles — Class A, Wayne Ziegler, 788; Class B, Kathy Doner, 701; Class C, Andy Pierce, 426 (2 games); Class D, Ellen Williams, 292 (two games).

Doubles—Class A, Ziegler-Dave Mendelson, 1367; Class B, Jeff Bernardi-Mike Lanborn, 1345; Class C, Mark Williams-Mike Seismore, 810 (2 games); Class D, Shaun Weddell-Ellen Williams, 511 (2 games).

RON LEADS SAN ANTONIO GOLF

Aggressive Cerrudo Ties Mark

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ron Cerrudo, a bland personality with an aggressive game, said a couple of long putts, one to save par, were the keys to his second round lead in the San Antonio Open golf tournament.

But some beautiful iron play, and his complete unconcern with the miserable playing conditions had to figure into it, too, as he cut out a course record-matching 65 for 136.

"The weather was about the same as the day before," he said Friday. "Maybe it was a little better. Not quite so windy. One thing's sure. Our group got the best of it."

Cerrudo was in a group that played Thursday afternoon, then switched around to a morning tee time Friday. Playing conditions were a little better for them both days.

But neither was a bargain. Friday's play was halted once for 20 minutes when sleet made it impossible to putt. Showers fell from time to time all day. The high temperature didn't make 50. Play was completed with officials using towels to brush sleet off the greens.

Cerrudo held a one-stroke lead over Rod Funseth, the first round leader who slipped to a par 70 for 137. John Schlee, 70, and Kermit Zarley, 69, were three more strokes back at 140. Jim Jamieson and Lou Graham, each 70, were tied at 141.

Dave Hill, Al Geiberger and Al Balding were in a large group at 142 along with Earl Jacobsen, course superintendent at the 7,138 yard Pecan Valley Golf Club, who had a sparkling 66.

The cut for the final two rounds was 148, eight strokes over par. Among the casualties were New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles.

U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, Lee Trevino and Bruce Crampton were far back at 147. Defending champion Deane Beman just made it into the final two rounds at 148. Frank Beard, last year's leading money winner, was at 144.

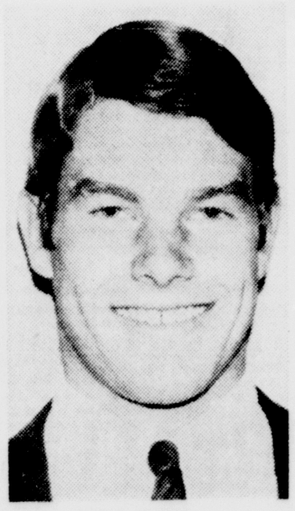
Cerrudo, a 25-year old from Napa, Calif., had five birdies and not a single bogey in his steady round. But he pointed to an 18 foot putt on the fourth as the big shot.

"I hit a bad iron off the tee, and a bad second shot," he said. "It hit a tree and was far to the left. I pitched on, about 18 feet, and made the putt for a par. It kind of kept the momentum going."

Cerrudo ran in a 25-footer on the next hole for a birdie.

He put a four iron four feet from the flag on the first hole, wedged to within eight feet on the 10th, chipped to one foot on the 13th and put a nine iron five feet away on the final hole, making all the putts for birds.

"The putting was the key," said Cerrudo, whose only tour victory came in the Cajun Classic in 1968, his rookie year. "I really didn't hit the ball that well, but I kept knocking those long putts up there for



MARIN'S SCHOLAR-ATHLETES

Lowell Widmer (left) and Dan Jordan, both All-Marin County Athletic League football stars and honor students from San Rafael High School, were among 22 Bay Area high school students honored last night at the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athletes awards dinner in San Francisco. Two seniors from each of 11 leagues were cited for outstanding academic and athletic achievements.

MARICHAL PRAISES MAYS

Juan, Willie Best Buddies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Marichal, stoppeng off here en route to spring training, said Friday that he and Willie Mays are the best of friends and that he expects to sign his 1970 contract with the San Francisco Giants shortly.

Marichal, the ace of the Giants' mound staff and 21-game winner last season, said remarks attributed to him about Mays during the winter were exaggerated.

"This fellow asked me about the Giants of 1970 and then something about Willie Mays. I did say that Willie wasn't the ball player he once was, but I want Willie behind me all the time.

'HELPED US'

"He and I are good friends," Marichal continued. "He was playing great just before he got hurt in Chicago last year and even when he was hurt he helped us at the end of the season."

Marichal is the only player on the Giants' roster who hasn't signed a 1970 contract, but said he didn't expect any trouble in reaching agreement with Giants President Horace Stoneham.

He said he was satesfied with theamount of money Stoneham offered, but wanted to discuss the terms of payment. He reportedly received $115,000 last season and another $10,000 for scouting for the Giants in the Caribbean area.

Egyptian Stuns The Great Laver

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Ismail El Shafei, in his second tournament as a professional, seemed not quite ready to believe what he had just done.

"I've just beaten the world champion," the 22-year-old Egyptian said several times after scoring a convincing 6-3, 10-8 victory over Rod Laver of Australia Friday night.

As Laver went to the sidelines following the battle of left-handers in the U.S. National Indoor Open Tennis championships, American Cliff Richey remained as the lone seeded player in todae's semi-finals.

Richey, the No. 2 domestic seed required only 40 minutes to roll over American Jim Osborne, 6-2, 6-2, in the quarterfinals. But as Richey was doing what was expected of him, El Shafei wasn't.

The Egyptian had packed his bags for a fast getaway following an expected loss and told Bill Riordan, the tournament chairman, to hold onto his prize money in the event they missed each other after the match.

By winning, El Shafei doubled his assured earnings to $2,000 and now has a shot at the $7,200 which goes to the winner.

El Shafei lost to Stan Smith, the top-ranked American, in the finals of the National Indoor amateur in Salisbury last year and he is a local favorite.

"I've never been backed by a crowd anywhere like I am here,' he said. "Maybe not even in Cairo."

Laver, who represents a firm which manufacturers carpet-like artificial surface, criticized the canvas playing surface at the Civic Center, saying it was too loose for proper footing. He said it must be 15 years old.

Riordan said it was three years old, and contended it was "stretched tautly over wood."

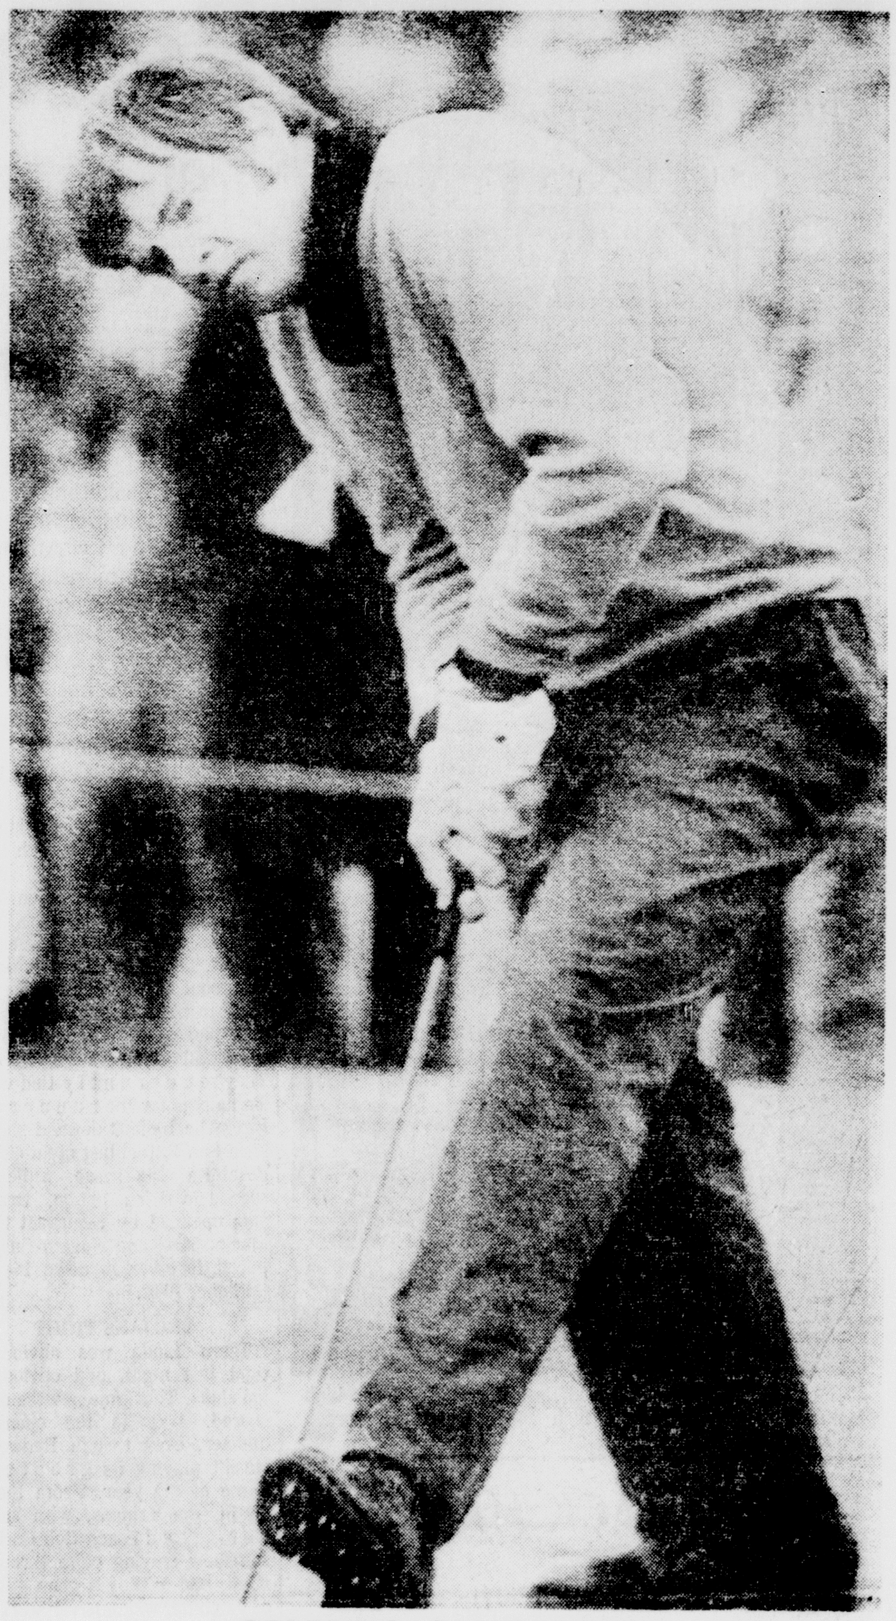
Asked if he would play differently if he ever played El Shafei again, the 31-year-old Laver said: "I won't play him again. . .not on a surface like this."

Richey, who lost to El Shafei here last year, will play him in the semi-finals at 7:30 p.m. In an afternoon match, Roger Taylor of England takes on Ilie Nastase of Romania.

El Shafei, asked if his victory over Laver was the biggest he ever scored, said: "Biggest? It could be the biggest for the next 10 years."

What will happen when he plays Laver again?

"I think he'll beat hell out of me."



CERRUDO ON TARGET

Some Fish Stories From Sports World

The world of fisherman, to say nothing of the Burlington Liars' Club, the ghost of Izaak Walton, and the operators of charter boat landings everywhere, was shocked, so to speak, to the gills last week when a poacher in illegal waters turned in a record-sized fish and ultimately, himself, out of compassion for the fish.

"This fish," he confessed in a note left along with the dead fish on the warden's door step, "deserves more recognition." In other words, he didn't want his catch to become the Judge Crater of the fish world.

The man showed a laudable respect for sporting traditions, and we taken you now to other fields and other times where this spirit might become infectious, as exemplified by the following hypothetical, not to say, far-fetched news stories:

"DODGER STADIUM — Willie Mays made a sensational diving catch of a long line drive off the bat of Maury Wills with the bases loaded and two out today to give the San Francisco Giants the 1970 National League pennant, but, as the fans were dancing in the streets of San Francisco, and the champagne was popping in the dressing room, Willie quietly advised the Dodgers to tag up and advance. 'I trapped the ball,' he told ump Tom Gorman. 'The hit deserved more recognition than that. It was at least a double.' The Dodgers ultimately won the pennant, and Giant manager Clyde King, when he was revived, lauded Willie for his 'honesty in the best traditions of baseball.' Giant owner Horace Stoneham could not be reached for comment."

"SUPER BOWL, NEW ORLEANDS — Mike Garrett, of the Kansas City Chiefs, won the third straight Super Bowl for the AFL today when, with 10 seconds to play and the Chiefs trailing by three points, he ran 88 yards with a Lenny Dawson swing pass for a touchdown. But, as his teammates lifted him on their shoulders, Mike commanded, 'Put me down.' He then went to the field judge. 'I stepped out of bounds on the 50 when their safetyman took out two of my blockers. A move like that deserves more recognition and my left foot was out as the gun went off.' Coach Hank Stram later said a study of the films showed Garrett to be telling the truth. 'I drill these boys in fundamentals,' he said, 'and truth is the first of them.'"

"MADISON SQUARE GARDEN — Joe Frazier won a unanimous decision over Cassius Clay in their heavyweight title fight here tonight but refused to accept it after pointing out he had fouled his opponent in three of the rounds he had officially won. The referee and two judges had an identical 7-6 scoring with two rounds even, but Frazier leaned through the ropes to advise the judges, 'You will recall I butted in the 13th, I hit on the break four times in the 11th, and I stuck my thumb in his eye and hit him law in the 15th. He deserves to be champion even though he can't see out of one eye and I hereby forfeit.' The news brought Gene Tunney out of retiremnt to announce he was returning his championship belt and his retired-undefeated status to Jack Dempsey as subsequent research has shown he was given a count of 14 when floored by Dempsey in 1927. 'There is no doubt about it, under Marquis of Queensberry rules, I was knocked out,' admitted Tunney, apologizing for the delay."

"MADISON AVENUE — TV Account Executive Irving Shrill, shot by his wife, ascribed it all to a case of mistaken identity today. 'I came home with lipstick on my button-down and my wife blamed it on my secretary. I said, 'No, it was the blonde receptionist. A girl like that deserves recognition.' Shrill will recover, but has been taken off the agency's cigarette account. When last heard in his delirium, he was saying 'Our cigarette has killed more mice two-to-one than any other brand. A cigarette like that deserves more recognition.'"

That was in the second half when he blocked three straight shots by Terra Linda's talented center Joe Casteel.

Casteel, wiring and worming his way around the bucket, got 16 points for the Trojans, but it simply wasn't enough.

Piro got lots of help again from smooth Roger Smith, who didn't play all that much, but got 16 points, and from John Boro, who got 10 points and a few steals, in addition to landing in the lap of the crowd several times.

The Indians of Tamalpais must have felt spooky last night. Favored to top San Rafael, which was playing without 6-foot-8 center Don Duryee, they fell behind 25-9 in the early going as Allan Rossi scored 13 points for the Bulldogs.

But a second-half rally, helped by having San Rafael star Bruce Nave in foul trouble, pulled it out for the Indians, who got 19 points from Bill Secor and 17 from Ken Gommeringer. The latter incidentally, set a school free throw record of 19 in a row, making his first two after hitting 12 for 12 against Novato Tuesday.

Rossi finished with 15 points for the Bulldogs. Drake did an almost perfect job of defensing San Marin's 6-8 junior center Dana LaFerriere, the league's leading scorer with a 26.1 average, holding him to just four points. Mustang Gary Howard got an expected 16 points, but it was junior Jim Thompson, finally coming around, who killed the Pirates with a 23-point bombing.

A zone defense by San Marin didn't help Drake much either.

Junior guard Joe DeMaestri ripped in 34 points for Novato, 24 in the first half, to pace the Hornets past Marin Catholic, creating a deadlock for last place.

Tim Stone with 17 points and Bill Donellan with 16 topped the Wildcats. Donellan had 12 points in the first quarter, hitting six of his first seven shots.

Lowly Kings Trade Away Six

LOS ANGELES—Mired in the cellar of the National Hockey League's West Division, the Los Angeles Kings have traded six players in multiple deals with the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

"We had to do something," Kings owner Jack Kent Cook said yesterday.

He described the 6-1 Pittsburgh victory over the Kings yesterday as "the most humiliating experience of my life."

Los Angeles received goalie Denis DeJordy, defenseman Gilles Marotte and center Jim Stanfield from the Black Hawks in exchange for all-star defenseman Bill White, goalie Gerry Desjardins and defenseman Brean Campbell.

The trades also included Kings defenseman Dale Role and Larry Johnson and left winger Gary Croteau to Detroit for defensemen Matt Ravlich and Brian Gibbons and left wing Garry Monahan.

All of the new Kings except Gibbons are to report for tonight's game here against the St. Louis Blues. Gibbons will join the Kings' Springfield Mass., club.

Baseball

OAKLAND — Pitchers Al Downing and Chuck Dobson have signed their 1970 contracts with the Oakland Athletics, the club announced yesterday.

The signings leave the Athletics, whose pitchers and catchers open workouts today in Mesa, Ariz., with 12 players unsigned, including American League All-Stars Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando.

Football

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League who finished with a 9-4-1 mark last season, rehired coach Charley Winner.

BALTIMORE—The Miami Dolphins tampered in hiring away Don Shula as coach-genernal manager without contacting the Baltimore Colts, Colt general manager Don Klosterman charged, but he said he has not lodged a formal complaint and expects no action from NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Boxing

TRIESTE, Italy—World middleweight boxing champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy announced he will face challenger Doyle Baird from Akron, Ohio, in a title fight at Umbago, Yugoslavia, on May 30.

Bowling

MILWAUKEE—Bobby Cooper of Houston, seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association title, defeated John Guenther of Seattle 200-170 for his 12th victory of the day in 16 games and led the way into Saturday's televised finals of the $70,000 Miller Open.

Track and Field

NEW YORK—Tom Von Ruden, an Olympian from the Pacific Coast Club, cracked the 1,000 meters world record, sweeping past defender Frank Murphy to win in 2 minutes, 21 seconds, while Martin McGrady in the 500-meter run and Erv Hall in the 55-meter high hurdles both equalled world marks at the U.S. Olympic initation track meet.

LONG BEACH—Harold Connolly, former Olympic hammer throw champion, bettered the world outdoor record in the 35-pound throw for distance with a toss of 72 feet, 2¾ inches in an all-comers meet at Long Beach State College.

SAN DIEGO—Lee Evans, the Olympic 400-meter king, streaked to a world-record 54.5 seconds in the 500-yard run, knocking nine-tenths of a second off the pending standard in the San Diego indoor games.

Auto Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Jimme Hylton of Inman, S.C., who finished second 14 times on the Grand National circuit, came back after wrecking one car during practice and pushed his 1969 Camara at better than 100 miles per hour for an easy triumph in the Citrus 500 Grand American race at International Speedway.

Bobsledding

LAKE PLACID, N.Y.—Oscar D'Andrea steered an Italian sled through four heats on the mile-long Mt. Van Hoevenberg chute in four minutes, 35.82 seconds to win the two-man bobsled championship of the Kennedy Games, with Paul Lamey of Manchester, N.H., second.

Skiing

STRBSKE PLESO, Czechoslovakia—The Soviet Union grabbed its sixth gold medal, more than all the others combined, with a victory in the women's 15-kilometer relay in the world Nordic ski championships.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depts are always additive to the chart depts unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

CAL WINS

UCLA Vs. Oregon In Crucial Tilt

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If there is any team with a chance of catching torrid UCLA in the Pacific-8 Conference basketball race, it's Oregon.

The Ducks better do their catching tonight in Eugene. They face the No. 1 team in the country in a showdown if there ever was a showdown.

UCLA romped 71-56 to its ninth straight conference victory Friday night in Corvallis against Oregon State while Oregon, moving into the league's runnerup position, buried Southern Cal's hopes 92-83 in Eugene.

California won in overtime against Washington, 91-86 at Berkeley, and Washington State drubbed Stanford 85-62 at Stanford.

Oregon's conference record is 6-3. Although the Bruins and the Ducks each have four games to play after tonight's clash, the chances are none that UCLA won't repeat as Pac-8 champion if Oregon loses.

The Bruins used a zone defense against the Beavers for their 21st consecutive victory of the season.

"I'm not a zone coach," UCLA's John Wooden said for the second straight week. He used a zone last weekend against Washington.

"I don't like it and I haven't used it," Wooden said. "But I thought if we could hold Vic Bartolome down with a zone we could beat Oregon State. It was just that simple."

Bartolome, the 7-foot center who scored 25 points when the Bruins beat the Beavers 72-71 in Los Angeles on Jan. 10, wound up with 10 points, all field goals.

St. Louis Cools Off Red Hot Seals, 3-1

OAKLAND (AP) — It took St. Louis center Red Berenson just two minutes to cool off the redhot Oakland Seals Friday night.

The Seals were tied 1-1 with the Blues and were trying to extend their undefeated streak to four games when Berenson burst the bubble with two tallies in the third period, giving St. Louis a 3-1 victory in the night's only National Hockey League game.

Oakland winds up a five-game home stand tonight against Pittsburgh, tied for second in the NHL West with Philadelphia.

The loss was Oakland's fourth to the Blues in five games against the West Division leaders this season.

Berenson got his game-winner at 10:14 of the final period when the Seals were short-handed, cracking a 25-foot screened shot past goalie Gary Smith on a power play.

At 12:16, Berenson grabbed his 26th goal of the season on a breakaway.

The Seals had tallied first on left wingman Gary Jarrett's ninth goal of the season in the first period.

The Blues began their rally with right wingman Gary Sabourin's 30-foot slapshot at 8:25 of the second period, tying the score.

Petaluma Defeats Rancho Cotate, 71-62

Petaluma High School, playing without injured center Ross Goree, got 21 points from junior Joe Rodola to squeeze by Rancho Coate of Rohnert Park, 71-62, in a non-league season finale last night.

In a North Bay League II game, Sonoma nailed down second place, behind first-place Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa, by whipping Healdsburg, 85-72, last neght.

Tars Vs. Santa Rosa In Last Home Game

College of Marin's basketball team plays its next-to-last game of the season and its final home game tonight when it meets arch-rival Santa Rosa Junior College in a Camino Norte Conference game at Kentfield at eight o'clock.

The Tars are coming off a heart-breaking loss to league-leading Contra Costa of San Pablo and would like to average an overtime loss to Santa Rosa earlier in the season.

Equalization Board Tells Ideas For Taxes Reforms

SACRAMENTO UPI — The state Board of Equalization has offered 11 suggestions on revising California's tax structure to meet government's needs and help John Q. Taxpayer.

The board sent the suggestions to Gov. Ronald Reagan and the Legislature.

The board said the changes were "essential for a goal of property tax relief, an elastic tax base for the future and a fair sharing of its burdens."

One recommendation is to increase the homeowner's property tax exemption from $750 to $1,500. The exemption should be extended to cooperative and owner-occupied multiple-family housing units as well as to persons on public assistance. Renters should also be given consideration.

The recommendations also included:

Increasing senior citizens property tax assistance by raising the maximum income limitation to $5,000 a year and revising the percentages of tax payments reimbursed to a minimum of 20 per cent of the property taxes on the first $5,000 of assessed value.

Permit counties to collect taxes in four or more installments.

Raise educational opportunities to an acceptable minimum level and equalize school tax burdens by the imposition of a state school tax on all taxable property with safeguards to assure an equivalent reduction in locally imposed school taxes.

Tax publicly owned property leased to a private party.

Convert the one-cent sales and use taxes to state-imposed taxes so that a more equitable formula for local allocation of these revenues can be devised and compliance costs reduced.

Eliminate the transportation tax.

Increase the diesel fuel tax to reflect the higher efficiency of diesel fuel as compared to gasoline.

Subject the insurance taxes to legislative control by converting them to statuatory impositions and eliminate the discriminatory principal office deduction.

And redefine properties which qualify for the welfare exemption.

Family Offers Reward On Missing Daughter

Air Force T/Sgt. and Mrs. Sam Counts have offered a $300 reward for information concerning their 16-year-old daughter, Joanne, who has been missing from the family home at 667 Owen Drive, Novato, for five weeks.

Joanne has brown eyes and brown hair, weighs 100 pounds and is five feet tall.

HISTORIC OCCASION

Herber C. Leney, church moderator (left) and Carl M. Bennett, building chairman, scoop up dirt to signal the start of an addition to the Church of All Faiths in Corte Madera. Groundbreaking ceremonies held last Sunday for the new unit which will double the size of the church. Actual construction, according to Rev. Joseph L. Hughes, church pastor, began the following day.

EXCITING GOALS

Church Enters Field Of Arts

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Presbyterian Church has started the World Arts Foundation, a nonsectarian, but religion-oriented, patron of the arts.

Purpose is "to foster the creation of works of art which enable man to better understand his relationship to himself and to his God."

Money will be used primarily to commission works from individual artists and to disseminate the works as widely as possible. For example, the first project will be to commission 20 to 25 established artists from various countries to do lithographs. Graham Grove, president of the World Arts Foundation, says, "We hope to road show those around to churches and then take them abroad. We hope to have them out by Christmas."

Richard Gilbert, chairman of the United Presbyterian Church's Division of Mass Media, says, "Our over-all theme is man's ultimate concern—his relationship to God and his fellow man. That is the umbrella. The artist is free to choose under that. The beauty of our foundation is that its scope is as wide as any man's search for truth. Its focus can be as humanistic or as explicitly Biblical as anyone wants to make it.

"We are not going to ask artists to follow any line. If there are shocks, that is fine.

"Artists know you don't sell ideas, you have experiences, and from those come a whole spectrum of ideas. We're asking artists for insights, not to be theologians."

Gilbert is the man who became enthusiastic about Grove's idea for a foundation and got the United Presbyterian Church behind it.

The foundation would like to commission a rock opera, perhaps produce its premiere at a big festival—it invisions annual festivals—and then tour it to rock palaces and "square" halls and distribute recordings of it.

Grove says, "We're going to set up a distribution outfit for circulating records through churches so that the over-30 generation would be exposed, too.

"Kids are so much into the search for meaning in their lives too. We're against further polarization or generations."

The World Arts Foundation also wants to commission films, paintings, drama, dance, books, architecture, television shows, sculpture, hymns, etc.

What the foundation won't get into, that many foundations do, is giving money to performing arts groups, like theater repertory or dance companies.

First, of course, money is needed. Gilbert says, "We're going down millionaire's row and hoping to combine their interest in art and their interest in their church. They are parallel in most of their minds. For many, the man of God and the man who searches for reality are one.

Grove says, "We're aiming at an endowment of $5 million, with a minimum of $1.5 million to spend every year. We're interested in setting up projects which will be self-supporting, like the record and film distribution."

Gilbert says that artists have "no hesitation about working in the precincts of the church. Most major artists have accepted commissions on specific themes, like Dali and Chagall. I would hope we could commission Leonard Bernstein to go beyond his 'Chichester Psalms.'

"And the rock writers are religious more so than your average priest and minister, if you define religion as the search for God and the celebration of life."

Actors To Give Play Tomorrow

"Look Back to the Hill" by Donald Mueller will be presented at 7 p.m. tomorrow by the Methodist Actors Serving the Church at the United Methodist Church in Novato.

The play looks back to Golgotha. The characters are minor people in the life of Jesus.

Nancy Hamilton, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Leo W. Hamilton of the Novato church is in the cast. The play is directed by Jo Taylor of Sacramento.

Russian Baptists

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — More than 5,000 Russians were baptized as members of Baptist Churches in the Soviet Union in the last year, the Rev. Michael Shidkov, pastor of the Moscow Baptist Church, told a conference here. He says preaching services are held six times weekly in Russian Baptist churches, whose total membership now is about 500,000.

'Age' Segregation

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Criticizing the church practice of establishing special homes for the aged. Dr. Herbert C. Lazenby, head of a residential development for older citizens, calls them "ghettos of aging." He told a Christian Church (Disciples) meeting here that "age segregation is as serious as segregation by economics, race or creed."

Pornography Fight

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Joseph Devlin, an insurance agent, and John de Polo, a Customs official, both with teen-age children, have started a Christian Anti-Pornography Group in Liverpool. They called a public rally to urge Christians to act against pornography in movies, theater, television, advertising and literature. Several teen-age girls volunteered to help. Roman Catholic Archibishop Joseph Beck of Liverpool is patron of the group.

SEVERAL MAJOR REASONS

Why So Much Catholic News?

UPI Religion Writer
By LOUIS CASSELS

Newspapers and wire services are often asked, "Why do you carry so much Catholic news?"

The question usually comes from an irate Protestant, a circumstance which tempts editors to shrug it off as a manifestation of sectarian bias.

But that's too easy an out. It is a serious question and deserves a serious answer.

Except in areas where there is very little Catholic population, most American newspapers probably do devote more space to stories and pictures about Catholic church affairs than they do to any Protestant denomination.

This practice could be defended on purely numerical grounds, the Roman Catholic Church is by far the largest religious body in the United States today.

It has four times as many members as the largest Protestant denomination, as many members as the Southern Baptists, American Baptists, United Methodists, Episcopalians, United Presbyterian Southern Presbyterians, American Lutherans, Missouri Lutherans, Disciples, Mormons, United Church of Christ, Quakers, Unitarians, Christian Scientists, Mennonites and Seventh Day Adventists, combined.

In the world at large, Catholics outnumber Protestants of all varieties by a margin of more than two to one.

So if you make comparisons on the basis of so many inches of news space per 100,000 members, you'll have to measure the total Catholic coverage against virtually the total Protestant coverage —not the space given to one particular Protestant denomination.

This, however, is a somewhat misleading approach. For newspapers and wire services, if they're doing their job properly, do not parcel out space according to slide rule calculations of how many people are members of the denomination concerned.

The important test is the news value of the story or picture.

Editors have a terrible time trying to explain to laymen how they determine relative news value. Basically, it's a subjective decision made by an editor on the basis of his intuitive judgment of the number of readers likely to be interested in a story or picture, and the probable intensity of their interest.

Actions of Catholic authorities, especially the Pope or those close to him in the Vatican, rate high in news value not only because there are a lot of Catholics, but also because the impact of official decisions on the lives of individual members is much greater in a hierarchical church than in a Protestant denomination which emphasizes freedom of individual conscience.

For example:

When Pope Paul VI condemned all forms of artificial birth control, his edict caused immediate and highly personal anguish in millions of Catholic homes.

If the president of the Southern Baptist Convention came out against birth control, there might be some debate among Southern Baptists as to whether he had taken a wise stand, or whether he had any business pronouncing on such a subject. But the impact of the statement and hence its news value would be minimized by the fact that all Southern Baptists would feel free to ignore it if they wished.

This also explains why it is more newsworthy when the Vatican Council adopts new rules for the Mass (which will actually change the worship habits of all practicing Catholics) than it is when the National Council of Churches adopts a resolution which isn't binding on anybody, even the delegates who adopt it.

Still another consideration to be borne in mind is that the Vatican, in addition to being headquarters of the Catholic Church, also is a secular state —a tiny one, to be sure, but with far-reaching diplomatic connections. By virtue of his dual role as a spiritual and secular ruler, the Pope sometimes is involved in international affairs in a way that other Christian leaders are not.

On the local level, Catholic news may get an edge from the fact that much of it comes from a central source —the bishop's chancery. Look closely and you may observe that the non-Catholic bodies which get the most news space usually are those which have a similar central source of news —such as an Episcopal diocese, a Methodist district, a Lutheran synod or a Presbyterian presbytery.

This leads to a practical suggestion: Protestant groups which emphasize the autonomy of the local congregation might find it helpful to cooperate in establishing a central community source for news of their denomination.

Churches which prefer or find it necessary to go it alone in publicizing their activities should appoint a public relations officer (or committee) to channel news to local newspapers and broadcasting stations.

The religion editor of your home town paper will always be glad to sit down with any church-appointed public relations representative and explain the ground rules about copy submission, deadlines, etc.

There may be editors who intentionally show favoritism to some religious bodies and discriminate against others. But they must be pretty scarce, because I've been in this business a long time and I've never met one.

Greek Church Is Formally Recognized

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin, which was organized a year ago, has been granted formal recognition by the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America.

Announcement was made earlier this month when the church elected new officers for the year. Tapped as president was William Poulopoulos of Kentfield.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other board of director officers are Charles Parnell, executive vice president; Gus Kosturos, vice president; Chris Christo, secretary, and Peter Tsigelatos, treasurer.

Dr. Ted Prevolos, past president, will serve as ex-officio member and Mrs. Peter Kavantjas will continue as bookkeeper and executive secretary.

Seven new directors were named including Kosturos, Van Athanasakos, Ted Madias, Peter Patrakis, Aris Fafoutis, Isadore Natsios and Milton Sideris.

Reelected were Victor Gavallos, Peter Kavantjas, Spiro Halikas, Thano Johnson, Parascos Kalogiannis, George Morf, John Papadopoulos, George Roland, Stanley and Anthony Sarganis and Gus Stathis.

Also at the annual session goals for the year were outlined, including finding a permanent priest and the start of a building fund.

PRESENT LOCATION

The church, which holds 10 a.m. Sunday services in Montgomery Chapel on the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, is served by Rev. George Bogdanos of Oakland.

First fund event of the year will be a Apokriatico Madri Gras benefit dinner-dance beginning at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the Corte Madera Recreation Center. Serving as honorary queen and king will be Dottie Christo and John Cadoux.

Start of Lent for the Eastern Orthodox faith begins approximately a month after Western churches and concludes with the celebration of Easter on April 26.

Hub Church Will Join Observance

The First Baptist Church in San Anselmo, a member of the American Baptist Convention, will observe "American Christ Offering Sunday" tomorrow.

The special day is being observed to inform church members of 1970 goals and also to give a chance of additional pledges.

Guest To Discuss Church Education

Rev. Eva Zabolai-Csekme of Austria, theological exchange student at the Pacific Lutheran Seminary in Berkeley, will be guest preacher at both the 9 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at Faith Lutheran Church of San Rafael.

Miss Zabolai-Csekme will also act as resource leader at the 9:45 a.m. adult exploration seminar.

She was ordained into the ministry last February in Vienna. Born and reared in Hungary, she left the country in 1958, two years after the Hungarian Revolution.

She will be the first woman minister to speak in the pulpit, since there are no ordained women ministers in the denomination in the United States.

REV. ZABOLAI—CSEKME
To Speak Tomorrow

Minister From Austria To Talk At Lutheran Church

Dick Rabine, director of Christian education at the Peninsula Covenant Church in Redwood City, will speak on "Christain Education in the 1970s," at the 9:30 a.m. worship service tomorrow at the Marin Covenant Church.

Rabine will follow the message with a 10:45 a.m. discussion period at the regularly scheduled adult class. At the same hour there are also classes for youth from pre-school to college.

Rabine had experience in the field of Christian education and juvenile delinquency in Detroit, Michigan and Cicero, Ill. prior to coming to California in 1964.

At the Covenant Church in Redwood City he has developed an extensive child nursery school and has developed work with the handicapped and the blind.

In 1969 he was elected public relations director of the National Association of directors of Christian Education.

The Marin Covenant Church meets in the Marinwood Community Center, corner of Lucas Valley and Miller Creek roads.

Three Events To End Baptist Mission Meet

The Bethel Baptist Church in Novato will conclude a three-day missionary conference tomorrow with three special events.

Children will see slides and will hear a lecture by Mrs. Irwin Firchow of the Wycliffe Bible Translators, at 9:45 a.m.

At the 11 a.m. worship service Paul Preddy, recently returned from the Congo, will speak on his work as an American Baptist missionary.

A symposium for youth and adult group will be held at 6 p.m., followed by showing of slides by Preddy at 7 p.m.

Hirai Renamed Council Leader

James Hirai has been reelected council president of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church of Tiburon for this year.

Also reelected: Edison Quick, vice president; Mrs. Leonard Peck, secretary; Charles Beardsly, treasurer; and Lt. Cmdr. Dolph Jaeger, Elmer Hein, Mrs. Richard Kenney and Gerald Madson, board members.

Named new board members: John Radovitch and James Luther.

Conservation Talk Founder's Day

David Brower, director of the John Muir Institute, will talk on man's relationship to the earth tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere. It is the first in a series of conservation talks, the church said.

San Anselmo Seeks Funds For Wide-Ranging Planning Study

What San Anselmo needs is a planning study to develop programs to correct its shortcomings and past mistakes stemming from haphazard growth.

That is the rationale behind an application for federal planning funds approved this week by the city planning commission. The application is backed up by details gathered in a report by citizens committees last year which pinpoint the city's needs in streets, services, planning and other areas.

The application needs the city council's stamp of approval before it is sent to the state Council of Intergovernmental Relations.

The citizens' committee reports were boiled down and included in the application, which was prepared by planning consultants Williams and Mocine.

$114,000 COST

The ambitious aims of the study, tentatively budgeted at $114,000, are to correct community problems, guide development, preserve community values and prevent urban blight.

The report proposed these physical goals for the study:

Protect the natural environment; solve arterial traffic problems; improve the local street system; develop sidewalks, paths and bicycle trails where possible; support mass transit plans and all modes of travel to lessen dependence on cars; revitalize downtown; enhance multiple-family areas to the quality of the rest of the city; encourage residential rehabilitation.

Pass school bonds, provide adequate recreation facilities using school facilities for recreation, provide enough office space for all city departments, and bring all utility mains up to standard.

Social goals included keeping San Anselmo a city with a wide range of ages and economic status among its residents, encouraging "a proper proportion" of low-income and moderate-income housing, and improved park and recreation program, and improving the school plant.

The economic goals were to raise the tax base by revitalizing downtown, develop a capital improvement program based on financing abilities and lod logical priorities, and seeking all available funds from other sources.

The report devoted 10 pages to detailing the city's problems, including climate, streets, sewers, water mains, traffic, transit, schools, growth plans, and social and economic problems. Its findings and recommendations:

STORMS — Storm runoff, increasing as the hillsides are developed, overloads inadequate drain systems and causes flooding of low areas. An adequate storm drain system must be built from scratch, while preserving esthetic and ecological values of San Anselmo Creek and tributaries.

SEWERS — Usually adequate, they are overloaded when storm water infiltrates the system, and sewage empties onto streets during storms. Ross Valley Sanitary District has no plans to upgrade San Anselmo lines, and local improvement plans appear to be necessary.

WATER — The distribution system of Marin Municipal Water District water is inadequate for good fire protection. New fire hydrants and 135,000 feet of new lines and mains are needed.

CIRCULATION — The main problems are the Hub intersection bottleneck and too much traffic for avilable lanes on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Center Avenue. The committee rejected the idea of widening Center and Drake and recommended instead that local dependence on the automobile be lessened and traffic "unrelated to San Anselmo" be discouraged.

PUBLIC TRANSIT — Public transportation is inadequate, and Greyhound Lines wants to get out of the intracounty business. The committee recommended the city encourage mass transit progress through the Marin Transit District, Golden Gate Bridge District, state and federal authorities.

DEVELOPMENT — Slow and haphazard growth has produced many substandard lots, multiple use in one-family districts and potential deterioration, overdensity and difficult access. Inadequate parking and circulation have hurt downtown. New planning techniques were recommended to protect hillsides from overcrowding, and remedial action to improve older multiple family areas.

SCHOOLS — Two bond issues have failed in the Tamalpais High School District, and Sir Francis Drake High School now has 14 portable classrooms, while San Anselmo schools are in inadequate space and overcrowded.

PUBLIC FACILITIES — The city has little developed park and recreation land, and has not developed a full program commensurate with the city's status and needs. All city buildings except the remodeled library and the new fire station No. 2 were called inadequate.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS — With a small minority population and as a middle class community, the city has no dramatic social problems, but its isolation and the low level of public services can make it a difficult place to live for the elderly, the young and those on fixed incomes, and make it an unlikely place for low-income or minority persons to seek a home.

Despite the problems, the committee considered the city "a fine place to live and to grow up in by any reasonable measure."

ECONOMIC — Private economic problems are most noted downtown, where there are commerical vacancies, and a physical decline downtown would mean loss of city tax revenue. The committee said even with careful planning and programs, additional revenue sources will be needed for necessary improvements.

San Anselmo had a general plan prepared in 1961, but that plan is no longer effective, according to the application for federal funds.

A downtown plan prepared in 1963 failed to gain community acceptance and was not carried out.

According to the application, the city would put up $38,000 in cash and services toward the project's $114,000 cost.

Toll Hike Backed By Hub Group

The San Anselmo Homes Association has unanimously approved the commuter toll indent of the association, reported.

He said he move came Thursday night after a report by member Anne West to the association that the development of alternate means of transportation is imperative and that the toll increase will in par make such development possible.

The association also scheduled for 8 p.m.April 1 a San Anselmo City Council candidates' night in the Drake High School little theater. The meeting will be cosponsored by the League of Women Voters and other civic groups, Brand said.

He said new officers will be elected at the association's next meeting in May, but no date has been set yet.

Re-Roofing? Don't run up the cost by adding medical bills.

Re-roofing is a job for an expert. For one thing, it is dangerous work, and a fall can mean expensive medical bills. Don't take a chance. Pride, fear, and confusion are stopping 5 million disabled from getting the help they need.

Five million disabled people are in need of our help. And we can't find them. Either they don't know where to go for help or they won't go.

Some are disabled physically. Others mentally. Some are living in the past. Others, disabled from birth, have no past.

But most, with proper guidance and medical aid, could be living instead of existing. They could be learning to take care of themselves. They could be taught interesting jobs. They could be getting more out of life than they're getting.

So if you're disabled (or concerned about someone who is), write to us for help.

You've got nothing to lose but your disability.

What's stopping you!

Barbershop Buffs Looking For Lost Chord

The Marin chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America needs bassos.

Also baritones.

Also tenors.

Also guys who sing "lead."

In an effort to get them, the SPEBSQA will have a free "open house audition" Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the little theater of Redwood High School in Larkspur.

"No bathtub singer should miss this opportunity," declaimed Tom Knight of Ignacio, SPEBSQA chapter president, "especially if he's never sung in a close harmony group.

"There's danger, though," he added. "The first time you lock in on a natural harmony chord it's a mind-blowing experience. It's worse than a drug. Once you get hooked, you can't turn yourself on alone. You have to find three other guys."

Reason for the audition tomorrow night is that the Marin Barbershoppers are trying to expand their Golden Gate Harmony Chorus into a 100-voice orter has three registered quarganization.

Besides the chorus, the chapptets, the Big Time Operators, the Bay Rums, and the Golden Gaters. They'll "ring a few chords" at the audition tomorrow, according to Knight. More are "in the works," he said.

The group meets every Tuesday at 8 p.m. for about two and one-half hours of singing under direction of Ned Hardin, music instructor at Balboa High School in San Francisco. The meetings alternate between Angelico Hall of Dominican College, San Rafael, and San Clemente School on Paradiste Drive in Corte Madera.

A culm or stem of bamboo springs up at a phenomenal rate: in hot, moist weather some species grow as much as three feet in 24 hours.

Span Commuters Slate A Session

The Golden Gate Commuters Association, a citizens group formed in December to oppose higher tolls on the Golden Gate Bridge, will hold a public meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in Room 311 of the Marin County Administration Building.

Chairman Martin Strauss of Fairfax said the meeting, the group's second, would be to draw up a statement of policy. "We hope to contribute some constructive opposition to the bridge directors' entry into the transportation business," he said.

The group formed after bridge directors hiked the cost of 25-round trip commute books from $6.50 to $10, a hike supported by several citizens groups in Marin.

Coeds Helping Hatch Owlish Plot

BERKELEY (AP) — The coeds of Stern Hall of the University of California are busy knitting little things in anticipation of a blessed event. Archimeda is about to become a momma.

Archimeda is a great horned owl who moved in with pretty, redhaired Chris Church, 19, of Richmond, last fall in violation of a university rule on pets.

"What owl?" said house mother Doloreta Farnsworth coyly when questioned about the bird with the huge yellow eyes.

"We have quite a few owls in the trees around Stern. . we really enjoy watching them."

Miss Rhuch also enjoys watching Archimeda hooting gently over a single egg in a cornflakes box-nest on the balcony of the dormitory room.

"Too -wit! Too- WOOOOO!" says Archimeda, cocking her head to one side.

Archimeda's mate, Merlin, lives in aeucalyptus tree next to the dormitory. When the expectant mother isn't setting, she's up there with Merlin too-witting and too-wooing.

An associate dean, who asked her name not to be used, confirmed Friday that the university would like Archimeda evicted, saying the rules "prohibit all animals."

Miss Church and the other coeds say they're confident no universety is so hard-hearted as to toss an expectant mother out on her tailfeathers.

Kentfield Board Sets Lot Survey

The Kentfield School District board has authorized a house and lot survey to predict the probable size and location of the student population for the next five years.

Results of the survey, made by parent volunteers, will be used to redesign present attendance boundaries for the district's three schools, according to the board in April.

Richmond Bridge Traffic Is Up

Traffic on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge totaled 501,042 vehicles during November, up from 447,053 in November the previous year, the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings reported.

Gross revenue totaled $412,680, up from $369,594.

Building First

MANILA (UPI)—A Manila construction firm has built the Philippines' first single-beam concrete house in a suburban development area. It was constructed under license from its designer and patent holder, Dr. Francesco Vanich.

A recent poll in Norway showed that in a sample population, 73 per cent approved of short skirts.

Novato Chamber Planning Assistance To Arrivals

A brochure to help new businesses open in Novato will b e put out by the Chamber of Commerce, chamber directors have decided.

A committee will be named by president George A. Barnwell to work with the city on the pamphlet, which will outline steps a new business must follow to open in the city, according to secretary Billie Carl.

The chamber would then set up a welcoming committee to help prospective businessmen get established, the directors decided Thursday.

The board also voted to try to obtain better land in areas rezoned for industrial offices and commerce, she said. Most of the industrial land is now swampland.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce board also:

LUNCHEON—Set March 5 at the Lodge for a public luncheon with Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R- San Rafael, at which he will answer questions about the state Legislature.

RECEPTION—Agreed to hold a reception for Allen V. Klemme, scheduled to take over as police chief on March 1. Time and place of the reception is to be set.

Buenos Aires is the largest Spanish-speaking city in the world, and it claims the most parks — about 150, the longest street 260 blocks, and the broadest boulevard 450 feet wide.

Assault Suspect Enters Dual Plea

Pleas of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity were entered yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Robert Leon Covic, 32, of San Francisco, who is accused of two charges of felony assault on jailers.

A preliminary hearing was set for March 27.

Covic was first arrested Jan. 22 while walking illegally on Highway 101. After his arrest he bragged that he had killed actress Sharon Tate. While being held in jail, he was accused of attacking two guards when they went into the maximum security area to investigate a light he had broken.

Collage Technique To Be Demonstrated

Gwen Stone, a San Rafael artist, will demonstrate collage technique and discuss its development in today's art Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

This is the second in a lecture series presented by the Marin Society of Artists.

The Many Talents Of John Milton Hagen

Marinite Writes Everything From Verse To Musicals

By DON KEOWN

"Don't call me a poet," remonstrates John Milton Hagen of Mill Valley. "It's an insult!"

An insult to Hagen?

"No," grins Hagen. "An insult to poets."

Then, if not a poet, what is he?

"A vegetarian," quips the irrepressible Hagen. Then slightly more seriously: "I'm what is known as a poetaster — rhymes with disaster."

And what is a poetaster?

"A POETASTER is several degrees below a poet. Let's say, a versifier, or a stanzambulist, or something."

And that is the way a conversation goes with John Milton Hagen, who, despite his protests, is most frequently referred to as a poet, and whose verse has won commendation from figures ranging from W. Somerset Maugham to Jimmy Durante, and including the likes of Ogden Nash and S. Omar Barker.

Barker, novelist, short story writer and "the cowboy poet," once referred to Hagen as "a fellow poet."

HAGEN AT once objected. But Barker was insistent, holding that Hagen's craftsmanship was such that he could only be described as a poet.

"It was nice of him to say so," says Hagen, "but I still disagree. I'm just a rhymester, a punster."

The fun-loving spirit with which Hagen approaches his verse is reflected in the titles of his books.

"I Am In Iambics" was one. "The Shrewd Nude and Other Light Verse — and Dark" was another.

FOR HIS most recent collection of verse, Hagen claims "probably the longest book title in the world."

He called it: "Lecherous, Licentious, Lascivious Lyrics Is Not the Title of This Book. The Actual Title Is the Violent Violet."

And what was it all about?

"It's concerned with sex, morals, politicians, hippies, taxes — you know, the modern scenery. Or obscenery, if you prefer."

It is contemporary satire in short and long verse.

DESPITE THE success of his efforts as poet or poetaster, Hagen is better known in most quarters as a songwriter.

Or rather, John Milton Hagen is hardly known at all as a songwriter. That work has been done under the name Sterling Sherwin, the same signature he frequently affixes to the short, pithy verse he submits to the Independent-Journal's letters-to-the-editors columns, or to the Marin Magazine's Marin Poets' Corner.

As Sherwin he is the source of some 600 songs that have been published in most English-speaking countries and have been translated into a number of foreign tongues.

FRANCIS, DAY & Hunter, who published his cowboy songs in Great Britain, described him as "America's foremost writer of western songs."

Canada and Australia later reprinted the book of his western songs, and it has remained a top-seller since World War II.

Some other Hagen-Sherwin song collections:

"Singin' in the Saddle Songs" for which Benny Bufano created the title page; "Songs of the Road and Range" and "Railroad Songs of Yesterday and Today," done in collaboration with Harry K. McClintock, who was known on the air as Haywire Mac; "Songs of San Francisco," the official book of San Francisco's Golden Gate Exposition, a second London-published "Saddle Songs" collection, and "Songs of the Gold Miners," "Songs of the Roundup," "Bad Man Songs of the Wild and Woolly West," "Songs of Road and Range" and "Western College Songs."

HIS "SINGIN" in the Saddle" songbook broke a United States record at the time when it sold 12,000 copies in its first three months on the music racks.

And one of his cowboy albums sold 100,000 copies in Britain and Australia during the war — until the paper supply ran out.

His western music has shown up as background for more than a few of Hollywood's more ambitious "horse opera" movies.

AND AWAY from the folk idiom and in the popular vein, he has produced such June-spoon numbers and novelties as "Tulips Will Bloom Again In Holland," "So Sweet," "The Moon and You," "Let's Live on Love" and "It's Reliably Reported in Certain Quarters (That I'm in Love with You).

"Yes," laughs the poet or poetaster-songwriter, "I envy Sterling Sherwin. He has an international reputation. He's a celebrity. John Milton Hagen is a comparative nobody."

But it was as both John Milton Hagen and Sterling Sherwin that he was written up in Success magazine.

AND ALSO as Hagen and Sherwin that he was featured in the now defunct popular national magazine Collier's in the late 1940s.

That piece was done by the late Dean Jennings, a fellow Marinite.

Jennings began his article

MARIN CLEANERS Phone 454-4792 — Member N.I.D. of San Rafael, Bel Aire & Fairfax

"Why Can't I Do My Own Cleaning?"

You can. However, in addition to a technical knowledge of fabrics, dyes and weaves, you should -

1. Always use clean cloths, taking a clean portion for each operation.
2. If soap suds are required, make certain the fabric and colors will withstand water. Use a neutral, non-alkaline soap. Avoid excessively hot water. When necessary, use it sparingly and wipe it off quickly.
3. Use white, not colored or ethyl gasoline. Preferrably use non-inflammable carbon tetrochloride.
4. Avoid bleaching solvents unless specified.
5. Be careful handling cleaning solvents. They may irritate skin or lungs. Do not apply cleaning solvents directly to the fabric. Use a clean cloth or brush.

Yes, you can do your own cleaning, but isn't it safer, easier, more practical and economical to employ a professional drycleaner?

Versatile Mill Valley Man Has Colorful Past, Lively Present

with a description of Hagen in the nervous years of early World War II, accompanied by some strange apparatus and hovering mysteriously around the aircraft plants and adjacent taverns of Southern California.

After several days during which he scraped up acquaintances and conversations with war plant workers and airplane test pilots, and scribbled pages of notes, some one in Burbank, suspicions aroused, summoned the police.

THE APPARATUS he was lugging around proved to be a portable organ.

And what Hagen, or Sherwin, was doing, was collecting material for some folk songs about the men and women who worked in wartime aviation.

So successful was the project that a much impressed Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker wrote a glowing introduction for the songbook, describing it as "a treasure chest of the air fraternity."

Composer-lyricist Hagen-Sherwin had never been up in an airplane, and could not tell an aileron from a harpsichord.

BUT THIS has never been a major obstacle for him. He has a unique ability for capturing, almost by osmosis, the terminology, the flavor and the attitudes of a field of work from those who do the job.

Thus he has written sea chanties without ever having been to sea. And mining songs without ever having been in a mine. And he became Amerisa's most prolific composer of original cowboy songs without ever riding a horse.

Hagen is Nebraska-born, the son of a real estate man and amateur singer who brought his family to California before World War I. Young Hagen exhibited musical talent early and it was encouraged. He studied privately and attended Stanford University where he earned his degree in 1921.

AT STANFORD, he studied under playwright Maxwell Anderson, wrote a prize-winning musical play "The Rah! Rah! Rajah," and edited the college humor magazine, the Stanford Chaparral, or more familiarly "The Chappie."

From Stanford, he went to New York City to write for a

ALTHOUGH John Milton Hagen, also known as Sterling Sherwin, insists he is not a poet, he can display these three published collections of his witty verse. The books are "I Am In Iambic," "The Shrewd Nude" and, his latest, "Lecherous, Licentious, Lascivious Verse Is Not the Title of This Book."

WITH HIS PET BOXER, Jeremiah, as his companion, John Milton Hagen reminisces over one of the several published collections of the cowboy songs that he has written. Western tunes have been his particular specialty as a writer of both lyrics and music.

western music publisher who soon left him stranded.

He survived for the next eight years by writing publicity for bands, blurbs for music publishers, theatrical articles and songs of his own, none of which turned out to be hit tunes.

AT TIMES, his diet was reduced to a breakfast of tea and cheese and a dinner of sliced green peppers and crackers, the last toasted over an alcohol lamp.

Eventually he returned to California, and it was back on the West Coast that he coined the name of Sterling Sherwin.

And it was under the name Sherwin that his work began to find a readier market and a larger audience.

The multi-talented Hagen's past also includes two plays written for Broadway and "a few Greenwich Village off-Broadway shows."

THE FIRST play, a mystery written in collaboration with Dana Rush and published by Longmans-Green, was pirated, he says, by a big producer who gave it an all-star cast. The result was a long run on the stage, and then a movie.

Hagen and Rush sued. "But," he says, "they had the better lawyers....It's a story in itself, and I'm saving it for a book of projected short stories."

His second play was actually a musical revue produced at the Daly Theater.

Hagen says: "It had a run of 4,320 minutes — or about three days. Somehow, it sounds better by the minute."

TICKETS WERE selling, he recalls, but the producer was working on a shoestring "and the shoestring broke."

His off-Broadway work he describes as "just a lot of experimental fun."

At the time Jennings wrote the Collier's piece he was struck by the complete absence of beds in the Hagen home — not the Mill Valley house Hagen now occupies, but nearby.

Hagen and his wife, whom he called "Beppo," were sleeping out-of-doors, Jennings wrote.

"Technically," says Hagen, "Dean was right. We had moved the beds out of the house. But it wasn't as Bohemian as it sounded. We were sleeping under cover -- under a roof overhang."

THE HAGENS have since divorced.

"We are still good friends," says Hagen, "even though in living in Bangor, Maine, she seems to have gone as far away from me as she can get and still remain in the United States."

At the time of the Jennings piece, Hagen was subsisting largely on a diet of peanuts and chestnuts, his munching of them beginning with breakfast and continuing through the day. Hagen then bought his peanuts 25 pounds at a time from a San Francisco Chinatown shop.

"THE PEANUTS turned out to be a front for a gambling dive, and the police raided and closed the place," Hagen remembers. "I had to find myself another source."

Nutritious peanuts remain a favorite food.

A dehydrated, shelled peanut sold by Planters in jars wins his special approval.

And he still roasts chestnuts slowly on a flat toaster on top of his stove ("first you have to stab a hole in each nut"), although he adds that "you can boil them quite successfully as well."

THE AIREDALES he favored at the time of the Jennings article have since given way to boxers. He now owns his second boxer, Jeremiah, because, like Jeremiah of the Bible who chided the populace, "he likes to go out into the woods and bark his head off at the whole world."

In his somewhat isolated home in the wooded Mill Valley hills, Hagen leads an almost recluse-like existence.

"I don't entertain at home," he says. "You just can't have people coming in and out, and get your work done."

When his work involves music, he tackles it at a small, much-used, lilliputian-sized organ.

HE OFTEN works long hours at a stretch, but he enjoys breaks in which he wanders in the fresh air among the trees with Jeremiah.

Despite his way-of-life, Hagen is not anti-social. Quite the contrary.

He does his socializing at his clubs. He is a member of the Bohemian Club and the Press Club of San Francisco.

He belongs, too, to Sigma Del-

THIS LIGHTWEIGHT and much-used organ serves John Milton Hagen, or Sterling Sherwin, as his instrument when he sits down to compose music and to write lyrics. Here he works out a score.

HE USED TO buy his peanuts in 25-pound lots, but now John Milton Hagen gets them in smaller quantities. They remain his favorite food and source of energy. And he gobbles them throughout the day — sometimes even for breakfast.

A YOUNGER John Milton Hagen or Sterling Sherwin was doing very much the same things that Hagen-Sherwin still does today. Here he was pictured at his desk composing, with the indispensible keyboard nearby, and the just as indispensible peanuts also close on hand.

ta Chi, the Mark Twain Society, the Eugene Field Society, the Late Watch and, of course, the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers. ASCAP, incidentally has scheduled a piece on Hagen for its quarterly, due out soon.

YET HAGEN insists he is not a joiner. "In most cases," he says, "I was invited to join."

A small energetic man, given to good spirits and to bursts of enthusiasm, Hagen used to rely upon a corncob pipe as his tranquilizer. But he has since given up all smoking, "although I still have quite an assortment of pipes around the house."

Essentially Hagen is an "idea man" — an innovator. His always working, creative brain has come up with such ideas as poetry in which the opening words, rather than the closing words, rhyme.

OR THE IDEA he was working with some years ago for three dimensional music with eye and nose appeal as well as sound.

"Lo and behold," he says, "one night I was watching television and there was a young fellow who played the keyboard of the instrument he had invented, and it not only made music but it also provided a colored light show, a different color for each note.

"It gave me a feeling of satisfaction that one of my old theories had been proven."

Right now, Hagen has a number of irons in the fire. One is a novel set in the Tin Pan Alley that he knew so well. Another a collection of short stories.

BUT HE STILL thinks of himself primarily as a writer of cowboy songs, the medium that first brought him success and recognition.

"Evidently," Dean Jennings wrote, "Sherwin (Hagen) has mastered the idiom in both music and verse, for his best customers are those same lonely riders of the plains."

Indeed, Hagen seems to have an ability to adopt and use just about any idiom, whether his subjects be railroaders, miners, pilots or what have you.

HE HAS EVEN written a "song without music" dedicated to would-be Golden Gate Bridge jumpers, entitled "Don't Spin Off the Span, Man!"

It begins like this:

"Oh, don't spin off the span, man,
No don't spin off the span!
Too late you may find
You've changed your mind,
Just after your dive began..."

And it ends like this:

"...For each reason why
You would 'cast your die'
There's 10 for the stay-alive plan,
Oh, don't spin off the span!"

Hagen doesn't know whether any potential suicides have heard or heeded his message. But he is confident that if they had kept as busy as he has been, and still is, they would never have contemplated a final jump in the first place.

The Seven Nuns Are Back Again

Some Things Change, But Some Do Not

Twelve years ago this date, a feature story appeared in the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine about a group of St. Raphael's Parish mothers who were preparing to present Natalie E. White's two-act comedy, "Seven Nuns at Las Vegas," under the direction of Ursula McCarthy.

Now another cast, some of them holdovers from 12 years ago, and with Mrs. McCarthy again directing, is preparing a sequel, "Seven Nuns South of the Border."

The play will open next Saturday night at 8 o'clock in St. Raphael's Auditorium, San Rafael, and will be repeated March 1, 6, 7 and 8.

AND IF MANY of the characters and some of the cast remain the same as for the 1958 play, the two productions also serve to reflect something of the changes that have occurred among Catholic sisters in America.

Mrs. McCarthy has, for instance, updated the habits of the nuns. Now the clothing is shorter and colorful in two-tone blue, and the headgear with its short veil almost whimsical.

The nuns in the new play will display more individuality in their characters, too.

THERE WAS, Mrs. McCarthy admits, a certain conformity in the 1958 production with an emphasis in the drilling upon modulation of voice and propriety of motion.

ARTIST CHARLES BROWN drew this depiction of what things can be like when seven lively nuns are on the go, as they will be in the comedy play, "Seven Nuns South of the Border." It's a sequel to a highly successful St. Raphael's Mothers Guild presentation of 12 years ago — and some of the participants in that event are again on hand.

The 1970 cast enjoys greater freedom on stage, each being allowed to flourish as an individual comic.

There have been other changes, too.

For instance, while Carl Zimmerman played Mr. Edelman 12 years ago and plays him again, the Mr. Edelman of 1958 was a nightclub owner who has now become Peace Corps head in Mexico.

A MORE DRASTIC change is that made by his wife, Jane Zimmerman, who was a Las Vegas chorus girl in the 1958 play, but who has graduated to the leading role of Mother Felicitas in the 1970 sequel.

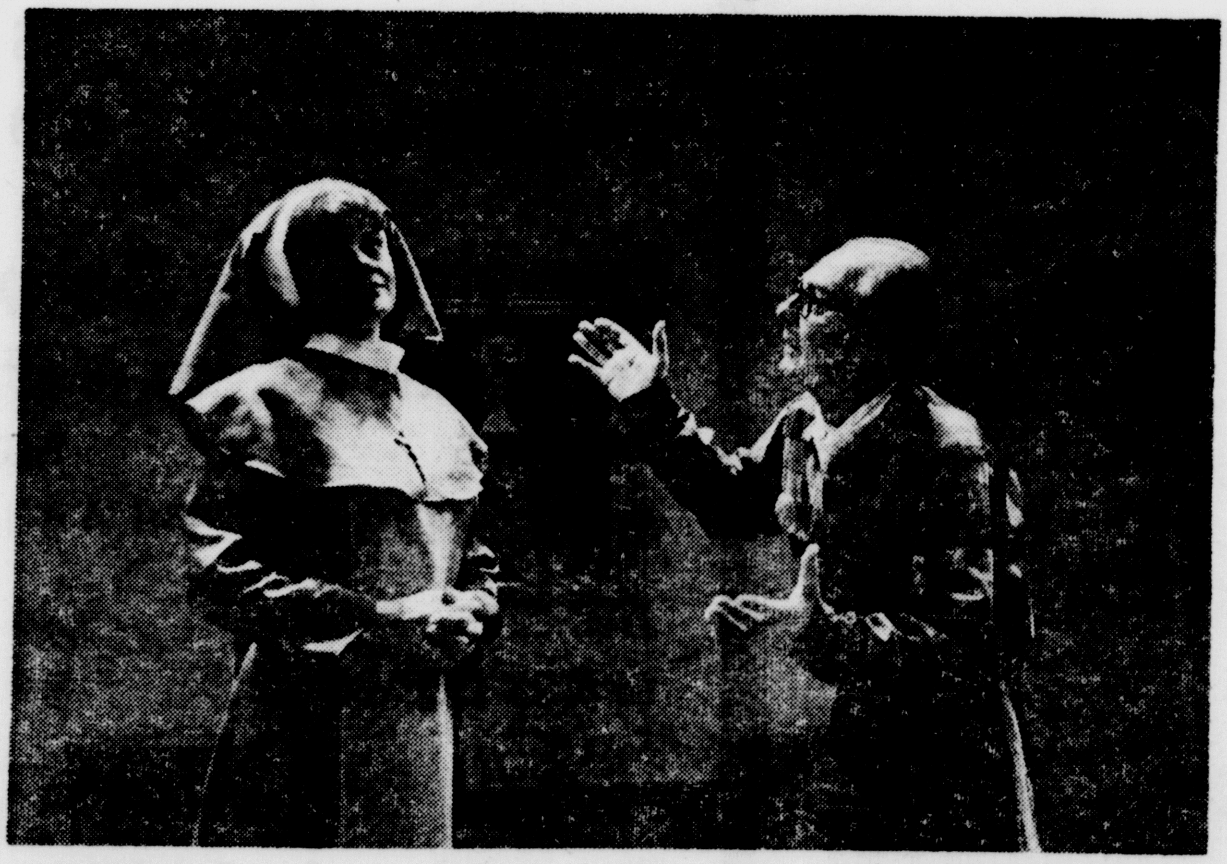
Twelve years ago Jean Leonardi Colombo played Sister Frances. This year her mother, Evelyn Lombardi, is in the cast as Mother General Veritas.

And Mary Boracchia, who was the Reverend Mother in the original cast, is now the play's producer.

ST. RAPHAEL'S changes may not be as dramatic or as drastic as that effected by the villagers of Oberammergau, Austria, in their famed passion play, and where the man who played Christ a decade ago is now portraying Judas, but Mrs. McCarthy thinks the differences are impressive.

What has not changed, and must not, says Mrs. McCarthy, is the approach that the nuns take to all individuals and affairs, meeting them with respect, kindness and gentility.

That gracious, kindly warmth, the director believes, is typical of and essential to the nun. That and a delightful sense of humor which she also finds in nuns in real life, and which she insists upon for her own nuns on stage.



TWELVE YEARS AGO in the St. Raphael's Mothers Guild production of "Seven Nuns at Las Vegas," Carl Zimmerman had the role of Mr. Edelman and was seen in the scene with Pat Bradley, as Sister Edna, at right. In the new sequel, "Seven Nuns South of the Border," to open next Saturday at St. Raphael's Auditorium, Zimmerman again plays Mr. Edelman, and appears above in a scene with his wife, Jane, who portrays Mother Felicitas. In sharp contrast, in the 1958 show Mrs. Zimmerman had the role of a chorus girl.

THE CHANGE THAT recent years has brought about in the clothing of Catholic nuns is illustrated dramatically in these two photographs. Above, director Ursula McCarthy, right, rehearsed in 1958 the women who were to play the roles of sisters in "Seven Nuns in Las Vegas." The thespians were, left to right, Bette Botzenhardt, Pat Bradley, Pat Dillon, Jean Leonardi, Marjorie Du Bain, Jo Anne Bales (hidden) and Bette Denman. Below, Mrs. McCarthy is now directing a new group of "nuns" for the sequel, "Seven Nuns South of the Border," to open next Saturday in St. Raphael's Auditorium, San Rafael. The actresses in habits this time, again left to right, are Clara Giovannoli (hidden), Yvonne Vattuone, Beverly Biglieri, Maggie Keating, Sheelagh Stacy, Dolores Rodriquez and Jane Zimmerman. The newer nuns seem to be a more vivacious group, as well.

THIS IS A CONCEPT by Independent-Journal staff artist Jack Lucey of the tragic scene of Feb. 22, 1901, when the S.S. City of Rio de Janeiro, after running aground in San Francisco Bay, slipped from the rocks and sank to the bottom, even as a lifeboat of survivors was pulling away. The captain and 129 crewmen and passengers went down with the ship in the Washington's Birthday disaster.

A Holiday Marred By Tragedy In The Bay

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on early Marin County history written for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine by William T. Ortman, who came to San Rafael to live as a boy at the turn of the century.)

By WILLIAM T. ORTMAN

On a George Washington's birthday 69 years ago, Feb. 22, 1901, I was hunting rabbits with a friend in the hills on the north side of the Golden Gate.

It was a foggy morning, and we could hear the steady wail of a ship's whistle. It was coming from a distance, but in the almost eerie silence of the place, it was easily audible. And its persistence caused us to speculate as to its cause.

Then, quite abruptly, the prolonged blast of the whistle ceased, and instead there was heard a bubbling, gurgling sound, it, too, quite distinct. And then a complete silence.

WE MADE OUR way to the Fort Baker shoreline and found the wharf there a scene of great excitement. I learned that a ship was in distress in the foggy waters offshore. Two lifeboats with crews had been launched, and had disappeared into the mists. There was little more that could be done, except for waiting.

For an hour, perhaps longer, I waited on the dock, held there by youthful curiosity. Men walked to and fro along the wharf to keep warm. But there was little in the way of conversation.

Then an orderly from the fort came down to the dock to report that headquarters had received a call from San Francisco notifying them that a ship's lifeboat carrying survivors had just landed at Meigg's Wharf in San Francisco.

IT WAS THEN that we learned that it was a Pacific Mail Steamship Co. passenger ship, the S.S. City of Rio de Janeiro, that had gone down.

Still we waited on the pier for the return of the two lifeboats that had departed from there. And finally, from the fog we heard voices. We waited expectantly, listening to the splash of water being made by oars. And then the dark hull of a lifeboat loomed out of the gray.

As the boat glided into the wharf, we could see in its bottom the unconscious form of a survivor of the tragedy, a life preserver still around him.

HE MOANED IN delirium as he was carried from the boat to the wharf.

He was, we learned, one of the stewards from the Rio de Janeiro. And in the fort infirmary he made a quick recovery. In a few hours he was himself again. And we began to learn something of what had preceded the disaster in the bay.

On the night of Feb. 21, Capt. William Ward, skipper of the Rio de Janeiro, had anchored his ship in the fog and 11 fathoms of water outside the Golden Gate, unsure of his exact location, but believing himself to be somewhere between the pilots' light ship and the Farallones.

While the captain stood on his bridge, peering into the mists, his passengers were dancing to music in the salon.

AND WHEN Captain Ward ordered a blast from the ship's ear-splitting whistle to see if it would bounce back from the unseen cliffs of the Farallones, it was hardly heard by the merry-makers. Ominously, there was no echo.

The puzzled captain ordered the ship's fires banked and announced his intention of standing by "until this pea-soup lifts."

Second Officer Graham Coughlan, the ship's navigator, appeared to report: "Sir, the chart, log and astronomical figures all check. At the moment we are right in front of the Gate."

IT WAS 7 P.M. when Third Officer J. C. Holland came onto the bridge. "Has the pilot, Captain Jordan, come on board yet?" the skipper asked. He was told that the pilot had not, and that it was most unlikely that he would do so, considering the weather.

"We're staying right here until we pick up a pilot or we can see something," the captain decided emphatically.

After instructing the helmsman to sound the whistle every third minute for 10 seconds, Captain Ward retired to the rear of the bridge and a reclining deck chair.

It was daylight when he awoke and now the pilot, Frank Jordan, was on the bridge, talking to Conghlan.

JORDAN REPORTED that though the Rio de Janeiro was still in dense fog, "the bay was clear when I came out this morning."

When the pilot prepared to get the ship under way and headed through the gate, Ward questioned such a move in the dense fog. But when the fog parted for a few seconds, the men on the bridge could see the bright sunshine beaming upon the hills of Marin County.

"That's Fort Barry," Jordan pointed.

Ward shrugged. "You're the pilot. It's up to you. The ship is all yours." But he remained on the bridge with Jordan, eating his breakfast there.

BUT AS THE ship moved forward, it did not escape the fog as the pilot had anticipated. And when finally there was a brief separation, it disclosed a view of the Cliff House and Seal Rocks that shocked Jordan with the realization that the ship was much too far south and too close to shore.

He ordered a change in course, and increased the degree to the north when he noted how much the wind and current were dragging the vessel to the south.

Only a few minutes later, still in a thick fog, Frank Jordan came to the realization that all was lost. "Better stop the ship," he was advised by Captain Ward.

But there was no time for that. In the next instant there came a sudden, intense shock that sent the men on the bridge sprawling to the deck. The bow of the Rio pointed skyward as the ship climbed the reef of Blossom's Rock. And the steel plates on the bottom gave way inwardly with a rasping screech of ripping steel.

CHINESE DECK hands hosing down the main deck were knocked to the plank flooring.

Then the Rio's forward motion stopped, and the vessel began to settle back with the stern deep in the water. The deck listed crazily to port.

There was confusion on the deck with frightened passengers and Chinese crewmen running about. And when Captain Ward ordered that the lifeboats be prepared for launching, there was no response.

DESPERATELY, the skipper made his way to the helm, pulled down the whistle cord and fastened it to the wheel, so that its blast was continuous. The he hurried below.

"Women and children only," he ordered, and herded them toward the number one lifeboat.

Though heavily loaded with women and children, it was launched with the ship's physician in charge. It washed low in the ocean and shipped considerable water, but nevertheless remained afloat and moved clear of the Rio.

The second lifeboat was less fortunate. Filled, too, with women and children, it was only halfway to the water when its lowering tackle fouled. When crewmen released the rope, the front of the lifeboat fell into the water and women and children were thrown into the bay.

PILOT JORDAN heroically helped a young woman and her child into lifejackets and was aiding them down a Jacob's ladder that had been lowered over the ship's side. A roll of the vessel threw all three violently into the water.

Although Jordan looked for the woman and child, he found neither. And injured, he swam to some floating wreckage from where he was eventually rescued by a passing lifeboat.

Captain Ward, a hero, too, launched the third lifeboat alone by snubbing the tackle ropes on the ship's railing. The fog was so thick he could not see the boat as it came to rest in the water. But he shouted down: "Release the boat from the hooks. And get away from the ship."

AND AS THE lifeboat did so, the Rio started toward the bottom, sliding from the rocks and down into 30 fathoms of water. There was a tremendous gurgle—a death rattle—as the whistle went under the sea water.

And with his ship went the brave captain.

Drowned also were 129 passengers and crew members.

This was the story that we began to piece together that Washington's Birthday as we stood there on the Marin shoreline, one survivor safe among us and others on the far shore. More details were to come out later as newspaper men interviewed Frank Jordan and other survivors. And as a court of inquiry produced voluminous records that filled in the remaining gaps.

Dancing From The Street And The Soul

Once a week two young black men have been coming from San Francisco's Dancers' Workshop to teach dancing to all-white Marin Dance Cooperative classes of teen-agers at the Newman Center, College of Marin.

It is a kind of dancing that is far removed from the ballet lessons with which most white kids have been involved.

Lawrence (Sir) Washington Jr., one of the three instructors, describes it as "soul street dancing."

And the white pupils revel in it, Washington adds.

Working with Washington is Robert (Bo) Conley.

A THIRD BLACK teacher from the San Francisco workshop, Clint Shelby, sometimes accompanies Washington and Conley.

And with Melinda West, white, of San Francisco, a Marin Dance Cooperative product, Shelby makes up another teaching team that conducts classes for children at the Tiburon Peninsula Club under the auspices of the Mothers Club of St. Stephen's School.

When not teaching in Marin, all four work with Ann Halprin at her Dancers' Workshop at 321 Divisadero Street, San Francisco.

IT WAS THEIR association there with Mrs. Halprin, first as her students and then as her co-teachers, that eventually led the quartet to Marin.

Mrs. Halprin has been the leading light of the Marin Dance Cooperative since its inception. Until the just completed semester, she has always taught at least one of its classes. This winter she turned the teaching duties over to her young Dancers' Workshop proteges, and to other Marin Dance Cooperative faculty members.

Washington and Conley have been coming to Kentfield now for four months to instruct Marin teen-agers.

WHILE THEIR surroundings and facilities at Newman Center are less spacious and less elaborate than what they are accustomed to at Dancers' Workshop, the teachers nevertheless find a large measure of compensation in the great enthusiasm of their charges.

Bo Conley, who teaches congo drumming as well as dancing, comes from North Carolina and was a football star at Utah University.

Clint Shelby hails from Los Angeles and studied the dance at Studio Watts, a group with which Mrs. Halprin has worked. He was a lighting projectionist with the West Coast Pop Art Band and with the Electric Circus.

At RIGHT, caught up in the spirit of the dance and chanting as he performs the steps and swings his arms in rhythm is Robert Conley. Behind him a young student follows his lead to perform the dance herself. It is the vigor and freedom of the black dances that appeal to today's young people, the instructors say.

Different Kind Of Dancing

born in San Francisco and studied art and dance at Merritt College.

Of his titled nickname "Sir" he says: "I guess I got it from my father."

And why was his father called "Sir"?

"I guess because he was a gangster," he answers with a straight face.

GANGSTER'S SON or not, articulate young Washington believes there would be fewer law violators and less violence if more energy were directed toward such creative activities as the dance.

"It is the best possible form of self-expression," he argues. "That's why I would like to take our program to all the college campuses. It's an outlet, at a time when outlets are badly needed by young people."

Washington tells how, before each dance instruction session, he gives his teen-age students a pep talk "just like a football coach."

And often, he says, he winds up asking them: "And now, just what kind of dancing would you like to do today?"

AND ALMOST invariably, he adds, the preference is for dances that stress the faster and more vigorous movements.

Black street dancing, he adds, is rich in these, in contrast to the slower, more ritualistic dancing that grew up among the country blacks.

Washington and Conley are pleased with the reception which Marin's young whites have given to these dances that have been developed by the urban blacks.

BUT THEY would like to see a better ethnic distribution among their class members.

"We would like to have some black students, and some members from other minority groups," Washington says.

For a time, one young black girl did attend. But she dropped out.

The young instructors share an admiration for Mrs. Halprin and her dancing. They endorse the picture caption in the Drama Review that began: "Mother Ann, blue-eyed soul mama, number one. . . ."

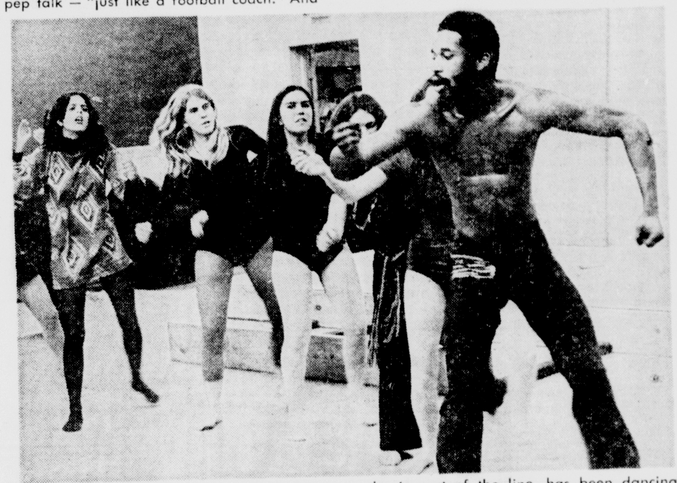
"AND SHE IS getting more soul into her work this year than ever," Washington says.

A new semester began earlier this month at Marin Dance Cooperative, and the instruction day at Newman Center for Washington and Conley was shifted from Friday to Tuesday. Other teachers conduct classes on other days.

The Marin Dance Cooperative is a non-profit organization that has been operating in the county now for 22 years. Board members are mothers of students or women particularly interested in modern dance.

Washington says he and his colleagues have found in these suburban women firm supporters of their theory that one of the best ways to eliminate racial and ethnic problems is to introduce one group to another group's culture.

BEFORE A CLASS SESSION begins, instructor Lawrence (Sir) Washington is likely to gather his young charges around him to deliver a pep talk — "just like a football coach." And the teen-agers are often given a voice then as to just what dances they will practice that afternoon.



INSTRUCTOR CLINT SHELBY heads up a congo line while he points out the intricacies of a specific step. Co-teacher Melinda West, who is part of the line, has been dancing with Marin Dance Cooperative since age 4.

Why Not A Farm Holiday In Denmark?

Perfect Way To Get To Know The Danes

"This is the first time I've really had a holiday with the kids along - we hardly saw them except at mealtimes," said a visiting housewife after she and her family had spent their vacation on a farm in Denmark.

It all began when the head of one of the local tourist associations in Jutland arranged for a few families to spend their summer vacations on a Danish farm. That was in 1966.

The following year 1,000 guests from abroad had the same pleasant experience, and a conservative estimate is that 17 local tourist associations can now offer vacation accommodations on about 300 farms all over the country, with an estimated capacity of 1,300 beds. And the project is developing fast.

ALONG WITH THIS growth have gone efforts to establish uniform prices, hygienic standards, etc.

That the farm must boast a bathroom would seem to be obvious in this modern world — and it is much more interesting to learn that another firm condition is that the farm must be a going concern, actually engaged in agricultural activities in one form or another. No dude ranches are allowed in this scheme. No half-timbered walls unless they are genuine. Real live pigs, poultry and people are the rule.

Another and equally important standard requirement is that at least one member of the farm household must have a working knowledge of the language of his guests. This is not only for obvious practical reasons, but also because the basic idea is as much that of the "bringing together" of people as merely another way of providing accommodation for more tourists.

FARMS ARE FAVORITE vacationing places for families visiting Denmark. And the farms must be the genuine thing, with livestock, crops and lots of good, fresh air. It's a perfect way for American tourists to get to truly know the Danes.

ALSO IN KEEPING with this basic idea is the rule that no farm must take in more than eight guests at any one period. It is felt that the desired personal contact between hosts and guests cannot develop satisfactorily if more guests are taken in than a number representing one or two normal families.

Rules and regulations apart, however, the keynote is informality in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere.

The project is interesting to watch for several reasons. First of all, it demonstrates the constructive results of ready cooperation between alert and active local tourist associations, and the centralized official tourist offices, having at their disposal adequate staff, a whole network of branches in foreign countries and government contacts, as well as facilities for communication and distribution of information.

SECONDLY, THE project shows the practical possibilities of establishing cultural interchange and personal communication between visitor and host country, so often clamored for by those who, even today, look askance at international mass tourism.

True enough, we still see tourist groups being herded for full speed from one attraction to the other; but—and this is the third and most vital point of the fast-growing vacation-on-a-farm-scheme — we also see a new trend, away from hectic sightseeing and towards a more relaxed attitude.

The 11-countries-in-21-days type of tourism may not yet be a thing of the past, but the 21-days-in-one-country type of tourism is definitely a thing of the future.

It is a fact that, far from being tired of traveling, people are more ready than ever to spend their holidays abroad, provided they can find reasonable comfort at a reasonable price, combined with opportunities for recreation. Such people will love a vacation on a Danish farm.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Some more new albums from Mercury and Philips:

BIG MAMA THORNTON—"STRONGER THAN DIRT"—Mercury SR 61225:

Like other figures of the "blues roots," Willie Mae Thornton is riding a tide of increasing public acclaim. Now that the new generation has discovered her authentic music, she can stop scrubbing floors (as she did during the lean years) and concentrate on belting out tunes like "Born Under a Bad Sign," "Funky Broadway," "I Shall be Released," and "Ball and Chain." It was Big Mama's version of the latter tune that Janis Joplin emulates in her hit performance.

This is the real thing—don't miss it.

"THE FOOL" — Mercury SR 61178:

A versatile little quartet: two gals and two fellows, with a rich instrumental backing, produced by Graham Nash of the Moody Blues, and some exquisite tune originals.

I really liked "Inside Your Mind," and the bagpiping of one of the group, Seemon. It's sort of like a meeting of Donovan (in his fairytale mood) and the symphonic Moody Blues.

Very nice artwork on the double sleeve.

THE SWINGLE SINGERS — "BACK TO BACH" — Philips PHS 600-288:

For those occasions when one tires of Bach on the Moog, electric guitar, jazz piano, or Japanese instruments and yet doesn't feel serious enough for the original article, there are still The Swingle Singers, who are at their old game for their ninth year now. The French vocalists vocalize their way through popular themes from the Well-Tempered Clavier, the Fugue in G for Organ, and the Chorale from Cantata No. 147.

"THE BEST OF NINA SIMONE" — Philips PHS 600-298:

Miss Simone is a completely individual performer who has little competition in her field. Her stage presence is fantastic, and no singer could demonstrate deeper or more honest involvement in her songs — especially those she has made her own, such as "See-Ling Woman," or "Mississippi Goddam."

This LP is a wonderful selection of songs with special meaning to Nina and her fans and will hopefully serve as a way of introducing her proud music to many new listeners.

The special will be seen next Saturday at 11 a.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Arizona Beckons March Visitors

Wide Variety Of Activities

There is a protean quality to the southern desert country of Arizona that gives vacations here a special flair.

Few of the nation's winter, early-spring sun-break destinations offer so much variety, so many vivid contrasts, in such a compact area.

ON A SINGLE day's outing, the visitor might:

Laze under palms or walk among pines,

Go sun-tanning, swimming, surfing or even snow skiing.

Look down at Grand Canyon or up at great mountains.

See spiny cactus or gentle, colorful flower gardens.

Watch Indian ceremonials or the shows at smart nightspots.

Drive through thriving cities or lonely ghost towns.

Roam cattle ranches or savor the delights of Old Mexico.

American Airlines, whose Astrojets serve Phoenix with frequent daily flights, points out that a typical jaunt might be from palms to pines and water sports to skiing — and back — on one vacation day.

FOR THE MAN or woman — or better yet, the entire family — seeking refuge here from drearier February and March regions, the day could start with a "wake-up" swim in the heated pool (quite likely landscaped with tall palms) of resort, hotel or motel.

Then it's less than a three-hour drive north to Flagstaff and the Arizona Snow Bowl on the 12,000-foot high San Francisco Peaks. A couple of hours skiing can be followed by a picnic lunch—a hearty one from a big basket after the morning's exercise — under the pines.

The afternoon provides a choice — exploring the volcanic areas around Sunset Crater or the ancient Indian cliff dwellings at Walnut Canyon, both national monuments. Or the visitor might prefer a look at beautiful red-rock Oak Creek Canyon, the prehistoric Indian ruins at Tuzigoot or Montezuma Castle National Monuments or the ghost town of Jerome.

All are between Flagstaff and Phoenix.

THERE WILL BE time for another dip in the pool at Phoenix before dinner. And if the sun, the water, the snow and the sightseeing haven't caused an irresistible need for sleep, you can top off the evening at a nightspot.

This year, snow skiing can be combined with surfing — although the two together might prove too strenuous a day for most folks. At Big Surf in Tempe, there are man-created waves like those off Waikiki.

On the way to Tempe there is the Desert Botanical Garden, where paved paths lead past thousands of varieties of odd cacti, succulents, scrubs and trees — all identified — typical of Southwestern desert country. Big Surf is only a few minutes driving time from the garden.

Or there are fishing and boating less than an hour's drive east on the dam-formed lakes along the scenic Apache Trail.

THE APACHE TRAIL (State Highway 88) is another illustration of diversity.

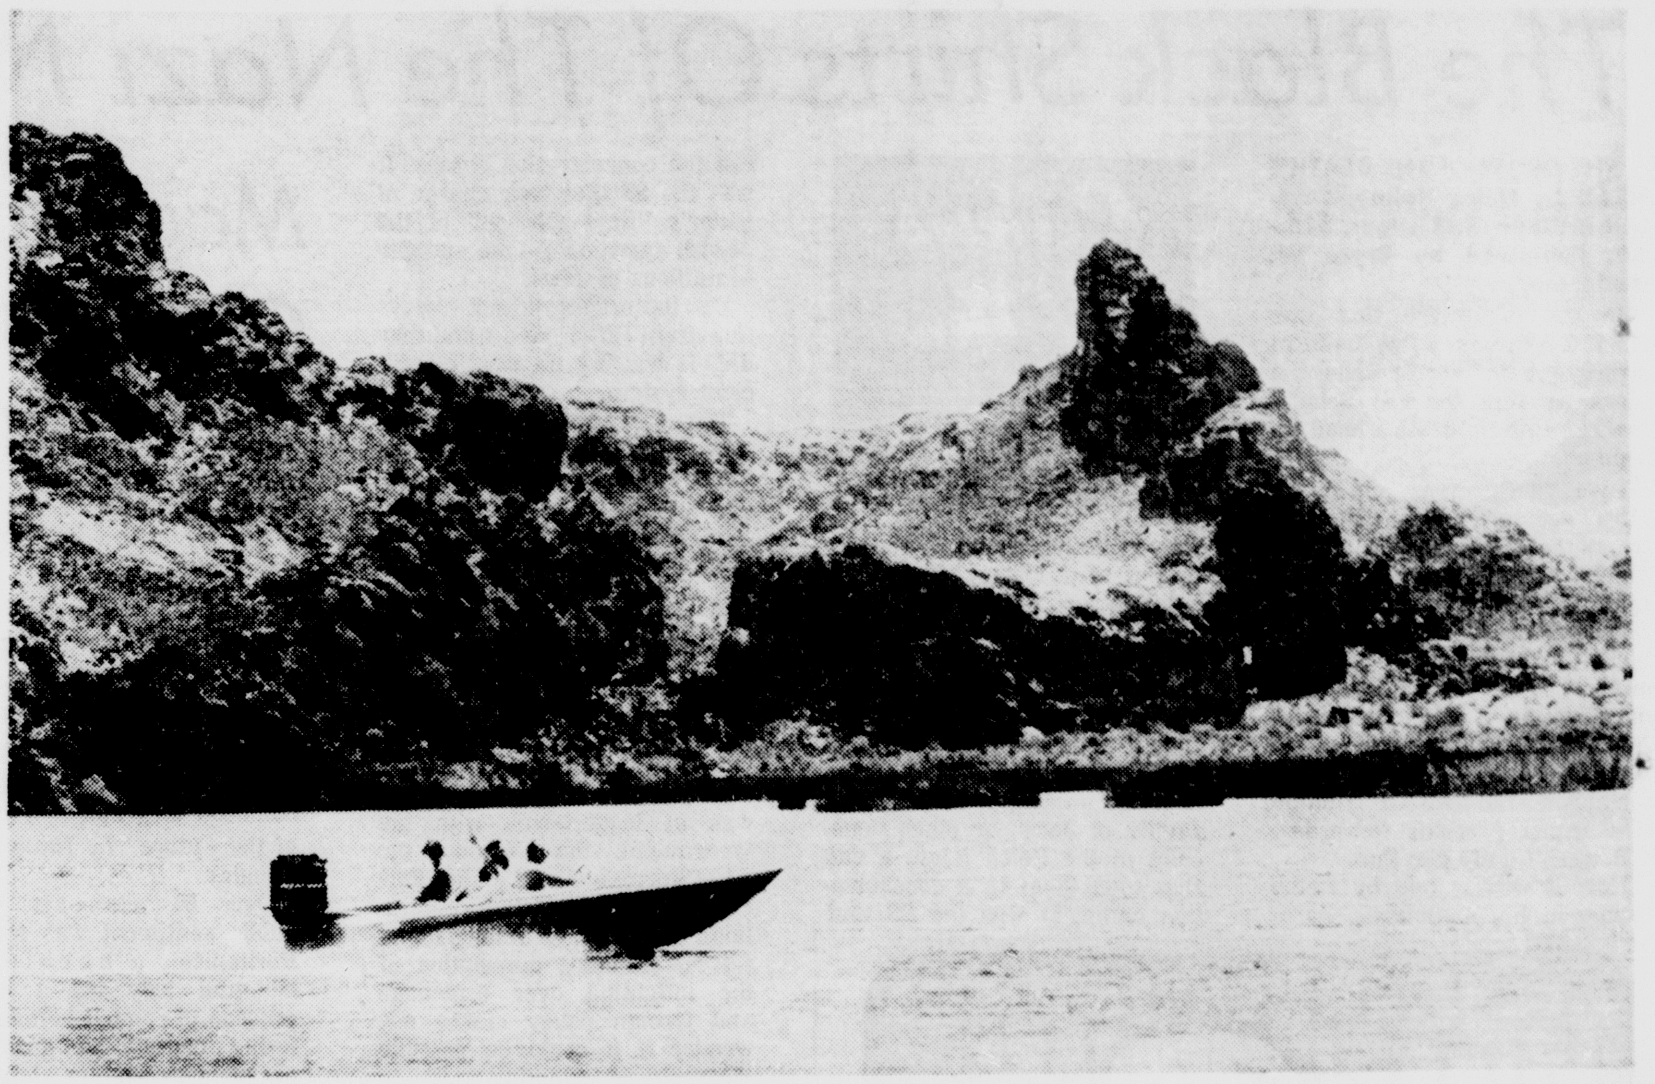
The 200-mile loop, a one-day outing from Phoenix and back, reveals natural desert gardens, the supposed location of the Lost Dutchman Mine at Superstition Mountain, former gold locales where some ore still is being mined, a trio of recreational lakes noted for their boating and bass fishing, rock-hunting sites, cliff dwellings at Tonto National Monument, extraordinary panoramas and dramatic scenery, copper mines, odd rock formations and lush irrigated citrus and date groves.

Another popular northward trip, best enjoyed on a two or three day motor drive, is Grand Canyon, about five hours by road from Phoenix. Once again, several highway loops are possible, all with different lures.

At the pine-rimmed canyon visitors can ride mules into the depths. Fairly short extensions from Grand Canyon lead to painted deserts and eroded badlands, to the Navajo Reservations with its hogans and sheep herds, and to the mesa-top villages of Hopi-land where ancient ceremonials still are danced and unusual handicrafts from dolls to silver jewelry can be bought.

SHOPPING ALSO IS a lure of Old Mexico — about a three-hour drive south of Phoenix to the border town of Nogales. Along the way, visits can be made to movie sets like Old Tucson or to nearby Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum (where you can walk through an underground tunnel and watch animals living like they normally do). Spanish and Indian lore are vivid, too, in old missions like lovely San Xavier del Bac, often called the "White Dove of the Desert" or at the imposing ruins in Tumacacori National Monument.

All the gay color — even bullfights — of Mexico, its friendly people and bargain goods are just across the border where crossing formalities are minimal. And a step away, so to speak, the hills hide numerous ghosts of frontier mining camps.



ONE OF ARIZONA'S most popular and unspoiled playgrounds, easily accessible to Californians, is Lake Havasu and its Lake Havasu City, not only the new home of the London Bridge, but also a year-round resort community. Los Angeles industrialist and sportsman Robert V. McCulloch founded Lake Havasu City just six years ago. It has become the favorite starting point for trips through the Topock Gorge of the Lower Colorado River, described as "the most scenic and spectacular region between the Grand Canyon and Mexico." Entrance to the 20-mile-long corridor is just 10 miles north of Lake Havasu City, a point that aslo marks the southern boundary of the Lake Havasu National Wildlife Refuge where some of this country's rarest waterfowl can be found. An interesting stopping point in a trip through the gorge is Picture Rock with its hundreds of Indian petroglyphs on dark stone walls that reach down into the lake waters. Another is Devil's Elbow, the lake's narrowest point with a startling contrast between sun-baked cliffs and cold deep water.

The Black Shirts Of The Nazi Nightmare

THE ORDER OF THE DEATH'S HEAD by Heinz Hohne; Coward-McCann, 583 pages, $12.-50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In the nightmare that was Nazi Germany, no uniform struck greater terror than the black shirt of the SS (Schutzstaffel) with its death's head insignia.

By most Germans, and by almost everyone in other countries, the SS was seen as the "elite" force of a monolithic totalitarian state, in which power flowed from the fuehrer to the Sicherheitzpolizei by a perfectly ordered system in which no one questioned and no one hesitated. Adolf Hitler's Nazi regime was seen as the very model of totalitarianism, the twisted triumph of German passions for order.

It wasn't quite like that.

How it was is told by Heinz Hohne in his meticulous, carefully researched and thoroughly documented history of the SS, "The Order of the Death's Head," which has been translated from the German by Richard Barry, an Englishman.

Reviews Of New Reading

The SS was no less terrible than it appeared to the world. It was the SS that knocked on the door at midnight to hustle a family of Jews, or other "enemies of the Reich," into a van that took them to a concentration camp. It was the SS that ran the concentration camps. It was the SS that took charge of Hitler's "final solution" of the Jewish question — the murder of millions of Jews.

But the orders did not always flow from Hitler. And when they did, it was by no simple, efficient system.

The party-government structure of Nazi Germany was made up of an overlapping hodgepodge of jurisdictions, each fighting always to expand its own power. That the SS came at last to be the most feared of all was because its head, Heinrich Himmler, connived more cleverly and retained his close ties to Hitler longer than most of the others in the reichsfuehrer's inner circle.

At one time or another, the SS was at loggerheads with the Wehrmacht, the Gestapo, the SA (Sturmabteilung), the Foreign Ministry. And SS organizations even warred among themselves. (Hohne's description of the infighting over espionage and foreign policy makes one wonder if it could be possible that similar infighting exists in our own country among the CIA, the Foreign Service, and the intelligence arms of Army, Navy and Air Force.) Some of the cruelest and most insane Nazi policies were born in this struggle for power within the government itself.

The story of the SS is a sordid but fascinating one. And it ends on a chilling note. Hohne writes:

"In one of these prison-camp discussions (after the fall of the Third Reich), the former SS-Untersturmfuehrer Erich Kernmayr shouted: 'When our troops marched into Czechoslavakia after Munich did we say "no" in our heart of hearts? Did we then say "no" even to ourselves? No, a thousand times no! We were intoxicated by a vision of world power. It gripped the people like a great frenzy. The frenzy of power.' "

"This march of the devotees of power knew no limits and disregarded all norms; its effects were all the more disastrous in that these youthful standard-bearers of this supposedly new Germany were not simply under the spell of the dictator's magic; they were also swayed by that old German belief that Government can do no wrong and if it does, then, by differentiating between his private life and his official duty, a citizen can emerge unsullied from any task laid upon by the state."

An "old German belief" — but only German?

Magnificent Career Of A Revolutionary

PIONEER OF THE FUTURE: MARGARET SANGER by Emily Taft Douglas; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 262 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Suzanne D. Stamler.

MARGARET SANGER
A lonely crusade

In the era of revolution and controversy surrounding the pill, population, pollution and civil liberties, Margaret Sanger re-emerges in a well-balanced biography, "Pioneer of the Future" by Emily Taft Douglas.

Over 60 years ago when public sentiment was strictly Puritanical, a heroic and beautiful lady led a lonely crusade to combat human suffering caused by unwanted pregnancies and to stem the tide of runaway populations.

Today Margaret Sanger takes her place in history as one of the truly great revolutionaries who had the vision and daring to pursue the cause of birth control until it became generally accepted and sometimes practiced.

With a dedication akin to Jeanne D'Arc, Margaret Sanger fought against a hostile world, unleashing an avalanche of social reaction that led to public rebuke and personal anguish.

Undaunted by eight jail sentences, intellectual limitations, domestic crises, divorce and ill health, she established birth control clinics throughout the world, spurred the medical profession to endorse contraception, urged foreign countries to alter their population patterns and won new interpretations of existing laws.

"But the test of her work," the author writes, "was not measured in abstractions, but in the reduction of human tragedies. Today birth control not only saves the lives of countless mothers, but enhances the health and happiness of many times that number."

Yet her dedication did not deny her feminine charms and admirers. Margaret Sanger was a woman whose fragile beauty, impish gaiety and adventurous spirit drew her into life-time liaisons with some of the most daring thinkers of her day, such as Havelock Ellis and H. G. Wells.

"H. G. Wells thought Margaret was the greatest woman in the world." But others thought she was reckless and immoral. Domestic duties were often forsaken for her global cause. It was her mother's early death at child birth that instilled a deep rejection of her domestic role and a need to right the wrong her mother suffered.

Commitment to her cause to save lives by controlling births was further realized when as a young nurse she saw death, disease and suffering as the midwives of illegal abortions, infant starvation and too frequent pregnancies.

The book is a well-documented profile of a woman whose fascinating personality and single-minded purpose are richly interwoven into a single piece.

The author, a former congresswoman-at-large, and the wife of former Sen. Paul Douglas, is a polished professional at handling factual material with fluency and fluidity.

Interspersed with the text are somewhat faded photographs that further document incidents that were milestones in a magnificent career.

A Not-So-Funny Douglas

SHUT UP AND EAT YOUR SNOWSHOES! by Jack Douglas, Putnam's, 251 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

If you watch the nightly talk shows — namely Merv Griffin — you've no doubt heard it first hand — the escape to the Canadian backwoods by comedy writer Jack Douglas, his wife, Reiko, son, Bobby, and assorted large animal types.

Now its all down in print thanks (?) to G. P. Putnam's Sons.

Briefly it's the escape of the Douglas household from suburbia USA to the bushland of Northern Canada. From the jumping off spot — Blue Lake — it's 116 miles from the nearest parcel of civilization. But really not too far for the Douglases to escape to New York to keep Merv company.

While there is nothing wrong with Douglas' style of writing, I tended to say "so what?" after a couple of chapters. I can't feel too sorry for them. When the elements get too rough they can always flee to the comfortable, uptight elements of civilization, New Milford, Conn., where they maintain other digs.

Personally I would rather hear Douglas tell his many funny crisis stories on a television show than read about them.

BY DON KEOWN

THE FIRST HURRAH by Richard O'Connor; Putnam's, 318 pages, $6.95.

Did ugly religious prejudice cause Americans in 1928 to reject the better qualified presidential candidate, and thus bring disaster upon themselves?

It is one of the many myths of American history that Alfred E. Smith, the "Happy Warrior" from the sidewalks of New York, was defeated by Herbert Clark Hoover solely because of his Roman Catholic faith. And that, if this had not occurred, Smith might have enabled us to avoid, not only the depression, but also the ominous war clouds that began darkening in the early 1930s.

A reading of Richard O'Connor's new biography of Smith, "The First Hurrah," exposes the fallacy of these beliefs.

Voters that Nov. 6, 1928, had more reason than Smith's religion to mark their ballots in Hoover's favor.

Certainly Smith was the more personable of the two. But this was before television accentuated charismatic qualities. And the truth was that Smith took into the campaign almost nothing in the way of experience beyond the state governmental level. He had a minimum acquaintanceship with national and international affairs, although, admittedly, this last was far less important then than it became in later campaigns.

In 1928, too, Smith stood as the symbol of the urban way of life — "the most powerful conservative in urban America," Walter Lippmann had called him — , and while the scales were tipping, they were still weighted in favor of rural America, a sector particularly suspicious of the New Yorker's well-publicized Tammany affiliations.

Even with these differences, Smith failed to present a really striking contrast to Hoover in his political, social and economic views. Smith, one-time crusader, had become as much the pal of the big business men as any Republican, and his ideas no longer worried them.

There was, too, widespread resistance to Smith's anti-Prohibition stance.

And finally, Hoover began the campaign with a built-in advantage as a Republican. The Grand Old Party was then the majority party, entrenched in office throughout the 1920s and riding the crest of national prosperity. There was little warning of the crisis ahead and nothing to induce the voters to make a change.

All these factors O'Connor brings out. He pays less attention to the fact that the votes lost to Smith because of his Catholicism among the bigoted and fearful were to a considerable measure offset by Roman Catholic block voting — by his co-religionists who voted for Smith simply because he was a Catholic.

Nor does O'Connor's book substantiate the claim of some that Smith would have guided the nation around the pitfalls that spelled depression.

True, the cocky little man in the derby hat had begun his political career as a progressive humanitarian in the field of social legislation, although always a fiscal conservative. Gradually he had become more and more the conservative, less and less the liberal, until by the late 1920s there was little reason to have expected him as President to have acted differently or more effectively than did the inept Hoover when the economy began to skid.

Indeed, yet later, he became the embittered and jealous critic of the man who did possess the vision and the daring to act, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. And almost always it was destructive criticism, devoid of constructive alternatives.

Smith admirer though he is (and Roosevelt is never given the best of it, or even an even break in O'Connor's reconstruction of that historic feud), the author nevertheless admits that his hero would not have been able to ward off either the depression or World War II, to say nothing of solving the class and race problems that were already festering beneath the more apparent wounds.

O'Connor's presentation of the Al Smith story is somewhat disappointing, considering his past record as a biographer. The pace is sometimes almost a plod, and consequently Smith emerges a less colorful, interesting and impressive figure than he must have been.

If O'Connor's earlier narration is not up to the stature of his subject, he attempts to recompense for this in his summary. While bewailing the tragedy of Smith's final, wasted, embittered years, he sees him, nevertheless, as the first great architect of the urban coalition that was to lift the Democrats from minority to majority party status, and pave the way for Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson.

Indeed, Smith did lay some of the foundation. But Roosevelt built the structure. And it was within his work that the people sought shelter from the storms of the depression.

As O'Connor himself says in closing his book: ". . . it is the legend that survives."

And if the legend of Al Smith has somehow become greater than the man, and if O'Connor is himself sometimes susceptible to those myths, it is all in keeping with an American tradition that we rarely remember or retell the past exactly as it happened.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE LAUGHING POLICEMAN by Maj Sjowall and Per Wahloo; Pantheon, 211 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The Swedish husband-and-wife team of Maj. Sjowall and Per Wahloo seem to be getting better and better in their writing of crime novels.

Certainly this one is a splendid example of the police procedural story.

Stockholm is shocked by a mass murder, a far rarer occurence in Scandinavia than it is in America. Eight passengers on board a city bus have been riddled by submachine gun fire. One was a detective. Another is unidentified. The others represent a wide range of occupations and ages.

For Martin Beck and his fellow detectives, the investigation proves to be a long, hard, often exasperating and frustrating one. But eventually they reach the truth.

Their search for the perpetrator of the horrifying and puzzling crime is a quest that commands the reader's attention all the way, peopled as it is by some very real characters who act and react just as one might expect human beings to behave under such circumstances. Even the mass murderer, when finally unmasked, is believable, if terrible.

WHAT WINTER MEANS TO ME

Winter is the pouring rain
Splashing on my window pane;
Running in the rain with glee—
That's what winter means to me.

Winter is the Christmas tree,
Candy canes and shopping spree,
Christmas carols, mistletoe—
That's what winter means, you know.

Winter comes, and winter goes;
Spring soon comes to melt the snows.

How Much Color Will You Have This Spring?

Garden Page

Will your garden really come alive with color this spring?

Are you sure?

If, after giving the question some second thoughts, you are uncertain, it is still not too late to take some effective corrective steps.

There are a number of plants and shrubs in the nurseries that are blooming, or almost ready to burst into bloom, and all you need to do is to plant them in the spots where you are confronted by a color shortage. No one else will know that you didn't set them out months ago.

IT IS, OF course, too late to plant spring-blooming bulbs (summer-blooming bulbs are another matter). But at some nurseries you might find container-grown daffodils, tulips and hyacinths whose flowers can be enjoyed indoors, or planted in the garden for "instant color."

Azaleas have been blooming for some time, and are still doing so. By selecting different varieties, you can have color from these dependable performers half the year, into the late spring.

The same holds true for camellias. And the color choices among the camellias and azaleas are delightful. Both make excellent landscape specimens.

DAPHNE, WHICH has been dispensing its fragrance in some gardens for weeks, can still be found in bloom, willing to share its lovely scent for yet more weeks.

Look, too, for the deciduous shrubs that have already broken their winter's rest or soon will be doing so, with a dazzling display of color. The star magnolia (Magnolia stellata) is one of these, and can be found cloaked in white flowers whose beauty will be the talk of your neighborhood.

Annuals such as pansies, violas and Iceland poppies are quick to flower and true reminders of the spring season.

SOME NURSERIES will have large-sized calendulas (bright oranges, golds, yellows) and fairy primroses (pinks, white, lavenders) already in bloom. These will continue to show color until late spring.

There are other trees, shrubs and smaller blooming items that Marinites have learned to rely upon for their spring garden color. The nursery is the place to find them. And you still have ample time to make sure that your garden does, indeed, reflect the gaiety and freshness that is spring.

IF YOU ARE confronted by a lack of early spring color in your garden, there are a number of trees and shrubs available that will provide the necessary transfusion. But don't overlook the smaller annuals, such as the pansies pictured here, as a source of quick color. They bloom quickly and provide lots of spring color. Pansies can be used in beds by themselves for a mass effect, in border plantings, or tucked in a few plants here and there for a cheery garden note. Greet Your Guests With Evergreens

The place to greet your guests is outside the front door, not in person, but in the plant life you have stationed there.

An entryway planting gives that all-important first impression. This is one place where neatness counts and you want a planting that puts up a good front. In such an area, therefore, evergreen plants are needed, and there are many desirable evergreen shrubs to fill-the-bill.

First, the trim yew pine (Podocarpus) is a landscaper's favorite. In a tub or in the ground, this upright grower has eye-appeal. It's neither a yew nor a pine, but its fine texture and rich green color is a distinctive addition to the entryway.

IT'S EASY TO get overly enthusiastic over camellias, but this versatile shrub meets this challenge admirably, especially in filtered shade. The glossy evergreen foliage is reason enough to plant them—the long blooming season with profusions of lovely blossoms is a colorful bonus.

For a clipped look, try boxwood at either side of the entrance—in tubs or in the ground. The neat applish-green foliage is handsome. You can prune these into pyramids or globe-shapes.

Darker green are myrtus and wax-leaf privet. The latter has larger foliage and is usually available in nurseries already trained in interesting shapes—like tree forms and topiaries.

IF THE ENTRANCE is along a walk that parallels the house, espaliered plants will create a pleasing "reception area." Pyracantha, loquats, magnolias and evergreen pears lend themselves to espaliering against a wall.

Where shade predominates, gold dust plant (Aucuba) is a stunning sight. The popular all-green aucuba is also a favorite in such areas.

The list doesn't end here. These and other shrubs will all welcome your guests in the manner you wish.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔All bareroot roses, fruit and nut trees should be planted this month, while they are still available.

✔It's a good time for planting groundcovers, too. Consider the new ground-hugging junipers for a beautiful show in difficult garden spots.

✔Bloom-time is a good time for moving camellias or azaleas if they must be moved. Use a nurseryman's mix in transplanting them to assure sturdy development of new roots.

✔Snails? Use bait or pellets at strategic points in the garden to control them.

✔If you have not already done so, better take care of pruning those hydrangeas.

✔Feed established roses between now and mid-March. Do not feed newly-planted ones until they are established.

✔Summer-blooming bulbs should go into the ground now.

WHAT WINTER MEANS TO ME

Winter is the pouring rain
Splashing on my window pane;
Running in the rain with glee—
That's what winter means to me.

Winter is the Christmas tree,
Candy canes and shopping spree,
Christmas carols, mistletoe—
That's what winter means, you know.

Winter comes, and winter goes;
Spring soon comes to melt the snows.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST by Oscar Wilde — Two young men throw off the shackles of Victorian prudery, escaping to a romantic rendezvous where girls don't equate love with marriage.

LITTLE MALCOLM AND HIS STRUGGLE AGAINST THE EUNUCHS by David Halliwell — Bay Area premiere of a timely drama of youth in revolt. A suspenseful comedy, pertinent and provocative.

THE BLOOD KNOT by Athol Fugard — Half-brothers, one poor and black skinned, the other worldly and light enough to pass for white, are reunited after years apart.

THE TEMPEST by William Shakespeare — An eerie procession of goddesses, clowns, magicians, sprites and spirits weaves mythically and magically through "Such stuff as dreams are made of."

THE ROSE TATTOO by Tennessee Williams — A mourning widow's denied love hunger explodes in a violent affair, shattered when the truth of her late husband's philandering is revealed.

OEDIPUS REX by Sophocles — Fate stalks a haunted young king as he discovers himself a murderer and an unwitting accomplice to incest.

ST. JOAN by George Bernard Shaw — A scathing indictment of the evils of an insidious bureaucracy wreaking its horrible will and vengeance upon an idealistic young girl.

HADRIAN VII by Peter Luke — London and New York prize-winning drama that catapults an eccentric, impoverished writer from obscurity to the Papacy.

2 Command Revivals

SIX CHARACTERS IN SEARCH OF AN AUTHOR by Luigi Pirandello — The fine line between illusion and reality, fantasy and fact—as a libertine father is embraced by his wanton daughter and his wife turned pander.

ROSENCRANTZ AND GUILDENSTERN ARE DEAD by Tom Stoppard — In Hamlet R and G are bit players who spent brief moments on stage. Now they take center stage in a brilliant, imaginative and dazzling comedy.

How Much Color Will You Have This Spring?

Garden Page

Will your garden really come alive with color this spring?

Are you sure?

If, after giving the question some second thoughts, you are uncertain, it is still not too late to take some effective corrective steps.

There are a number of plants and shrubs in the nurseries that are blooming, or almost ready to burst into bloom, and all you need to do is to plant them in the spots where you are confronted by a color shortage. No one else will know that you didn't set them out months ago.

IT IS, OF course, too late to plant spring-blooming bulbs (summer-blooming bulbs are another matter). But at some nurseries you might find container-grown daffodils, tulips and hyacinths whose flowers can be enjoyed indoors, or planted in the garden for "instant color."

Azaleas have been blooming for some time, and are still doing so. By selecting different varieties, you can have color from these dependable performers half the year, into the late spring.

The same holds true for camellias. And the color choices among the camellias and azaleas are delightful. Both make excellent landscape specimens.

DAPHNE, WHICH has been dispensing its fragrance in some gardens for weeks, can still be found in bloom, willing to share its lovely scent for yet more weeks.

Look, too, for the deciduous shrubs that have already broken their winter's rest or soon will be doing so, with a dazzling display of color. The star magnolia (Magnolia stellata) is one of these, and can be found cloaked in white flowers whose beauty will be the talk of your neighborhood.

Annuals such as pansies, violas and Iceland poppies are quick to flower and true reminders of the spring season.

SOME NURSERIES will have large-sized calendulas (bright oranges, golds, yellows) and fairy primroses (pinks, white, lavenders) already in bloom. These will continue to show color until late spring.

There are other trees, shrubs and smaller blooming items that Marinites have learned to rely upon for their spring garden color. The nursery is the place to find them. And you still have ample time to make sure that your garden does, indeed, reflect the gaiety and freshness that is spring.

IF YOU ARE confronted by a lack of early spring color in your garden, there are a number of trees and shrubs available that will provide the necessary transfusion. But don't overlook the smaller annuals, such as the pansies pictured here, as a source of quick color. They bloom quickly and provide lots of spring color. Pansies can be used in beds by themselves for a mass effect, in border plantings, or tucked in a few plants here and there for a cheery garden note. Greet Your Guests With Evergreens

The place to greet your guests is outside the front door, not in person, but in the plant life you have stationed there.

An entryway planting gives that all-important first impression. This is one place where neatness counts and you want a planting that puts up a good front. In such an area, therefore, evergreen plants are needed, and there are many desirable evergreen shrubs to fill-the-bill.

First, the trim yew pine (Podocarpus) is a landscaper's favorite. In a tub or in the ground, this upright grower has eye-appeal. It's neither a yew nor a pine, but its fine texture and rich green color is a distinctive addition to the entryway.

IT'S EASY TO get overly enthusiastic over camellias, but this versatile shrub meets this challenge admirably, especially in filtered shade. The glossy evergreen foliage is reason enough to plant them—the long blooming season with profusions of lovely blossoms is a colorful bonus.

For a clipped look, try boxwood at either side of the entrance—in tubs or in the ground. The neat applish-green foliage is handsome. You can prune these into pyramids or globe-shapes.

Darker green are myrtus and wax-leaf privet. The latter has larger foliage and is usually available in nurseries already trained in interesting shapes—like tree forms and topiaries.

IF THE ENTRANCE is along a walk that parallels the house, espaliered plants will create a pleasing "reception area." Pyracantha, loquats, magnolias and evergreen pears lend themselves to espaliering against a wall.

Where shade predominates, gold dust plant (Aucuba) is a stunning sight. The popular all-green aucuba is also a favorite in such areas.

The list doesn't end here. These and other shrubs will all welcome your guests in the manner you wish.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔All bareroot roses, fruit and nut trees should be planted this month, while they are still available.

✔It's a good time for planting groundcovers, too. Consider the new ground-hugging junipers for a beautiful show in difficult garden spots.

✔Bloom-time is a good time for moving camellias or azaleas if they must be moved. Use a nurseryman's mix in transplanting them to assure sturdy development of new roots.

✔Snails? Use bait or pellets at strategic points in the garden to control them.

✔If you have not already done so, better take care of pruning those hydrangeas.

✔Feed established roses between now and mid-March. Do not feed newly-planted ones until they are established.

✔Summer-blooming bulbs should go into the ground now.

NOTHING is more essential to a successful home workshop than a good workbench. Easi-Bild's "Workbench Book No. 672," available from Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, for $1, contains complete directions for building three such benches. There's a six-foot workbench with two big drawers, a large shelf and other special features. The pattern can also be used for constructing a child's-size bench. There's a four-foot fold-away workbench especially useful to apartment dwellers.

When Toilet Tank Acts Up, Here's What You Can Do

Easy Accessibility Makes Repairs Relatively Simple For Handyman

By ANDY LANG

The top of an old-fashioned toilet tank, still in use in the large majority of residential bathrooms, is not attached. It can be removed simply by lifting it off the tank.

There's good reason for this easy accessibility to the inner workings of the tank. No piece of equipment in the house is likely to require more attention over the years. And the only way that you can even find out what the trouble is, let alone repair it, is to remove the tank cover.

If you flush the tank while the cover is off, you'll quickly note how it operates. Turning the handle lifts a rubber ball (or similar object) at the bottom of the tank, sending gallons of water rushing through the opening into the toilet bowl. As soon as the tank is emptied, water comes rushing back into it through the supply pipe, usually at the left side of the tank. As the water in the tank rises, it pushes upward the round metal or plastic float at the end of a horizontal rod. When the ball reaches a certain height, it automatically shuts off the valve in the supply pipe, thus stopping the entry of water into the tank.

When everything is working properly, the tank is silent after water no longer enters it. When it isn't, water continues to drip or even flow from the tank into the bowl. This can be due to any one of a number of reasons.

If the ball at the bottom of the tank does not drop properly onto the valve seat, water leaks under it and goes into the bowl. The ball may not be dropping accurately, in which case it can be adjusted; or it may be so old that it requires replacement, which is done by screwing it off the rod; or the valve seat may have rust or grit on it, correctable by rubbing it with steel wool.

If the float at the end of the horizontal rod has lost its buoyancy because it has sprung a leak, it may fail to shut off the supply float valve. Unscrew it from the rod and shake it to see whether there is water in it. If so, buy a new ball. If it appears to be all right, bend the rod slightly downward, using both hands so as not to throw the entire mechanism out of alignment. Then replace the float.

If everything appears to be in order, but the supply valve isn't working efficiently, usually evident by a leak at the top of the supply pipe, you'll have to replace the valve washer or get a new part. The important part of this operation is to shut off the water going to the tank, usually by means of a handle underneath the tank. If you aren't sure how to replace the valve washer, go to your local hardware dealer, tell him what you want and ask him to show you how to make the replacement. Many hardware stores have the inside of a flush tank on display, which will make the dealer's explanation crystal clear.

Even if nothing is wrong with the toilet tank in your home, it's a good idea to take the cover off and flush it half a dozen times so that you can learn exactly how it operates.

Give Child His Own Psychedelic Bulletin Board

Handyman's Pages

Any grade school child would enjoy having a "psychedelic" bulletin board in his or her bedroom.

In fact, the youngster can let imagination run wild in selection of shapes, patterns and colors.

First, it should be oversize, so that school and hobby exhibits won't interfere too much with the rainbow of colors that might be chosen for any far-out design.

A four-by-seven or four-by-eight foot panel of Masonite Peg-Board is an ideal size. One slightly narrower would fit on a closet or room door, too.

Just remember to include spacers behind the Peg-Board for fixtures used in hanging the displays.

Water paints applied with fingers can be used to decorate the panel. Some children would prefer sketching their design in chalk first, and then following the outlines with the paint. Others will design as they go.

If the child is too young for this creative project, mom or dad will enjoy doing it instead.

As variations, the child or his parents might choose to complement the bulletin Peg-Board with smaller wall plaques of similar free-style design.

Simply use unperforated hardboard, sold at lumber yards.

Hang the plaques on the wall by means of dime store hangers fastened to the backs.

SAVE ½ AND MORE!

Attention Bargain Hunters! Extra big savings up to 75% are found in the factory close-outs we just bought from an Eastern Furniture Manufactory. They requested that we do not mention their name because of the tremendous discounts. We had to purchase the entire lot of SPANISH, ITALIAN & MEDITERRANEAN BEDROOM and DINING ROOMS.

Because of these fantastic low prices, there will be an optional charge for delivery.
